Amalgamation!

Argument Goes Back A Long Way

By JOHN MIKA

If there's one word that can galvanize Greater Victorians into unending campaigns, panels, debates and chain letters to the editor it's "amalgamation."

The word has been the battle cry of this area for decades and yet another skirmish will be fought at the Saanich polls Dec. 6 when the referendum is decided.

The verbal war has passed through hot and cold phases, with the most recent "hot" period beginning in Jan., 1955.

In the seven years since then, a total of more than 560 references to the subject have accumulated in the Times' library files—and that's only a partial record of the running battle.

Skipping the personalities and the arguments, here's a brief rundown on what has happened in that period as gleaned from the newspaper clippings of council meetings, debates, announcements and campaigns on the question:

In January of 1955, the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, tired of frequently-expressed and contradictory personal opinions about Greater Victoria's government, decided to put up $5,000 for an independent study.

By September of that year, after many discussions, the four Greater Victoria municipal councils agreed to co-operate by allowing their financial records to be examined.

Note that it was the last time the four councils were to agree to a study.

Hired Research Institute

The chambers hired the Citizens Research Institute of Canada—a specialized Toronto organization—to make the study. Two experts came out to carry it out.

At the same time, Premier W. A. C. Bennett set a pattern which his government and Victoria MLAs were to follow in the subsequent years—encouraging amalgamation from the sidelines without becoming embroiled in the conflict directly.

"We will do anything we can to help bring it about but we will not dictate it," the premier said on Sept. 20, 1955.

The then Saanich reeve Arthur Ash—a leading figure in favor of amalgamation—urged a civic study of metropolitan government here and construction of a joint municipal hall in his 1956 inaugural address. Victoria appeared interested, Esquimalt and Oak Bay aloof.

June 15, 1956, was a major milestone as the 75-page report of the Citizens Research Institute of Canada was unveiled.

It urged direct amalgamation of Victoria, urban Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and View Royal rather than a metro government.

The following month, then mayor Percy Scurrah and the three reeves agreed to set up an intermunicipal committee to study this report, but within a few weeks Oak Bay and Esquimalt had walked out and refused to participate in a joint study.

They have never changed their minds since, through all the debates and subsequent investigations, and all efforts at a four-way study have failed.

On March 6, 1957, however, they were given a severe jolt by introduction of a new Municipal Act in the legislature.

One of its provisions was that two-thirds approval by

Times Plans Forum

In the accompanying article Mr. Mika has traced the history of the amalgamation controversy over the last decade without going into the arguments for and against.

As a public service the Times next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will carry a public forum on these arguments. Protagonists and antagonists are invited to submit their views summing up the points.

Articles should not be more than 500 words in length and should be addressed to the managing editor.

Armed Youths Flee After Crime Spree

GOLDEN (CP)—Two armed youths who have boasted they will kill anyone trying to stop them were being hunted today by police in British Columbia and Alberta.

The pair fled this Rocky Mountain border village early Friday in a stolen car after escaping from the trap of a garage owner whose premises had been looted three times in the last month.

Police have blamed at least 12 breakins here on the pair and a third youth arrested late Friday.

They said the pair being sought are armed with at least three rifles, a .32-calibre pistol and a large quantity of ammunition, all stolen property.

They are driving a 1958 model car stolen in Ontario.

E. Germans Escape

BERLIN (Reuters)—Three young East Germans swam the near-frozen waters of a border river and escaped to West Berlin last night, police here reported today.

B.E. GAMES

KIDD, POUND WIN

PERTH, Australia — Toronto's Bruce Kidd and Dick Pound of Montreal made it a big day for Canada at the British Empire Games today as they gave the Dominion its first gold medals with record-breaking efforts.

Swimmers, who had collected two silver medals in relay events Friday, picked up two bronze medallions today for third-place finishes.

Canada was also awarded a bronze medal in fencing to make it seven medals in the first two days of the games.

Kidd, 19, raced away from the field with a brilliant burst of speed to win the six-mile event in 28 minutes, 26.6 seconds, hitting the tape 50 yards in front of former record-holder Dave Power of Australia.

Montreal's Pound scored a major upset in the swimming events when he beat Bobby McGregor of Scotland in the 110-yard freestyle. Pound's time of 59:55.9 seconds topped the old record.

Mary Stewart, Vancouver, won a bronze medal in the women's 110-yard freestyle and Andy Meinhardt, Vancouver, was third in the men's 110-yard butterfly swim.

In fencing, the Montreal pair of Carl Schwende and Ben Simo and Toronto's John Andru were third in team foils.

See story on page 10 for details of today's events at the Empire Games.

'Aiming Only for First' Jerome Says After Losing

(Times News Service)

PERTH—"When I saw him ahead my whole edge went off and I sort of collapsed."

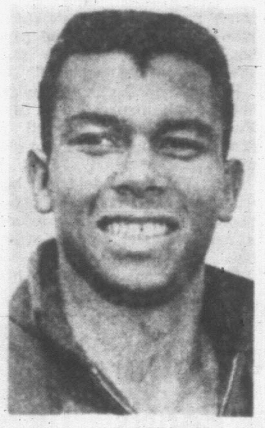
That was Harry Jerome's explanation today for his disappointing showing in the 100-yard dash final at the British Empire Games.

The event was won by Seraphino Antao of Kenya. Jerome finished last after pulling up about two-thirds of the way down the track.

Jerome was a downhearted man as he left the track.

Antao was first out of the blocks and led at the halfway mark of the 100 with Jerome second. After 80 yards, the Canadian faltered and the stylish Kenyan went on to win by about two feet over Tommy Robinson of the Bahamas.

Jerome's disappointing performance was almost identical to his failure in the 1960 Olympics when he dropped out before the finish of the 100.



HARRY JEROME
. . . disappointing

Talking to reporters, Jerome recounted what has been his sad story in other big events.

"I was trying to beat Antao," he said. "When I saw him ahead my whole edge went off and I sort of collapsed.

"There was no real pain. I just tried too hard. I don't think I pulled a muscle. He (Antao) got off the blocks real fine. There was just him and me. I tried to catch him but just could not make it."

Jerome said he thought he could have taken a silver medal if he had hung on but "my whole heart went out. I was aiming only for the gold."

Jerome said he would try again—"really hard" in the 220-yard dash.

FRIENDSHIP DOLLARS FOR INDIA

Small Donation Can Save Child

Every day in Victoria a man quietly smokes a packet of cigarettes while someone dies he could easily save.

Yet few of the smokers realize what is happening because the person whose life they could save is in [illegible]

And they find it hard to believe that the small sum needed to buy cigarettes in Canada is the difference between life and death for some Indian.

But according to Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee, such is actually the case. The price of a large pack of cigarettes is enough to feed an Indian child with powdered milk every day for six months.

That is why even a small sum donated to the Times appeal for "Friendship Dollars for India" makes such a big impact on someone's life.

Dr. Hitschmanova thinks that most persons, hearing about the effect of a donation, would readily give something. But many of them never get around to actually doing it, she says.

Yet all they need to do is to send a cheque to "Friendship Dollars for India," c/o The Times, 2631 Douglas, or drop in their donation personally.

All contributions will be acknowledged with a receipt from the Times and in the news columns of the paper. Later, the USC will send a formal receipt.

All donations are deductible for income tax purposes.

The Times appeal has passed the $1,500 figure. The next list of acknowledgments of donations will be published Monday.

Storm Winds Rake Entire B.C. Coast

Gusts Hit 80 mph Up-Island

Screaming winds driving heavy rains surged over Vancouver Island today in a storm roaring in from the Gulf of Alaska and Queen Charlottes area.

Renewed rain and winds up to 70 miles an hour are expected Sunday.

In addition to battering the island, the storm roared far inland.

At points as far apart as Courtenay and Prince George in the central interior, there were reports of damage, but no injuries.

The wind gusted to 80 miles an hour on the central east coast of the island.

On the west coast, Tofino airport recorded the heaviest rainfall in the province, a whopping 4.79 inches in 30 hours.

Port Hardy, on the north coast, was doused with 2.41 inches in 24 hours, most of it early this morning. Nanaimo showed 1.35 inches and Comox 1.81.

POWER LINES DOWN

In the hardest hit Courtenay-Comox area, power and phone lines were downed. Fallen trees blocked several roads, and a large paper scow was knocked from its morings in Campbell River harbor.

RCAF Station Comox reported electrical trouble due to the storm, and at one period cut in its emergency power unit.

In Greater Victoria, more than one-third inch of rain fell between 8:15 and 11:15 a.m.

But several hours of pouring rain only overflowed a few ditches and clogged some drains in the Greater Victoria area.

Officials said there was no serious damage caused by the

U.S. GIVES CONTRACT FOR HOT NEW FIGHTER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. defence department today selected General Dynamics Corp. to develop a revolutionary, new supersonic double-duty fighter plane for use by both the navy on carriers and by the air force from land bases.

The multi-purpose jet warplane will be capable of reaching speeds two-and-a-half-times the speed of sound. It is the largest single military fighter program since the Second World War.

The development contract alone calls for building 22 test models, and will probably run close to $750,000,000. Eventually, perhaps 1,500 planes will be built at a cost of $4 to $5 billion.

ASKS 'CLARIFICATION'

India Hints Ready to Talk

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India gave its first diplomatic recognition to Red China's self-imposed cease-fire today by asking for "clarification" of several points in the Peking proposal to end the fighting and start negotiating a peace in the undeclared border war.

A spokesman said Foreign Minister M. J. Desai summoned the Chinese charge d'affaires Friday and raised "several points which required clarification."

The Chinese charge d'affaires is obtaining clarification from Peking," the spokesman added.

But he declined to say what points needed clarifying.

The move was the first formal achnowledgement by India of the three-day-old cease-fire, which thus far has been "under consideration" here and only tacitly observed by the Indian army.

But tacit or not, the cease-fire has brought an effective end to the fighting—at least until Dec. 1, when the Chinese said they planned to withdraw back to the north but warned the Indians not to move into the territory abandoned under threat of renewed attack.

The spokesman said patrolling was going on in both the North East Frontier Agency and in the Ladakh region of the 2,500-mile Himalayan front. But there were no shooting incidents anywhere along the line today.

China Asks Bertie's Aid

PEKING (Reuters) — The news here today was dominated by Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's letter to British philosopher-pacifist Bertrand Russell asking his help to persuade India to accept border negotiations based on Peking's cease fire proposals.

The official New China news agency reported Chou sent Russell a letter Friday expressing "great pleasure at his statement welcoming and supporting" China's cease-fire and withdrawal proposals.

Chou said he hoped Russell would continue his "distinguished influence to urge the Indian government to respond positively to the Chinese government cease-fire statement of Nov. 21, and adopt corresponding measures.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

A dignified firm of local chartered accountants is puzzled as to how it got on the mailing list of a magazine called Eros, which offers four issues a year for $19.50 and has been described as "The American Heritage of the Bedroom."

In its latest prospectus the magazine offers "The last nude photographs of Marilyn Monroe . . . "the loveliest photographs ever taken of the most idolized woman of our time."

The Victoria firm insists it deals in figures of a less dramatic kind.

For a couple of exciting minutes this week Victoria Chamber of Commerce manager John Coppinger thought he had uncovered a dastardly plot against the succulent crumpet by the railway express companies.

Coppinger

Studying a schedule of changes in express charges, John noticed that proposed Supplement No. 15 to Express Classifications for Canada, No. 9, called for a boost in the minimum tariff on Victoria's favorite tea-time delicacy.

However, John tells me that when he pursued the matter further he found that, while the minimum charge is to be boosted from $1 to $1.75 on crumpet shipments, the per pound rate above the minimum stays the same.

And, in any event, local express officials can't recall a time when crumpets were either shipped into or out of Victoria.

John mentioned, as an afterthought, that while it may not be generally known, the Chamber of Commerce has on file its own official recipe for crumpets.

Here it is:

CRUMPETS

½ cup butter
¾ teaspoon salt
1 yeast cake
3 cups scalded milk
3 to 4 cups of flour

Add butter and salt to milk. When lukewarm add yeast cake. When dissolved add enough flour to make dough a little stiffer than cake dough. Beat thoroughly, cover and let rise until light.

Drop into crumpet rings which have been placed on hot griddle.

When brown on the underside, turn over and cook until brown on both sides

Irish playwright Bernard Shaw was one of the world's biggest leg-pullers and I have an awful suspicion the celestial Shaw is laughing its head off over the current controversy about his "simplified" alphabet.

For years he persisted in answering letters in Pitman's shorthand, knowing this would cause all kinds of embarrassment to his correspondents.

In the far-off days when we were in the London office of The Canadian Press, a questionnaire was sent to Mr. Shaw about post-war conditions in Britain. He replied with a lengthy letter written in whirls and pothooks.

We assembled a staff of shorthand experts to decipher the script, but finally had to phone Mr. Shaw to interpret certain outlines which defied us.

"This is terrible," he said. "I am appalled by your ignorance of Mr. Pitman's art!"

And while on the subject . . . J. H. Beatty, president of the Sprott-Shaw Modern Business School, tells us the first Stenotype (shorthand machine) was invented in Canada in 1844.

Mr. Beatty produced a document showing that the "Anderson reporting machine" was manufactured in that year by the Ingersoll Doorguard Company of Ingersoll, Ont.

It had only 13 keys and was bought by John Moon of Ingersoll.

A Santa Claus from Nanaimo visited the Guv'nor's Grill on Yates Street during Monday night's heavy storm and two Times newsboys are grateful for his visit.

Soaked to the skin, they took refuge in the grill with large bundles of papers. Along came Santa in the person of Douglas Evans, 25 Front Street, Nanaimo, and said:

"Put your papers on the floor boys, and I'll buy the lot. Then you go home and get into some dry clothes."

Mr. Evans bought 40 copies of The Times at an over-all cost of $4!

TRADING STAMP BAN 'TALKED OUT' AGAIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Howard (NDP-Skeena), tried unsuccessfully Friday to have trading stamps outlawed.

He said the stamps are an "advertising gimmick" contributing to the growth of economic dictatorship and other dishonest practices that are putting a squeeze on the consumer, farmer and small businessman.

Mr. Howard's private bill, which he has promoted for three sessions, did not come to a vote as MPs "talked out" the hour allotted to it.

HOWARD . . . hits "gimmick."

LABOR HEAD PROTESTS

Strife Planned, Bonner Asserts

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Bonner said Friday recent labor demonstrations in B.C. were planned and any statement to the contrary is "sheer, spontaneous nonsense."

He was replying to a letter from a union leader that the demonstrations arose when union members "spontaneously demanded a public protest against the attempted perversion of law enforcement by employers."

The exchange took place in the wake of Mr. Bonner's announcement Thursday that the provincial government is considering action to improve the labor-management climate in B.C.

It was taken as a reference to recent demonstrations outside strikebound plants, some of which led to violence and arrests.

The attorney-general has blamed the trouble on "a handful of pork-chopping labor agitators."

Jack Moore, western president of the IWA, wrote immediately in reply to the attorney-general.

He said evidence would show union members were spontaneously countering the government's restrictive legislation against strikes, and the advantage taken by employers to deprive unions of their rights.

Mr. Bonner said Friday at least three labor leaders in B.C. have urged their members to demonstrate.

"Obviously this is not something that is happening without the urging of people who should know better," said Mr. Bonner.

Meanwhile at Nanaimo, Secretary Pat O'Neal of the B.C. Federation of Labor told union officials "the spectacle of the attorney-general — the senior cabinet minister—hurling insults at elected trade union representatives has shattered any early posibility of an easement in the labor-management strife."

Little Sales, Big Bills

VANCOUVER (CP) — For the second Friday in a row a crowd of about 250 labor demonstrators paraded outside Zeller's in the Dell shopping centre in Whalley and harrassed assistants inside.

The Retail Food and Drug Clerks' union has been on strike at Zeller's since Aug 13 after negotiations for a first contract failed. The union is not allowed to picket inside the shopping centre by order of the B.C. Supreme Court.

ARTICLE LEFT

Last Friday night about 200 sympathizers from other unions demonstrated outside the store.

In the store they picked up articles from counters but when the cashier, in answer to a question, said the store was non-union, they left the article on the cashier's desk.

TRIPS OUTSIDE

A different pattern developed this time. Demonstrators, allowed into the store 10 at a time, used $10 and $20 bills to make purchases ranging from 10 cents to about 50 cents and assistants had to make several trips outside the store for change.

Twenty-seven RCMP controlled crowds and traffic but did not interfere. There was no violence.

Industry Causes One-Half Of City Smoke Nuisance

The city's advisory air pollution control board was told Friday that industry is only half responsible for smoke in the atmosphere.

H. A. Smith, manager of Smith Cedar Products, charged that cars, trucks, diesel buses and domestic and commercial oil burners emit as much waste into the air as the city's mills.

Mr. Smith suggested that any approach to solve the problem should take account of these other causes of pollution. He recommended that a study be made of the possibility of installing central heating in all of the downtown area.

Mr. Smith also alleged that the city has shown "a serious disregard" for the welfare of workers in its attempts to reduce pollution.

He said that after a recent storm damaged a burner at his plant, a City Hall spokesman said a permit to do the necessary repairs would not be issued. Mr. Smith said the repairs had already been made since the company had not considered it necessary to apply for a permit to carry them out.

But if the repairs had been delayed until a permit was applied for, and the permit had been refused, it would have thrown 90 men out of work, said Mr. Smith.

The workers in industry are conscious of their responsibility to the city, said Mr. Smith. He added: "Workers in our plant make an average donation of $15 to the Community Chest which is more than some of our critics give."

CLOSING BURNER

Cedar Products is going to close its burner as soon as it can arrange to process and ship cedar waste out of the city, promised Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith appeared before the committee at his own request to clarify "some not altogether correct statements" which he said have distorted the smoke problem in the minds of the public in the past.

Retiring Inspector Admires Successor

When the city's air pollution committee Friday appointed a new smoke inspector, the present inspector immediately questioned why he had applied for the job, then outlined what he should do with his time for the next year.

Thomas Walker said he is delighted and surprised that the city could get a man with the qualifications of Sam E. Mottishaw for the job.

Mr. Mottishaw, a native of Nanaimo, is a first class steam engineer with 35 years' experience, 10 of them as a chief stationary engineer. He was selected for the position from 27 applicants.

But 76-year-old Mr. Walker, who did not want to give up his job, questioned why a "young man" like Mr. Mottishaw (he is 50) would want a "dead end job" as smoke inspector.

Assistant city engineer William Jorgensen said Mr. Mottishaw wanted the job because of its status and because "it is a real challenge."

The copy of a letter from Mr. Walker to Mr. Jorgensen was then read to the committee. Mr. Walker said the letter would "tie down the new inspector for one year."

In it Mr. Walker said he had been reluctant to enforce strictly the smoke bylaw because it would cause considerable expense, inconvenience and hardship.

He said City Hall generates a lot of heavy, black smoke especially when starting the coal fires on Monday mornings. Mr. Walker said the Bay Street Armory is another offender.

According to the letter, the school board is unable to operate several of its heating plants in schools without breaking the bylaw.

Father Guilty Of Threat

William Clifford, 1010 Balmoral, was given a six-month suspended sentence after being found guilty in city police court Friday on a charge of threatening his son with bodily harm.

A counter-charge by the father against the son was dismissed.

George Clifford, also of 1010 Balmoral, had testified his father had threatened to kill him and had struck at him with a rake Nov. 18.

William Clifford claimed his son had threatened him, and slapped him across the head, while his brother, James, of 1024 McClure, was restraining his father.

Memorial Arena Reports Deficit

Memorial Arena Commission Friday reported a deficit of $6,577 for the first five months' operation of the current fiscal year.

However, the deficit was smaller than the $7,006 deficit reported for the corresponding period—June to November—last year.

Revenue received by the end of October totalled $36,936 compared with $32,306 for the same period last year.

The period is the slack season in the arena's operations.

EVERTON TAKES SOCCER LEAD

Burnley Edges Spurs

LONDON (UPI) — Everton's "Merseyside Millionaires" regained the First Division lead today with a 3-0 victory over Sheffield United, while overnight leader Tottenham lost to Burnley, 2-1, for the Spurs first league defeat in nine weeks.

There was no question about Everton's victory, but the team's forwards were guilty of several bad misses and it was left to Welsh International Roy Vernon to get the points. Vernon scored a couple and laid on the third for Denis Stevens.

The Burnley-Tottenham game was described by one commentator as "the best I've seen in the last 20 years." The gates were closed 1½ hours before the kickoff and the 46,000 capacity crowd was treated to all the arts of top class soccer.

Burnley moved to the attack at the start and the Spurs were forced to play nine men on defence at times.

They were under such pressure that they conceded 13 corners in 35 minutes, but in the 41st minute, ace goal-snatcher Jimmy Greaves grabbed one against the run of play. The second half followed the pattern of the first, but in the 57th minute John Connelly levelled and Ray Pointer grabbed the winner 14 minutes from time from a Jimmy Adamson free kick.

Everton now has 29 points; against 27 each for Tottenham and Burnley.

Manchester City fought gamely to hold visiting Aston Villa to a 2-2 tie at Old Trafford after City lost Scots international Denis Law, who bowed out after only 30 minutes. Villa went ahead after five minutes through a Noel Cantwell own-goal, but Albert Quixall, the man of the match, got United back with two goals. Derek Dougan scored Villa's other tally.

Wolverhampton scored its first victory in eight games slamming four goals past Leyton Orient, which now is firmly entrenched in last place. Alan Hinton, Chris Crowe and Barry Stobart (2) were the scorers.

Leicester held on to fourth place as a result of its scoreless tie with Blackpool. It was a scrappy game and both sides were guilty of missing some easy scoring chances.

League champion Ipswich lost to Arsenal, 3-1, at Highbury. Goals by Joe Baker, George Armstrong and Johnny Barnwell gave Arsenal the points, while Blackwood scored for Ipswich. The champions are second from the bottom with 12 points from 19 starts.

Birmingham's unbeaten home record went by the boards when the team bowed, 2-0, to visiting Liverpool. The victory was Liverpool's first away from home.

'High Pressure' Used In Hearing Aid Sale

A lawsuit by a Victoria optician to collect for a hearing aid from an elderly couple was dismissed with costs in County Court here Friday by Judge J. B. Clearihue.

The judge referred to the sale as "an excellent example of high pressure salesmanship with an elderly couple who did not appreciate what they were doing."

The action was brought by William N. Fowler against Benjamin Fairclough, 79, of 358 Arnold Street.

Judge Clearihue said he had no hesitation in fining that "there was a great deal of undue and improper pressure exerted" in the transaction.

He said Mr. Fowler was in business at 1010 Broad Street, Victoria, and specialized in hearing aids.

GIVES NAMES

"He receives from various companies, who have supplied hearing aids, the names of persons using the same.

"Mr. Fowler then gives these names to his salesman, who contacts the named persons and endeavors to sell them a new hearing aid."

By this method, the judge said, a salesman called at Mr. Fairclough's home to sell a hearing aid to his 80-year-old wife.

"Mr. Fairclough told him his wife had one which was quite good, that they could not afford a new one and did not want one.

"He (the salesman) put his foot in the door, came in and insisted on giving Mrs. Fairclough a test in hearing. . .

"But in the end, Mr. Fairclough did sign an agreement to purchase a hearing aid for $288 . . . he said he did it to get rid of the salesman.

"He said he was not in a fit condition to understand what he was doing as he had just come out of Veterans' Hospital after he had double pneumonia."

Judge Clearihue said that "as Mr. Fowler was an optician, it was quite obvious it was in his interest to sell only a hearing aid attached to glasses."

DID NOT READ

The evidence showed that Mrs. Fairclough did not read, only used glasses to watch television, and had testified that she could not hear as well as with her old hearing aid.

She could not see through the glasses and could not walk with them on as they gave her a headache.

"It was quite obvious to anyone that she should not be forced to use a hearing aid attached to glasses which must always be on her eyes," Judge Clearihue said.

LADYSMITH — Three Ladysmith schools, closed for three days because of the lack of water, were reopened Friday.

The water supply failed because of the rapidly falling level in the reservoir about a mile outside the village limits.

Victorian Achieved Fame In Education, Arts, CBC

Ira Dilworth, 68, who died suddenly in Vancouver Friday, had a distinguished career in education, the arts and broadcasting, and was a former principal of Victoria High School.

He lived here from 1909 to 1934.

Until recently he was director of program evaluation for the CBC's national radio and television service and was consultant to the CBC on long-term policy matters.

Funeral services will be held in Ryerson United Church, Vancouver, Monday at 3 p.m.

Mr. Dilworth taught at Victoria High School from 1915 to 1926 when he became principal—one of the youngest B.C. teachers to receive such an appointment.

HEADED FEDERATION

He was twice elected president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation and won the Ferguson memorial award for "outstanding contributions to education."

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Thomas Southern, 577 Michigan, Victoria; two nieces whom he legally adopted, Mrs. John E. A. Parnell of Vancouver and Mrs. William Inglis of West Vancouver and the latter's son, John Ira Dilworth Inglis.

IRA DILWORTH
. . . youngest principal

Born in High Bluff, Man., Mr. Dilworth moved to Kelowna as a youth when his father became a cattle rancher there. He was educated at Benvoulin country school near Kelowna, Victoria High School, McGill (BA) and Harvard (MA).

In 1934 he joined the staff of the University of British Columbia as an associate professor of English and the same year became director of the Bach Choir, a post he held until 1940.

He was appointed professor of English at UBC in 1938 and later joined the CBC as regional director for B.C.

Mr. Dilworth was instrumental in gaining recognition for Victoria artist Emily Carr. He assisted her in the publication of several books, writing introductions for "Klee Wyck" in 1941 and "Growing Pains" in 1946.

ESTATE EXECUTOR

He was literary executor for her estate and, with Lawren Harris, one of the Group of Seven painters, was a trustee of her paintings.

He opened the Emily Carr exhibition at the Toronto Art Gallery in October, 1945, and edited her unpublished works after her death. They were published in 1953 under the title The Heart of the Peacock.

In 1946 he became first president of Vancouver Community Arts Council.

Mr. Dilworth held an honorary degree of doctor of law from UBC. He edited "Twentieth Century Verse," an anthology published in 1945, and texts on Shakespeare and 19th century poetry for high schools.

MONTREAL POST

In July, 1946, he was appointed general manager of the international service of the CBC and served in this capacity in Montreal until December, 1951, when he became director of program production for Toronto.

In March, 1953, he was appointed director for Ontario and became director of all CBC networks in 1956.

'Bully' Fined $50 On Assault Charge

Driver of a car who repeatedly cut off another vehicle and then punched its driver was fined $50 in city police court Friday.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of assault.

Court was told Raymond Williams, 3895 Hobbs, followed another car up Yates Street, from Douglas to the east of Cook, cutting him off four times.

After the cars came into collision with one another near the Medical Arts Building, Williams punched the driver of the other vehicle.

Cause for the assault was that the accused believed he had been cut off by the other car at Yates and Douglas, it was alleged.

Magistrate William Ostler asked if there was not another charge in respect to the accused's driving.

"You are a physical bully as well as a driving bully," he told the 210-pound Williams.

"If I could suspend your licence I would," he added.

bad weather. There were few requests for help from municipal authorities.

One official said he does not expect any "real trouble" as a result of the rain.

COLLEGE HIT

But higher education showed signs of foundering in a greasy morass of Gordon Head mud as, for the second time in a week, heavy rains inundated the chewed-up grounds of just-finished Clearihue classroom block at Victoria College.

The week after it opened its basement was flood by a burst pipe.

The rains are forced by wind through the seams of large glass walls of stair wells on the ends of the building—particularly the south end—and water sluices onto slippery terazzo floors.

Some water-softened plaster has fallen off a wall at the north end of the building, and around the main entrance, a subsided concrete apron catches large pools of water.

MORE SUNDAY

Partial clearing was expected late this afternoon, but a second disturbance is forecast for Sunday, bringing a return of lashing winds and driving rain. Temperatures will remain mild.

On the mainland, the wind drove over the Vancouver area at 55 miles an hour, lifting parts of roofs and breaking windows. Some power supplies were cut.

At Powell River a tree blocked a highway for a time and many telephone circuits were cut.

Ot Prince George, 400 miles northeast of here there were power failures and blocked roads. The main wind storm hit at 3 a.m., and lasted for three hours, blowing there at times to 65 miles an hour.

Temperatures across the province were mild.

New Tender Call For Airport Job

CAMPBELL RIVER—The village will call tenders again for work at the Campbell River Municipal Airport.

Decision was made by council at a special meeting because the price spread in original tenders was thought to be too great and possibly in error.

What puzzled council was the big difference between the low bid of L & H Logging, for $15,775, and the other two tenders of $23,250 and $24,500.

Council took the advice of their solicitor and will readvertise the work which involves clearing, stumping and grubbing at the airport site. Tenders will be opened Dec. 11.

. . . AMALGAMATION

a group of municipalities studying metro government could force establishment of the system in any area of the province.

Fred Norris, Oak Bay reeve at the time, expressed shock, pointing out that a favorable vote in Victoria and Saanich might be used to force Oak Bay into a metro government. This has continued to be one of the background fears in both Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Victoria Favored Commission

Dec. 12, 1957, was another important milestone.

In Victoria, voters approved three-to-one a referendum for a royal commission investigation of amalgamation.

Election voting in Saanich also heartened and strengthened pro-amalgamationists as Mr. Ash and a slate he headed swept the polls while the voters turned out anti-amalgamation councillors Eugene Diespecker and Leslie Passmore.

As a result, events picked up in tempo—relatively speaking—and by April of 1958 a joint Victoria-Saanich civic committee had appointed city manager C. C. Wyatt and Saanich comptroller John Tribe to an investigating committee.

A few weeks later, with the promise of provincial financial help for the study, the committee was rounded out with Dr. J. J. Deutsch—a top governmental finance expert and university professor (who now heads an eastern university)—as chairman.

The three-man committee presented its report, after an exhaustive study of all available data supplied by both municipalities, Oct. 21, 1958.

That report recommended amalgamation of Victoria and all of Saanich.

Both municipalities scheduled referendums on the question for the December elections and a truly hectic round of panel debates and speeches by both sides followed.

Victoria voters approved their referendum, but Saanich voters said no.

This shattered amalgamationists but—as always—only temporarily.

Occasional references were made to it by pro and anti-amalgamationists over the next two years and then it gradually crept to the forefront of community discussions.

In January of 1961, departing Capital Region Planning Board director Brahm Weisman said there should be a gradual amalgamation of the whole area and, significantly, Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black agreed in a personal comment.

A month later, Waldo Skillings, making his maiden speech in the legislature as a Victoria MLA, urged a formal study of amalgamation. A few months later, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said amalgamation was bound to come eventually.

Bitter Reeveship Campaign

Sporadic comments continued that year and then in Saanich came a sometimes bitter reeveship campaign. Stanley Murphy won out over Leslie Passmore and John Tisdalle.

On Dec. 8, having won a thumping victory, Reeve-elect Murphy started the pot boiling again as he announced that he would open the question of a metro study with Victoria's new mayor.

Mayor-elect R. B. Wilson followed this up on his election night, Dec. 15, with a statement that he would invite all three reeves to a meeting to discuss a merger study under the Municipal Act.

This was held, but Jan. 24, this year, the Esquimalt and Oak Bay delegates said their municipalities would never agree to a formal study.

In a series of statements, Mayor Wilson appealed to the residents of Oak Bay and Esquimalt to seek a study so all the facts could be learned, but the two councils countered by using their taxpayers' money for half-page advertisements arguing against any formal study.

In April, city council reversed its stand against at least an informal consideration of amalgamation by the politicos, but it was too late. By then a split vote in Saanich council had cut the ground out from under Reeve Murphy.

The reeve gave up hopes of a study June 21 when Councillors Joseph Casey, Gregory Cook, Harold Todd and Robert Ostler refused to permit Saanich participation in a study.

Subsequently the Chamber of Commerce began efforts to sponsor another independent study to up-date the various reports and the Saanich "old guard" suddenly reversed its field.

Proclaiming themselves sick of "seeing amalgamation rear its ugly head again and again," Councillors Casey, Cook, Todd and Ostler voted for a referendum—barely two months after they refused a study.

HYPEROPIA

Hyperopia, or far-sightedness, is present in more than six out of ten people

Often in this condition both distant and close objects are seen clearly. The reason for this is that the focusing mechanism in the eye can overcome the defects of far-sightedness and produce clear vision. This means that the focusing mechanism must be constantly at work if clear vision is to be obtained and thus a mechanism that is primarily intended for close work produces fatigue, eyestrain, headaches, and frequently tends to make the eyes turn toward each other. When far-sightedness is corrected by glasses the focusing mechanism is allowed to relax and assume its normal role, and comfortable, efficient vision is again obtained. It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least every two years.

SAANICH CANDIDATES AGREE

Is Amalgamation Right? Talks on Terms Needed

Saanich will never know whether amalgamation is a good or bad thing until terms are discussed with Victoria, candidate Robert Mathison told a lively election meeting at the CCF Richmond Hall Friday.

This summed up the views of two other candidates: Coun. Robert Chard and Lionel Speller.

In support of Mr. Mathison's views, Coun. Chard explained a "yes" vote would permit the council to see if a satisfactory amalgamation agreement can be drawn up between Victoria and Saanich.

"It is also essential that council gets a strong yes or no vote," he added. "We don't want a wishy-washy vote. Council wants direction on this question of amalgamation."

The meeting was the first of a series of seven to be held within the next 10 days.

The others will be held at St. George's Hall, Tuesday, Nov. 27; Lake Hill Women's Institute, Quadra Street, Wednesday, Nov. 28; St. Luke's Hall, Friday, Nov. 30; Lansdowne Junior High School, Monday, Dec. 3; and Royal Oak High School, Tuesday, Dec. 4.

With the exception of the meeting at St. George's Hall, which begins at 8:15, all others start at 8 p.m.

Friday's meeting saw a lot of good-natured heckling, cheering and jeering by an audience of about 75.

Amalgamtion foe Leslie Passmore, a veteran councillor seeking election after being defeated last year in a bid for the reeveship, warned that merger with Victoria would mean "higher taxes."

"And you won't get anything in return," he said.

He noted that Saanich had no direct debt.

"We have followed the policy of 'pay as you go'—a policy which the city has abandoned," he said. "By setting aside money each year we paid for a new fire-police hall and a new health centre."

Coun. Joseph Casey, seeking re-election and a member of the anti-amalgamation faction, supported Mr. Passmore's view.

"Beware of the pie in the sky," he said.

Reeve Stanley Murphy, in supporting amalgamation, said it had been suggested that "Victoria is out to take us."

"I categorically deny this," he said. "We have no intentions of giving away Saanich."

Earlier, Coun. Harold Todd charged that a small group is trying to force Saanich into amalgamation.

He added there is no guarantee that Victoria would live up to the terms of an agreement.

"Councils change over the years," he said, "and the terms can gradually be disregarded."

Others who spoke were Couns. Hugh Curtis and Gregory Cook.

The meeting was chaired by 86-year-old Albert Horner, an early day councillor.

Katanga Boycott Plan Abandoned

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant was reported Friday to have dropped the idea of a boycott on Katanga copper and cobalt in his campaign to force the secessionist province back into The Congo.

Diplomatic sources said he was relying instead on the Union Miniere, the big company that mines these metals, to start paying taxes to Premier Cyrille Adoula's central government.

Union Miniere, controlled mainly by Belgian and British interests, up to now has paid all its royalties and export duties to provincial President Moise Tshombe's regime in Katanga, and this has weakened the central treasury

Rearguard Action

MR. NOWLAN, THE POLITICIAN-in-chief of the Canadian government, is fighting a rearguard action with skill and tenacity toward what he must know to be an inevitable end. His latest manoeuvre is a rather horrendous warning that a general election at this time, and the overnight end of the "austerity" program, "would make the storm of last June look like a summer shower."

This statement, though thrown out in the tumult of a desperate debate, deserves serious consideration.

In the first place, Mr. Nowlan now admits, as minister of finance, that a "storm" did occur last June, as everybody knows. But some of Mr. Nowlan's carefree colleagues were telling the public then there was nothing wrong with the Canadian economy, no trouble at all, only the imagined "gloom and doom" of the false opposition prophets.

Today the crisis denied by Mr. Diefenbaker on the eve of the election is used by Mr. Nowlan as an argument in favor of the government which created the crisis. If there is no logic in this remarkable non sequitur, the government's recognition of its mistakes and deceptions is welcome. We are making a little progress toward the truth.

Mr. Nowlan fears, however, that if an election were called now foreign investors would take fright again, withdraw their money from Canada and precipitate another crisis. He is so alarmed on that score, indeed, that he does not wish a committee of Parliament to study the government's emergency tariffs.

While he would personally welcome such an inquiry, since it would justify the government's action and send some critics away with "their tails between their legs," he must deny himself that satisfaction. Foreign confidence in Canada, he thinks, could not stand a review of national policy.

That is to say, Parliament must abdicate its ancient right to levy taxes, in the form of tariffs, lest ignorant foreigners misunderstand the situation and fly from the Canadian dollar.

Mr. Nowlan's argument assumes that foreign investors will trust no one but the Diefenbaker government, from whose policies they fled last summer. It assumes that an election would inevitably return a recklessly irresponsible government—a tacit admission that the Diefenbaker government cannot be re-elected.

All these straw men so laboriously erected by Mr. Nowlan are beside the point. The real point is that the government's "austerity" program, insofar as it concerns import restrictions, cannot be maintained long in any case, whether the present government lives or dies.

This the government itself has admitted by advocating a world-wide conference on tariff reductions. Such a conference is to be called early in the new year as the beginning of President Kennedy's trade expansion campaign.

If the Canadian government is sincere in desiring tariff reductions it cannot expect other nations to cut their normal tariffs while Canada maintains special surcharges far above that level. As Mr. Nowlan knows, these surcharges are short-run and he has repeatedly promised to abolish them at the earliest possible moment.

That moment cannot be very far away. Canada's trading partners of GATT indicated in a stern statement a few days ago that they require, not long hence, an assurance that the surcharges would be abolished at a fixed date.

Canada cannot resist this pressure without the risk of inviting retaliation from its customers — retaliation which they have postponed, but only postponed, while giving Canada a chance to re-build its currency reserves. Now that they are re-built, as Mr. Nowlan proudly says, these customers are rapidly losing their patience.

Hence it is only a matter of time before the import restrictions must be liquidated, whatever government is in office and whether an election is called now or later. Mr. Nowlan wishes to hang on to the restrictions as long as he can. The Liberal opposition would abolish them immediately.

About the question of timing there can be honest differences of opinion but surely it is not honest to say that Canada cannot risk an election, that foreign investors distrust any alternative to the present government, that the democratic process must be suspended and Parliament kept impotent while Mr. Nolan tries to clear away the mess left by Mr. Fleming. What all this double-talk comes down to is that the government fears an election because it knows it cannot win.

Ira Dilworth

THIS COMMUNITY FEELS A sense of personal loss in the death yesterday in Vancouver of Dr. Ira Dilworth.

Though not a native son, he had identified himself so closely with the educational and cultural life of Victoria for so many years that the capital city had made him its own.

As teacher, as principal of Victoria High School, as lecturer at Victoria College and at the University of British Columbia, he helped to mould the thoughts and aspirations of countless boys and girls, young men and young women.

To the technique of an outstanding teacher he added an indefinable ability to create appreciation for his subjects — usually associated with English literature. Not only did students learn, under him they developed a feeling for what was good in literature, art and music.

A talented musician, a critic and a writer of distinction, Ira Dilworth showed in his later career executive qualities which earned him high respect as an official of the Canadian Broadcasting Company. Only a few weeks ago he was honored in Vancouver with an award for his long support of the arts in that city.

As no other person, he helped make this part of the world aware of the great talents of Emily Carr. He was her consultant and editor of her written works.

Greater Victoria is the richer for the years Ira Dilworth devoted to this community. A love of the better things in life is more deeply ingrained in hundreds of former students because of his facility in introducing them to what was worthwhile. And many will count their acquaintance with him no small part of their heritage.

The Old Vs. the New

MR. LESLIE PASSMORE, seeking return to Saanich Council on an anti-amalgamation platform, raises a questionable bogey in his most recent plea for a "no" vote on the referendum to be submitted at next month's municipal elections.

The referendum asks: "Are you in favor of amalgamation of the district of Saanich with the city of Victoria?"

Reeve Murphy, champion of amalgamation, has stated definitely that he would consider an affirmative vote as a mandate to proceed only with the detailed study of terms under which a union might be made. It would be necessary, in his opinion, to resubmit the issue to the voters before definite action would be taken on amalgamation.

But, says Mr. Passmore, "Those residents in Saanich before 1946 will remember the provincial government did not hesitate to consolidate the individual school districts in Greater Victoria without reference to the ratepayers." To this he adds: "We have no guarantee the same procedure would not be allowed in the case of a yes vote by Saanich . . ."

On recent occasions, however, the provincial government has adopted a "hands-off" attitude toward amalgamation in this metropolitan region. If the government has undergone a change of heart, that change has not been indicated to the public.

Mr. Passmore and others who support his stand cannot be unaware of other changes which are taking place. They are changes brought about in the normal course of development which poses particular problems for Victoria and Saanich. And he should appreciate the fact that solutions to them can be reached more effectively if the two units join forces.

It is perhaps not without significance that those who oppose change in Saanich are the "old guard"—men like former reeve Joseph Casey and former councillor Passmore. The younger, more progressive men on council—Reeve Murphy, councillors Curtis and Chard—are looking forward instead of back. They realize that Saanich has a lot of development problems which can best be worked out in concert with the city.

In this, of course, they have the impressive opinion of the Deutsch report, compiled by a neutral economist of national standing with the aid of Saanich official John Tribe and city manager Cecil Wyatt. This report concluded that no area in Canada lent itself better to amalgamation than Greater Victoria.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A WALK along some backwoods road or trail these warm, moist days reveals many things to interest you.

Examine some of the mosses with their bright green cushions and see the tiny fruiting buds on the hair-like stalks. If you look closely you may find several kinds in one clump.

Note the difference between mosses that are growing on trees and those on the rock outcrops. Amongst them you can see dainty little fungi that look like fairy parasols.

On some of the tree twigs and branches you will find many kinds of lichens.

Some are closely wrapped around a limb, others are loosely attached and may appear in the form of a cup or saucer.

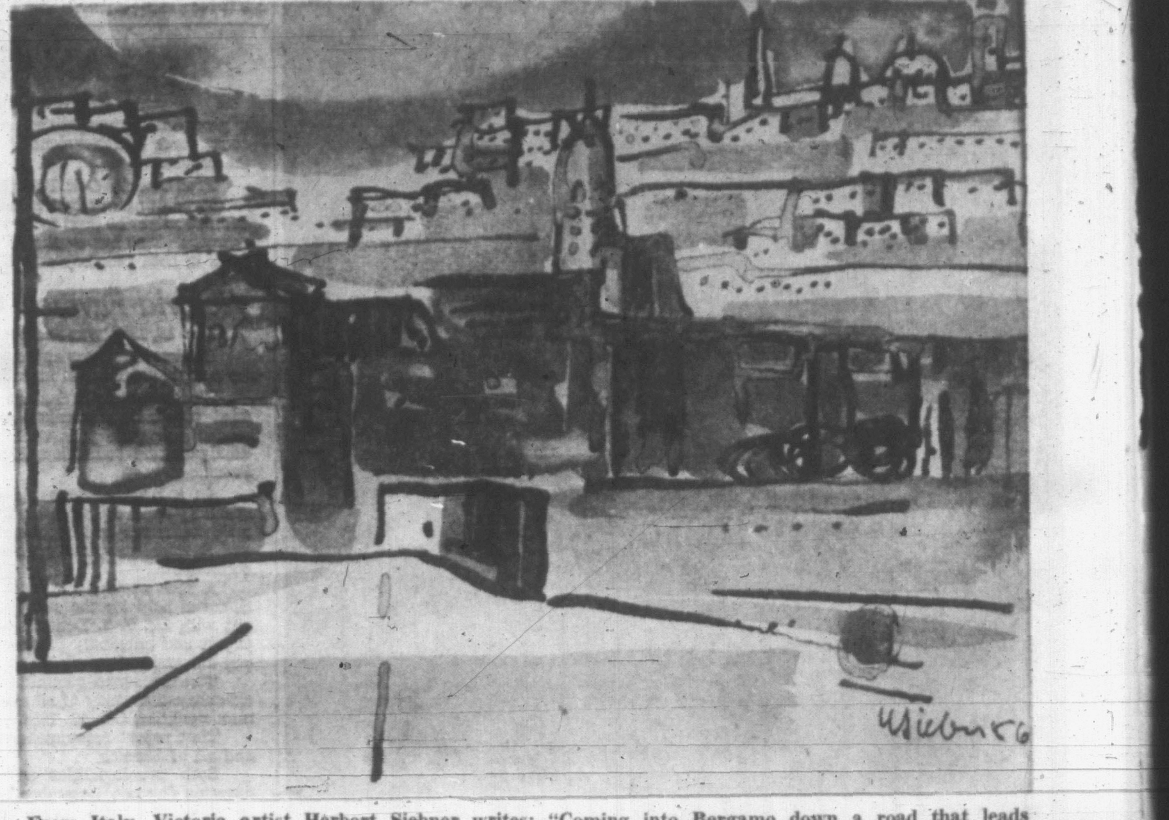
On the ground where the twigs are beginning to rot you can find lichens that are beautifully colored.

On the rocks you can find some that are red tipped, others are jet black. One, shaped like a little cup or nest, contains many spore capsules and is called the "birdsnest fungi."

On a wet log you may find lichens that look like a soft, bright yellow jelly.

An old piece of alder bark may hold what looks like minute yellow or white dots; these will be one of the many slime moulds.

If you have a pocket lens observe how beautifully they are made. Some of the slime moulds have the power to move on their host. This often brings up the question does this belong to the animal or vegetable world?



From Italy, Victoria artist Herbert Siebner writes: "Coming into Bergamo down a road that leads through a square aperture between the houses, one has a feeling of entering the mouth of the town. Built on the hills, with tiny streets, Bergamo has the charm of an old stone firmly rooted in the earth."

One of Those Watershed Events That Change Everything

Alsop

THE removal of the Soviet jet bombers is highly likely to be the last serious act of the Cuban drama. To be sure, Fidel Castro is still refusing to permit the verification by inspection called for under the Khrushchev-Kennedy agreement. But there is a great deal to be said for continuing to use our own means of inspecting Cuba, without being bound by the "no invasion" pledge which we should have to give if the Khrushchev-Kennedy agreement were carried out in full. There is small likelihood, therefore, that the U.S. will resort to sanctions, in order to force Castro to accept inspection, thus, in turn, bringing the "no invasion" pledge automatically into force.

Dubious Contraptions

To be sure, the Kennedy administration's world opinion-watchers will not be content to let well enough alone. But there is little danger that the President will buy any of the dubious contraptions, supposedly guaranteeing to pacify the Caribbean, de-nuclearize the hemisphere, tame Castro, and work other miracles, which are now being promoted.

Hence, it is now in order to add up the score. The addition suggests that the Cuban crisis was one of those great watershed events that change everything, like the launching of the Marshall Plan, or the American response to the challenge in Korea.

Consider the following list:

First and foremost, the Kremlin estimate of the United States has been radically changed. Before the attempted trick in Cuba, it was very clear that the Kremlin was operating on the assumption that the U.S. would not stand up and be counted in a real crunch. The Cuban trick was intended, quite plainly, to copper-rivet this assumption.

Danger Reduced

Instead, the assumption itself was abruptly, alarmingly disproved. The necessary revisions in the Kremlin's calculation of risks by no means insure the safety of Berlin, for instance. But they most certainly reduce the danger at Berlin, and in secondary threatened areas as well, by a very wide and comforting margin.

This revision in the Kremlin's calculations of risks is far more important, in fact, than the supposed spur to the Kremlin to look for a victory somewhere else, in order to compensate for Cuba.

The most alarming feature of the whole world picture, pre-Cuba, was the mass of indications that the Soviet leaders thought they could kick the United States around with impunity. This primary cause for alarm has now been removed.

Second, Cuba has also changed its situation quite radically within the Communist bloc. While a cheap but decisive triumph over the West was still confidently hoped for, the hope itself acted as a tension-reducing safety valve in Moscow and elsewhere. The hoped-for-victory was undoubtedly counted upon to create great Soviet opportunities of many sorts, and these new opportunities, in turn, were expected to make all sorts of current problems easier to solve.

The effect of the removal of the tension-reducing safety valve is easy to see.

Most conspicuously, the Chinese Communist attacks on Nikita S. Khrushchev have taken on a shrillness and venom without past precedent. Unless there are political changes in Moscow or Peking, it begins to be difficult to see how the two leaders of the Communist bloc can avoid an open, final break. Too much that is unforgivable has now been said too loudly.

Massive Burden

Yet the increasing possibility of a Sino-Soviet break is only one effect of the safety valve's removal. When they look at their domestic economy, for instance, the Soviet leaders must now ask themselves whether they can carry the massive but always augmenting armaments burden for the very long pull — which is a very fundamental question indeed.

Third, it must be added, Cuba has also changed the Western Alliance. President Kennedy and his policy-makers, with exceptional adroitness, most carefully observed every possible form of politeness in their dealings with the other Western allies.

Yet the fact could not be concealed that in this crisis, clearly involving a risk of H-bomb war, the President made his decision alone, without prior consultation with anyone beyond his own policy-making circle.

Altered Relations

There was no other way to do the job. But the simple fact that the President acted alone, as he had to do, will inevitably and perhaps profoundly alter the Western nations' relations with one another.

The final result is not easy to predict, but it is certain that much wisdom will be needed for the unavoidable rethinking of the Western strategic design.

Fourth and finally, however, there is better reason for hoping that the American government will deal wisely with this matter—for Cuba has also changed the Kennedy administration itself.

The change is not easy to define. Maybe the best way to put it is to say that the Administration has developed much more self-confidence, a clearer sense of direction, and, above all, a clearer, more united, more easily identifiable political viewpoint.

This will help a lot in the time ahead, when the crowding problems of the Cuba-altered world have to be tackled by the U.S. policy-makers.

Tendrils of Scandal Have to Be Dug Up After the Trial

IN BRITAIN, only in cases of national scandal do they set up tribunals, majestic and omnicompetent benches of inquisition like that now forced to inquire into the circumstances of the case of John Vassall, the 38-year-old Admiralty clerk who was sent to gaol for 18 years for spying for Russia. And the scandal unearthed by this latest act in the tortuous Vassall story may touch many areas of British life.

Brevity Backfired

In the first place, the law. The very brevity and concision of English legal procedure has backfired in a matter of the highest political importance. It has been traditional for English lawyers to jeer at the prolixity of American inquiries, and at the laborious digressions which allowed the Alger Hiss trials, for instance, to drag on for years.

The Vassall case, hearing and trial, went rattling through to its verdict in under a week; even if Vassall had pleaded "Not Guilty", it could hardly have lasted a fortnight. Now it is for the American Bar to smile.

Blackmail

A spying case sends rootlets of blackmail and contagion far around it, and America's exhaustive Grand Jury procedures at least allow all these rootlets to be pulled up and examined, marring a few reputations but clearing many more.

The Vassall case involved matters of homosexuality and friendship in high places and ramified far through governing society. But the laconic nature of the trial means that the tendrils of scandal now have to be dug up after the verdict, in an atmosphere of public alarm and horror, and not by a prior routine procedure.

Secondly, the press. In the Commons debate which followed the announcement of the tribunal, the Labor MP, Mr. R. H. Crossman, charged Mr. Macmillan with organizing a rat-hunt against the press on the Der Spiegel model, rather than a security inquiry.

This was not an altogether unfair deduction from parts of the Prime Minister's speech: Mr. Macmillan insisted on the tribunal's duty to investigate slurs against the honor of members of the Government (at the same time making it absolutely clear that he personally believed in their innocence), and threatened obscurely to lead the House of Commons itself into action against any proven slanderers.

Under Pressure

Journalists—one wrote that the First Lord of the Admiralty, Lord Carrington, had known for 18 months that a spy was at work in the Admiralty before telling the Prime Minister, and another privately laid the charge that Mr. Thomas Galbraith, Vassall's boss, was planning to bolt with him to Russia—will be under pressure to reveal their sources of information and thus break the first (though unwritten) rule of press ethics.

And there is the political aspect. Everyone who saw him, agreed that Mr. Macmillan spoke in a frozen fury which cowed the House to silence, and that his anger was principally directed against Mr. George Brown.

Reputation Shielded

As deputy leader of the Labor Party, and adviser to the Daily Mirror group of newspapers, Mr. Brown forced the Government to publish letters from Galbraith to Vassall and headed the clamor which insisted that official reputations were being shielded behind the Vassall verdict.

That remark of Mr. Macmillan's about action by the House of Commons against authors of slander rang with seventeenth-century echoes of arraignment before the Bar of the House. But neither Mr. Brown nor his friends seemed to be frightened.

From Farce to a Savagely Compassionate Treatment

Emery

CONSIDERING the wars there have been in the last hundred years, and the warehouses full of novels that have been written during the same period, it is not surprising that an enormous number of the novelists have chosen to write about war. Novelists, after all, can hardly be expected to pass up the opportunity of making literary capital out of what is, however you look at it, a profound experience. What is interesting, though, is to see the mess that most of [illegible] that experience in fictional form.

The chief fault, I think, springs from too close an involvement with what they were writing about: the vast majority are thinly-disguised autobiography, as one discovers quickly enough in these days when few books are published without some sort of life history of the author on the back of the dust-jacket.

The writer gets so wrapped up in self-dramatization that he forgets about the artistic purpose of the novel, and what he produces, nine times out of ten, is that kind of mock-modest, crypto-heroic fantasy that will be familiar to anyone who has ever attended a veterans' reunion.

But there have been some good ones. Perhaps the best was the novel that Tolstoy started to write a century ago next year, and worked at for six years before he published it. "War and Peace" seems to me to be written with that mixture of candor, sympathy and clinical detachment which are needed if a novelist is to produce something more than just another book.

By using the experience he gained in the Crimean War Tolstoy was able to give a "true" picture not only of the Napoleonic War, but of all wars ever since. Who since Tolstoy has equalled his remarkable description of what it feels like to be under fire for the first time, in the passage that deals with Nicholas Rostov's initiation into war?

To be honest, I only know of one writer before Tolstoy who could stand with him on an equal footing as a war [illegible] opening chapters of "La Chartreuse de Parme," which follow the fortunes of Fabrice at the battle of Waterloo and during the subsequent pursuit. Hemingway's description of the 1917 retreat after Caporetto in "A Farewell to Arms" contains more than just an echo of Stendhal (and if you are interested in literary coincidences read Stendhal's "Armance" after you have just put down "The Sun Also Rises")—and gains enormously from the fact that Hemingway was in Chicago when the rout was taking place in Italy.

The disenchantment of the fighting soldier is vividly caught by Henri Barbusse and C. E. Montague; the inexorable destructiveness in terms of human life and happiness of the war machine is memorably treated by Arnold Zweig in "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," a novel which never seems to have received the attention it deserves.

War is Hell, says Mr. Mailer and the army of tightlipped, knowing disciples of Hemingway who have written Second World War novels; War is Ridiculous, said Jaroslav Hasek's "Good Soldier Schweik"; War can be Funny, said Mr. Evelyn Waugh (but we really should have fought the Russians, he added as an afterthought).

What I have been looking for in the torrent of novels that the peace let loose on us is a book that showed that War is Hell, and Funny, and Ridiculous, and A Waste of Time, and Unprofitable to any but Profiteers, and A Crime Against Humanity — all at the same time. And I think I have found it.

It's called "Catch 22," and it was written by a 39-year-old American called Joseph Heller. It's long — about 175,000 words at a guess — and Heller has attempted something that couldn't conceivably be sustained at such enormous length, but it is seventy-five per cent successful, which carries it a long way beyond the work of writers who have aimed at and hit a much less distant target.

It is unique, so there is not much point in trying to compare it with other books, but there are elements in it that will remind you of other writers from time to time. The savagery of the irony brings Celine and Miller to mind, and their knockabout comic treatment of tragic matters is echoed from time to time; some of the backchat recalls the humour of S. J. Perelman, and there is occasionally a hint of the surrealist fancy of Perelman's brother-in-law who wrote under the name of Nathanael West; there are long sequences that owe something to the Nighttown episode in Joyce's "Ulysses."

But Heller has blended all these elements together and added a great deal that is entirely his own. Perhaps the most impressive thing about the book is the confident way in which Heller will turn from tearaway farce to a savagely compassionate treatment of a tragic episode and back again to his Hellzapoppin' vein without disturbing the unity of the book.

To say that the book is about a group of B-25 bomber pilots based on an island in the Tyrrhenian Sea is a ridiculously jejune description of a work of universal application. What Heller says of his aviators is to a great extent true of all men.

The briefing of Colonel Cathcart's group for an attack on an Italian mountain village will remind a good many infantry officers of similar farces at O Group sessions. The idea is to destroy the village in order to block the road. "What the hell difference will it make?" asks Dunbar, one of the pilots. "It will only take them a couple of days to clear it."

The staff officer says: "Well it apparently makes some difference to Headquarters. I suppose that's why they ordered the mission."

Dunbar thinks of the villagers. "They'll pour out into the streets to wave when they see our planes coming, all the children and dogs and old people. Why can't we leave them alone?"

A very good question.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

By SILENUS

Ho Ho Ho

This column notes with pleasure the action taken recently by a couple of right minded mothers with regard to Merry Yule promotion. While merchants are entitled under a free enterprise system (as it is called) to entice the unwary into purchasing, the public is equally entitled to request that they exercise a certain decent restraint in so doing.

SILENUS

But that is all by the way. The trend toward an early awareness of Christmas has gone beyond mere commerce, and seems to be invading the hallowed precincts wherein our Parliament deliberates. This column hopes it is wrong in this, but certain straws in the wind cannot be disregarded.

Gentle readers who are familiar with the conventional expression used by the Hansard reporters to indicate such noises as defy shorthand . . . the time honored "Oh, Oh", will be startled to know that on November 13 a new departure among the French language reporters became evident.

There, on page 1598, appears the unprecedented entry "Des Voix: "Ho Ho!" If that doesn't look like Yule descending on the House of Commons, one wonders what is going on.

On the next page, the reporter, as if uncertain of his propriety, has Des Voix giving vent to Ha Ha!; but a few lines lower down, in response to a sally at the expense of Mr. Pickersgill, he reverts to Ho Ho. No significance, however, can properly be given to the individuals involved. One rates Ha, the other Ho.

What is really startling is that the English translation renders each of these curiosities as Oh Oh.

Far be it from me to suggest that the English language is being discriminated against in Parliament; that the members from Quebec are being given two symbols for their laughter as against the one allowed their English speaking colleagues. Such a thought, if acted upon by the proper authorities, might eventually destroy the nice balance of bilingualism which one and all would like to see maintained.

The only other possibility is that jolly old Santa and his elves (or whatever they are supposed to be) has taken over in the House of Commons, and that all is well with the trade balance at last.

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA — The South African Embassy in Ottawa will be falling down on the job if it doesn't cable home the comments of Harold Winch, MP, on his return from five weeks in Nigeria.

"The blacks' sole objective is to dominate the world," Winch says.

With a little journalistic licence, that should render down into this headline from Cape Town to Rhodesia:

"Blacks Seek to Dominate World"—Canadian MP.

The veteran Vancouver socialist, whose political career dates from the time he was clobbered over the head by police truncheons in the Winnipeg General Strike of 1919, is entitled to his opinion as to what "the blacks" are up to. But surely it is the duty of an MP to speak and exercise the other powers of his office in a responsible way. Winch's comment, based on a mere nodding acquaintance with the vast Dark Continent, is likely to do little except encourage the white racists, exacerbate white-black relations, and undermine efforts of the Department of External Affairs to build a bridge of understanding and sympathy between Canada and the newly-emergent nations of Africa.

* * *

This is not to say that Winch and all the rest of us should not face up to the facts about Africa and the "winds of change" blowing there. Winch reports that "the blacks' first goal is Pan-Africanism"—but he makes it an accusation, as if Pan-Africanism were a more heinous crime against humanity than Pan-Americanism. Or even pro-Canadianism.

The African members of the Commonwealth are "bitterly against" British membership in the European Common Market. They have gained their independence, but still "they won't let Mother go out on her own," he said.

"Like the Canadian government," I commented. And he had the honesty to admit the analogy.

* * *

Winch, who came home from a trip to the Orient last year with warnings of a yellow economic peril facing the white world because of low production costs of Asian industry, says that Asiatic and African nations "very definitely all take the same line" in their designs against white global supremacy.

Is what Winch says true? I asked Social Credit MP H. A. Olson of Medicine Hat, who also attended the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association meeting in Nigeria.

"I wouldn't go that far," said Olson, "although I've heard too much of this plea for equality from the blacks. They don't want equality—they want Africa for blacks only."

Again a Canadian analogy came to my mind: Mr. Diefenbaker's economic nationalism is essentially Canada-for-Canadians. Premier Lesage's economic provincialism is essentially Quebec-for-Quebecers. It is simply our good fortune on this continent that Americans and Canadians, Ontarians and Quebeckers, are all the same color.

"The blacks are getting rid of the whites far faster than they should for their own good," opined Olson.

We've been having a similar experience, thanks to the government Mr. Olson supports. It got rid of too many U.S. investment dollars too fast for Canada's good, by creating a chill in the Canadian investment climate between 1957 and last spring.

We have perhaps more in common with Nkrumah and Kenyatta than we thought.

HAMILTON UNDER FIRE

Grain Sale Plan Hit in Commons

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP)—A speech Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton made to the Saskatchewan wheat pool two weeks ago has turned out to be dynamite with a delayed fuse.

The dynamite went "Bang!" Friday in the Commons as Opposition Leader Pearson and NDP Leader T. C. Douglas led a harsh attack on the minister's proposals for bolstering grain exports.

Mr. Hamilton spiritedly defended his action, drawing an assist from Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson who saw merit in the minister's suggestions.

Mr. Hamilton told a meeting of the Saskatchewan wheat pool at Regina Nov. 9 that Prairie farmers collectively might consider setting aside a certain percentage of their wheat income each year to underwrite future credit sales abroad.

He also suggested that the three Prairie pools and the United Grain Growers consider forming a grain sales organization to act as marketing agent for the Canadian wheat board.

The speech dominated Commons debate Friday on 1962-63 spending estimates of the agriculture department.

Mr. Pearson kindled the eruption when he called the risk-sharing idea a "ridiculous procedure." He accused the government of trying to back down on its pledge to take the full risk of wheat credit extended to Communist China.

Mr. Douglas said the two proposals have "dangerous undertones and dangerous implications for the continued operation of the wheat board and for the maintenance of an orderly marketing system in the handling of wheat."

He said farm leaders in Western Canada have expressed concern and opposition to the plan.

"You had better stick to medical care," a government supporter shouted to the NDP leader at one point in his address. Mr. Douglas was premier of Saskatchewan when that province's medicare plan was formulated.

"I will tell my honorable friend who made that interjection that any Tory party representative who goes out through Western Canada and tries to sell these two proposals to the Prairie farmer will need psychiatric care, never mind medical care," retorted Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Hamilton, who appeared to be more amused than perturbed by the vehemence of the assault on his proposals, said that in Regina he was merely calling farmers' attention to the fact "that new opportunities exist."

The wheat pools were studying his ideas, which was all he asked. And he intended to go on making suggestions to the rank and file of farm organizations, rather than to their leaders.

"I put my case before the people because I have learned to trust the people and not the politicians," said the agriculture minister.

Mr. Thompson, endorsing the suggestion for producer participation in finding markets, said:

"The wider you can spread the responsibility of trying to ease our problem of distribution, the better."

Discrimination Ban On Housing in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A path-breaking, highly controversial presidential order outlawing discrimination in federally assisted housing has gone into effect.

President Kennedy announced this week that he had signed the long-awaited order.

High administration officials said it is aimed primarily at ending discrimination in the sale and renting of newly built houses and apartments, especially in projects. The order applies only to housing built with federal assistance—loans, grants and mortgage insurance or guaranty.

The ban on discrimination will not be applied to individual home owners selling their houses, top officials said. Nor does it affect housing financed with "conventional" private loans not backed by the government.

EXPECTED TO COMPLETE VENUS MISSION

Mariner Heats Up, Loses Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mariner, the U.S. vehicle now heading for a mid-December rendezvous with Venus, has lost power from one solar panel and is beset with mounting temperatures, the U.S. Space Agency reported Friday.

In spite of this the bug-shaped space traveller, holder of the world record for long-distance radio communications — almost 18,000,000 miles—is expected to complete its mission.

That mission is to pass within about 20,000 miles of the earth's sister planet, and get a closer look—through instrument readings—of the Venutian surface, obscured to earth observers by clouds.

On Nov. 15, the space probe lost power from one of two solar panels for the second time in its three-month flight. The first time was Oct. 31. The disabled panel suddenly snapped back to life Nov. 7.

Temperatures in the space probe are getting higher, the closer the probe gets to both the sun and Venus. They now range from 200 degrees fahrenheit on the sunward face of the solar panels to 100 degrees on the shady side.

Canada Urges UN Probe Of Soviet Colonialism

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Canada has proposed that the United Nations throw a searchlight on the "areas of darkness" under Soviet rule in pursuing its study of colonialism.

Canadian delegate Heath Macquarrie told the UN General Assembly Friday the Soviet Union is trying to conceal its own "evil practices" of imperialism by heaping criticism on the "sins" of Western colonial powers.

Forty-four countries, with a total population of more than 840,000,000, have won independence since 1939, said Macquarrie, parliamentary assistant to External Affairs Minister Green.

"But what about the position of subject peoples within the Soviet empire? Assessments may vary but there are about 96,000,000 people under Soviet rule who have never been permitted to exercise the right of self-determination which the U.S.S.R. so loudly proclaims for others."

The wording of Macquarrie's speech—terming Soviet colonialism a "record of tyranny"—was as sharp as has been heard here against Russian colonial policy and it caused Britain's Sir Patrick Dean to cross the assembly floor to extend congratulations. It is expected Dean will speak in much the same vein when he addresses the assembly Monday.

RUSSIANS WALK OUT

Three members of the Soviet delegation wandered away from their seats during Macquarrie's speech, leaving two junior diplomats to hold the fort. A Soviet press officer dismissed the Canadian position as "nonsense." White Russia's V. S. Smirnov, who addressed the assembly later, said the Canadian address showed colonial "backs are to the wall."

Macquarrie noted that Canada supported the declaration colonialism approved by the assembly in 1960 and the committee of 17 established last year to hold debates on how the declaration was being effected.

The Canadian delegate's point was that the Soviet Union was using the committee as a launching place for attacks on the West. He said:

"When the United Nations is examining situations in many other areas of the world, why should it not turn its attention at some stage to the areas of darkness under Soviet rule? This assembly has no cause to be selective in its denunciation of oppression."

Panicky Official Fired

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Assam state government announced Friday it has fired K. Das, a deputy commissioner for Tezpur, on charges of deserting this post during the panicky exodus before onrushing Communist Chinese forces in midweek.

Prime Minister Nehru's national government warned that any official failing to carry out his duties during the emergency caused by the Chinese invasion would be severely dealt with.

Tezpur, military headquarters town on the north bank of the Brahmaputra River, meanwhile was reported nearly back to normal as a result of the Chinese-proclaimed cease-fire.

UN May Aid Hong Kong Refugees

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United Nations social welfare committee Friday night adopted a seven-nation resolution urging increased help for 1,000,000 refugees who have fled from Red China to Hong Kong.

The vote was 41-19 with 32 abstentions. Eighteen countries were absent. Soviet efforts to dilute the resolution by making it apply to all refugees were defeated. But its fate is doubtful in the General Assembly, where a two-thirds majority is needed for approval.

The resolution says emergency and long-term assistance is needed and calls for the United Nations, its agencies and voluntary organizations to increase their financial and other aid.

Five African countries, Guatemala and Paraguay sponsored the resolution.

Second Sponsor Agrees

OTTAWA (CP)—CBC President Alphonse Ouimet announced Friday that a second sponsor—the Imperial Tobacco Company Limited of Canada—has accepted the corporation's proposal for courtesy credits for the Dec. 1 CBC Grey Cup telecast.

300 NEGROES ARRESTED IN PAARL

PAARL, Africa (UPI)—More than 300 Africans were arrested Friday in a police raid against suspects in the riot which killed eight persons Thursday.

Three hundred policemen, armed with sub-machine-guns and rifles, made the arrests of the 302 Africans. Armed police patrolled the streets and the town's only gunsmith reported he was sold out of all firearms.

A supreme court judge is investigating the riot, in which Africans killed two Europeans during a march on a police station.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By HUGH MacLENNAN

Two weeks ago I wrote of the Civil War sections of Walt Whitman's Specimen Days: his book is so rich, and there is so much more in it than the war, that I am going to stay with it longer. Paraphrasing Wordsworth or Milton, I feel like saying: "Walt, thou should'st be living in this hour; America has need of thee." So have we all, in this clever, clever time.

"And so," wrote Walt, "good-bye to the war. The real war will never get into the books."

So he found himself a new job in the Indian section of the department of the interior, probably hoping that his duties would enable him to do what he liked best—travel into the American wilderness until he had seen every part of it.

He was promptly fired by a boss who had read his poetry and decided it was immoral.

He got another job in the attorney-general's office, and his diary ceases until 1873. By that time he had become partially paralyzed by a stroke, but instead of making him an invalid, the stroke sent him back to nature for healing.

"Nature marches in procession, in sections, like the corps of an army"—and Whitman's diary becomes a record of the seasons. He writes of bees, of the sundown perfume, of quail notes and the song of the hermit thrush, of trees and shores in winter, of lying naked in the spring sun, of happiness. He writes of New York:

"Tall-topped, ship-hemmed, modern, American, yet strangely Oriental, V-shaped Manhattan . . . as I see it under a miracle of limpid sky, delicious light of heaven above, and June haze below."

Discordant Note on Pioneer Women

Soon he was on a train bound for Missouri and the far west, and he revelled in it. For Whitman (nature he loved, and after nature, art) was a real child of his people, and a new machine or gadget never failed to delight him.

Of course, the modern American sleeping car was a revelation to the poet. He went in one all the way through Missouri and Kansas to the infant city of Denver, and there his assessment of American pioneer women strikes a note somewhat discordant with their legend:

"They have the look of 'gentility' in face, manner and action; but they do NOT have, either in physique or the mentality appropriate to them, any high native originality of spirit or body (as the men certainly have.) They are 'intellectual' and fashionable, but dyspeptic-looking and generally doll-like; their ambition is generally to copy their eastern sisters."

You were fortunate, Walt, not to have written those sentences in the public prints!

He returned home, and soon was enjoying Beethoven's chamber music. Then, in the spring of 1880, he decided to visit Niagara Falls, and having got there, he crossed over into Canada, stayed with the doctor in charge of the lunatic asylum in London, Ontario, and immediately discovered a new enthusiasm:

"I should say that the young native population of Canada was growing up, forming a hardy, democratic, intelligent, radically sound, and just as American, INDIVIDUALISTIC race as the average best specimens among us. And among us, too, I please myself by considering that this element, although it may not be in the majority, promises to be the leaven which eventually will leaven the whole lump."

'The Great Haughty, Silent Capes'

It did not take Whitman long to encounter a chronic situation:

"It is said that a large proportion of the merchants of Canada are in favor of such a step (i.e., a common market with the United States.) Those persons who are opposed to the measure believe it would increase the material welfare of the country, but it would loosen the bonds between England and Canada: and this sentiment overrides the desire for commercial prosperity."

Soon after this he arrived in Quebec, the enduring reason why Canada cannot voluntarily become part of the United States, and went down the St. Lawrence to the Saguenay. Then Capes Eternity and Trinity met their first poet:

"But the great, haughty, silent capes: I doubt if any crack points, or hills, or historic places of note, or anything of the kind anywhere in the world, outvies these objects. They are very simple, they do not startle . . . but they linger in one's memory forever . . . They are as distinct in form as a perfect physical man or a perfect physical woman.

"Cape Eternity is bare, rising, as just said, sheer out of water, rugged and grim (yet with an indescribable beauty) nearly two thousand feet high. Trinity Rock, even a little higher, also rising flush, top-rounded like a great head with a close-cut verdure of hair . . . If Europe or Asia had them, we should certainly hear of them in all sorts of sent back poems . . . a dozen times a year through our papers and magazines."

The long record of a great life finally ends, ten years before Whitman's actual physical death, with a succinct statement of the philosophy which had inspired it. Answering Marcus Aurelius' question, "What is virtue?" Walt says:

"Only a living and enthusiastic sympathy with nature. Perhaps, indeed, all the efforts of poets, founders, religions, literatures of all ages, have been and ever will be . . . essentially the same—to bring people back from their persistent strayings and sickly abstractions, to the costless average, divine, original concrete.'

Coincidence Mars Ideological Novel

THE UPROOTED, by Lubor Zink. Longmans Canada Limited, Toronto, $5.50, 343pp.

Reviewed by D. W. Halliwell

Lubor Zink, native of Czechoslovakia but now a Canadian newspaperman, has chosen for his first novel in English (he is the author of four books of poetry and two novels in Czech, and of a collection of editorial writings in English) a rather interesting combination of polemic and melodrama.

Set in an unidentified Central European country (almost certainly Czechoslovakia) and in a refugee camp across the border in West Germany, the story concerns the underground, anti-Communist activities of a people who, however weak they may seem, refuse to knuckle under completely to a despotic and often sadistic minority who govern them.

Across the border, the focus is on conditions in the refugee camp, an island of misery and crushed hopes on the "free" side of the Iron Curtain, and on the activities of an underground worker who has fled his homeland with high hopes of being able to carry on an effective sabotage and espionage campaign, only to find himself misunderstood and frustrated by American occupation forces.

The chapters laid in Communist territory are the best, for the characters come alive to a far greater extent than do the shadowy American officers and their sex-starved wives. There is genuine excitement in much of the action, somewhat spoiled by overuse of coincidence (which is so much in evidence that the author frequently has his characters remark on it).

But the most jarring feature of the book is the lack of success which Mr. Zink has had in incorporating his philsophical discussions of communism and democracy and capitalism smoothly into the story.

The times and the places when these speeches occur are wrong; perhaps their existence at all is wrong, and the author's forthright examination of the weaknesses of the conflicting ideologies might better have been left less explicit.

ART IN REVIEW

Interesting Comparisons In Gallery Century Show

By SPECIAL REVIEWER

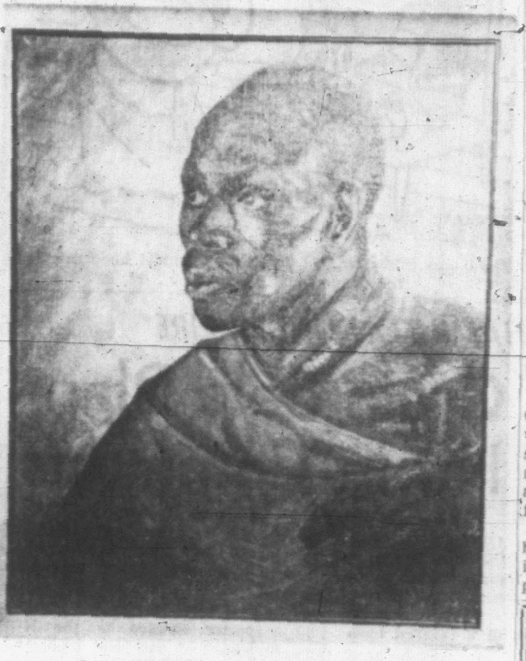
Who was Francis M. Rowley?

Who was Miss T. Wilde?

Little or nothing seems to have been set down in black and white about these two early Victoria painters, although doubtless some of the answers are held in the memories of residents still living. In any case, Mr. Rowley's undated portrait of "Sir James Douglas" and Miss Wilde's large oil of a "Young Girl With a Cat," dated 1911, have sufficient painterly qualities to make these questions worthwhile.

Both paintings are among the most interesting of the early works in the Art Gallery's current Centennial exhibition entitled "100 Years of the Arts in Victoria."

As its title implies, the show is a survey of the changing forms of painting and sculpture in this city over the past century. While a good number of present-day artists are included, its main interest inevitably lies in those decades before the 1940s with whose art most of us are only slightly familiar.



OIL STUDY OF PAUL ROBESON
By Ina D. D. Uhthoff

Short Span

The show begins with two thoroughly delightful works, each having a certain accomplishment but also the charm of naivete. These are E. M. Richardson's view over the harbor of Victoria in the early 60s and Herman Tiedmann's "Bluff Above Murderer's Bar." Tiedmann, you will recall, was the architect who designed the first legislative building, colloquially known as "The Birdcages."

How short the span of our cultural life on this island has been, historically speaking, is attested by the fact that Mower Martin's "In The Pemberton Woods" was painted in 1898 and was donated to the gallery by Mr. Arthur Crease who sat by the artist as he painted it and who, happily, is still amongst us.

Almost next to it hangs Sophie Deane-Drummond's oil with the same title, a substantial and very solidly painted work.

Those who have earned the title of "Victoria watchers," that is to say who observe and sometimes deplore the changes of the city's appearance as it alters from decade to decade, will be intrigued by Lady Sarah Crease's watercolor of the 1860s looking out toward Mount Baker from what is now the area of Cadboro Bay Road, and Thomas Bamford's pastoral scene of what is now the corner of Quebec and Menzies Streets.

Five Decades

That Victoria's climate preserves and enriches its inhabitants as they move from one decade to the next is a fact attested by a brace of comparisons which the show makes possible. Firstly, there is Miss Maude Lettice's 1904 watercolor of the Olympics, which is contrasted with a handsome tree study done by this artist only last year. Then there is Will Menelaws' portrait of his wife dating from about 1913, which may be contrasted with his self-portrait in an adjoining gallery which the artist completed this year.

The 1920s are ably represented by Mary Riter Hamilton's juicily painted "At the Window." The 1930s are sparsely but strongly represented. There is an Emily Carr with forms almost sculpturally modelled, an interesting Max Maynard landscape showing Group of Seven influences, and a quite powerful portrait of Paul Robeson by Ina Uhthoff.

From the 1940s onward virtually all the artists we encounter are fortunately familiar to us from year to year in the gallery's Jury shows and, while space does not permit a proper coverage of their work here, the occasion should not be allowed to pass without mention of the expert handling of oil paint in Allan Edwards' large portrait, and the extremely sensitive yet at the same time exceptionally strong modelling of a Negro's head by a relative newcomer to the city, Eryl Cianci.

He's Tall in the Saddle Spurs Orchestra Onward

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

OTTO-WERNER MUELLER
. . . challenges orchestra.

One might describe Otto-Werner Mueller as the conductor with the built-in podium.

The ordinary piece of wooden platforming most conductors use when leading an orchestra is not needed by the young (36) German-Canadian. His height of 6'7½" allows him to tower above his musicians naturally.

This should also give him considerable advantage when he is conducting opera—which he does frequently—from a theatre's orchestra pit. Hazard in catching the beat from this commanding figure, even out of the corner of an eye, should not exist.

Mr. Mueller is paying his first visit to Victoria although he knows Vancouver well, having conducted opera there on several occasions.

He is here to guest-conduct the Victoria Symphony in three weekend concerts—the first was performed in Duncan Friday night.

Rehearsing during the week, he has molded the orchestra's performance of two symphonies (Beethoven's Second and Brahms' First) into his personal and vivid concept of these great works.

Sometimes he has dug in the spurs and cracked the whip, but the total effect, according to individual musicians, has been to inspire and challenge.

Before he returns to Montreal, where a wife and three sons wait at home, Mr. Mueller will lend his expert knowledge of operatic conducting to the task of shaping the orchestra's forthcoming performance of "La Boheme" with the Canadian Opera Company.

Choir, Dancers Combine In Christmas Fantasy

VERA BARCLAY

BEBE EVERSFIELD

A somewhat rare combination of arts will be used to create an original Christmas show, Dec. 5, when Victoria Musical Art Society presents "Nicole: or The Christmas Gift," at Oak Bay Junior High School.

A choral-dance fantasy, the story and music have been composed and arranged by Dr. C. L. Lambertson, a member of Victoria College faculty.

Dr. Lambertson has had considerable success in the field of musical composition and is particularly interested in writing for the stage.

Carl Hare, also of the College faculty, a graduate of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art and a lecturer on the history and art of the theatre, will direct the performers who will be members of the Vera Barclay Studio Choirs and Bebe Eversfield's Victoria School of Theatrical Arts.

An eight-piece orchestra is rehearsing the score under direction of Capt. James M. Gayfer.

Dr. Lambertson has set his story in an English town-square on a Christmas Eve in the mid-19th century. Nicole, a blind girl, is selling holly and mistletoe while carolers sing "The First Christmas Morn."

A group of merry skaters gather around a chestnut-seller's brazier to frolic and warm themselves.

As the story continues the audience is transported to a corner of heaven where an angel chorus is heard and other characters—Gabriel, the Dusky Angel and the Happiest Angel—are introduced.

In the final scene the Lord's gift is bestowed upon Nicole and all is happiness as the dancers portray a spirited snowball fight, and shoppers hurrying home; Nicole and the Chestnut Seller dance in duo and the Happiest Angel performs an elated solo.

The curtains close as carolers and angels join their voices in a reprise of "The First Christmas Morn."

MESSIAH PERFORMANCE

Traditional performance of Handel's "Messiah" takes place this year in Christ Church Cathedral, Monday, Dec. 17.

Victoria Amateur Movie Club will hold a meeting at the Norway House, 1110 Hillside Ave., on Monday at 8 p.m.

NO THOUGHT FOR RICHES

Sharpening Actor's Tool Plummer's First Concern

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

CHRISTOPHER PLUMMER
. . . a hot property

NEW YORK (AP)—Christopher Plummer is probably considered to be some kind of an acting nut by his affluent peers in San Fernando Valley of California and Rockland County of New York.

In 1959, after a busy season in which he had co-starred in a Broadway play and was much in demand as a star of television specials, the 30-year-old actor hustled to his native Canada for a summer season with the Shakespearean Festival Foundation at Stratford, Ont.

And then, still a very hot property, he went to Britain for a year with the Royal Shakespearean Theatre at Stratford-Upon-Avon and in London. During this year's engagement his salary was £60 a week—about $168 a week before taxes, which is hardly pocket money for a Hollywood or New York-based star.

PLAYS CYRANO

After this two-year holiday with the classics, Plummer is back in the broad stream of American show business, however briefly. On Dec. 6—and in his own, home-grown beard but with a putty nose—he will play the title role in NBC's adaptation of Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac." After that he goes to France to play a leading role in a film, "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

"Certainly I was delighted to have a chance to go to England for a year," said Plummer with a forgivable degree of self-satisfaction. "I think that every actor should play London—and I was perfectly willing to give up anything to do it.

"What modern playwriting can compare with the classics?" he asked, gesturing toward Broadway with a half-filled wine glass over the luncheon table.

"I wish some could, but most available plays here are so dreary, so dull—so commercial. In this atmosphere there is little room for the young performer to develop himself or his craft. How can he with all this unthinking business of typing people and throwing them always into one role."

Plummer, at 33, may not be the richest actor in the world—a situation which obviously is not of any concern to him—but he may be one of the most far-sighted.

"I feel that the time I have spent in Canada and England is an investment for later on," he continued. "An actor's body is, of course, his only tool, and the way he sharpens it is to learn, to improve his voice, his movements.

"And once you learn all this, you are free, as a performer, to find your own truth."

Plummer, dedicated to his craft, believes that "acting styles change every five years."

"I saw Laurence Olivier in a Second World War version of Henry V and he made it a propaganda picture," Plummer said. "He played the character with a St. George-and-the-dragon slant. Now, to Olivier, that would seem naive—he'd play it in a psychological area, with emphasis on the wastrel playboy growing into his responsibilities as a leader of men."

FAVORS CLASSICS

Plummer, incidentally, sees nothing wrong with playing the classics in modern dress—"if the actors are good enough to handle the verse well."

He is not completely happy with the edited TV version of Cyrano. He played in the full, uncut version in Canada.

"If we had two whole hours we could do the whole play," he mourned. "But as it is, I shall fight to the last ditch to keep them from cutting up the death scene."

Plummer was born in Toronto and grew up in Montreal. His career started when he helped backstage in amateur high school shows.

VHS Students Prepare Fine Historical Drama

A worthwhile and ambitious project is being tackled by Victoria High School students for this winter's major dramatic production.

To be seen at the school next Friday and Saturday, the play is Gordon Daviot's "Richard of Bordeaux," first presented in London in 1932 by Sir John Gielgud.

Daviot's drama deals with the young Richard—aged 19—and represents him in a very different aspect to that provided by Shakespeare's "Richard II." Here we see a high-spirited boy developing into a fine man with a strong sense of responsibility who is in constant conflict with the arrogant lords of the council.

A large cast of 30 is headed by Timothy Vernon as Richard and Suzanne Derricks as Queen Anne. Sharing the direction are Jim Dulmage and Bert Farr. The latter directed "Teahouse of the August Moon" and the current "Waltz of the Toreadors" for Victoria Theatre Guild.

Star Show To Aid Charities

Variety and popularity are keynotes of the "Parade of Stars" concert to be presented by Cosmopolitan International Club of Victoria at the Royal Theatre, Dec. 2, at 2:30 in the afternoon.

Making its first public appearance will be the HMCS Naden Dance Band under Commissioned Officer T. Milner. Instrumental music of a different type will be provided by Fred Usher and his Hometowners.

Peggy Walton Packard, Anne Harris, Mimi Robertson, Rhonda Williams, John Bray and Robert Marconi are the vocal soloists and Carl and Lotti Hemeon will perform acts of magic.

Accompanist will be Al Smith and Walter Cownden will emcee the show.

Proceeds of the afternoon will be devoted to Cosmopolitan Club's "Toys for Tots" campaign and other charities.

Advance sale of tickets starts at Eaton's, Monday.

New Stamp Issue

ROME (AP) — The Italian government will issue two stamp series to commemorate the Roman Catholic ecumenical council at the Vatican. The stamps will go on sale Dec. 8, the day the first phase of the council ends.

Sues for Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Pamela Mason filed suit for divorce Friday against James Mason, charging the British actor with "habitual adultery" for three years with three women.

New Spot

A new night spot will open in downtown Victoria next Friday night.

Great Art or Great Luck . . . Italy Makes More Movies

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Will Rome take over as the world's film capital?

Actor Peter Falk, who has never made a movie there, thinks it could happen. Jack Palance, who has been making movies in Italy for five years, says never.

In back-to-back interviews on the same day, unknown to each other, the two actors gave diametrically opposed views on European film-making as compared with the Hollywood variety.

"Those Italian directors have something, mostly taste and imagination, that's lacking over here," said Falk. "We have it in a few directors like Frank Capra but not in the many."

Falk, who won a television Emmy, has been nominated for a movie Oscar twice. That is quite a record because he now is making only his third movie—"The Balcony."

"I'd go to Italy tomorrow to work for a Fellini or a de Sica," he said. "I'd leave today if Ingmar Bergman of Sweden beckoned.

"Those men are creative artists, not hacks. As an actor, I want to work with them."

LUCKY, SAYS JACK

Palance, admitting there have been some good Italian films, said they are mostly due to luck.

"I think the Italian directors are lousy," he said. "They concern themselves with such trivial things as making an actor kick his heels a certain way when walking. The actors themselves make the movies.

"There's no quality control or financial responsibility. Vittorio de Sica, who both acts and directs, is the best example of this. When he directs, of course, he is on the side of management, but when he acts he sits in his dressing room until the producer pays him his day's wages in advance.

"No money. No acting."

But one fact remains—Italy is making three times as many films as Hollywood, and lots of them are runaway American productions.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The design of the new Canadian 5c stamp—first denomination of the new series to make its appearance—is quite a breakaway from anything we have had previously. The simple design, showing the head of the Queen against a solid block of dark blue, is quite striking. It seems a pity, though, that the portrait could not have been a little more life-like, the general effect being rather stark and severe. The disembodied effect caused by the head being cut off sharply at the neck is also unpleasing.

The high values for the new Hong Kong set, featuring the Annigoni portrait of the Queen in natural colors, are extremely handsome. Such coloration is only possible when stamps are produced by photogravure. Canadian stamps are all printed by the line engraved process, which, when well done, perhaps gives more distinction to an issue. But it must be admitted that these new Hong Kong beauties are a glamorous lot!

★ ★ ★

New Zealand's 1962 Christmas stamp, mentioned before, has now come to hand, and proves to be one of the most beautiful stamps ever produced by the photogravure process. It is really a miniature, in full natural color, of Sassoferrato's famous painting, "Madonna in Prayer."

★ ★ ★

Uganda's new Independence issue of 12 values, from the 10c to the £1, all pictorials, range under four main headings: Agriculture, Commerce, Tourism, and Social Services. Four stamps in the first group show tobacco growing, coffee, cotton, and Ankole cattle.

The second category is illustrated by copper mining and the cement industry. Two stamps show beauty spots — Murchison Falls and the Ruwenzori Mts. (also known as the Mountains of the Moon).

These are the only snow-capped mountains in Equitorial Africa, attaining a height of nearly 17,000 ft. They are noted for their fantastic prehistoric vegetation.

Social Services are represented on the four remaining denominations — Mulago Hospital, Cathedral and Mosque, Makerere College, and the Parliament Buildings.

The architecture of all these buildings surprises one by its modernity — most unexpected in "Darkest Africa"!

LOOKS AT SPORTS

"How old are you, Jack?"

"Thirty-two," said Jack Lilja (say it Lill-ya). He combed and curried his hair which he wears short and straight up as if it had just been frightened.

"Fellow said you must be 38 at least."

"Give him a quarter, Jack," said Harry Blacker, a teammate of Lilja's. "You know you're 41."

"Cut it out, will ya?" said Lilja. "I'm 32. No more."

This was in the dressing room of Lethbridge Nationals, Canada's blue-bloods of basketball. They had just finished wrapping up Haida Chiefs of the Intercity set.

Earlier the same day (Thursday) they had teetered on the brink of adversity. Only a field goal by Blacker with 38 seconds to play enabled them to conquer Peter Mullins' slick University of B.C. Thunderbirds.

The Nationals were scattered around the room in various stages of burlesque adornment. Al West, like Lilja the other "old-age pensioner" of the team at 32, hadn't even bothered to start undressing.

But there was Lilja in brown slacks and green short-sleeved sport shirt looking fresher than an apple on teacher's desk.

Blazing Speed and Fabulous Hands

"Well," a visitor said, "at 32 or 38 or 41 you still cut up pretty good out there. Two games in a day don't seem to bother you."

"They shouldn't bother anybody if he's in shape," he said. Then looking at Blacker, just out of high school and cocky: "Isn't that right, Harry?"

Blacker stopped parting his locks and said: "You're right, old man." Then, in an aside: "He's something, isn't he?"

It was a rhetorical question, meant more as a statement. It pointed up Mr. Blacker's perception. Harry Lilja is something on a basketball court.

Skeptics of the game refer to it as a pantywaist pastime because bodily contact is regarded as something sordid and unclean. It is populated by elongated species of Douglas fir proportions whose brains sit so high in the clouds they are a menace to low-flying aircraft.

Lilja lacks the rugged physique and runaway glands of mates like Bob Inglis (6' 11") or Neil Dirom (6' 7"). At 5' 11" he resembles a pygmy among skyscrapers. But he has blazing speed, intuition and fabulous hands.

Against Haidas, long on enthusiasm but short on technique, Lilja was only superb. He'll dribble you crazy, fake you out of your drawers, thread the needle with lead passes. On defence he plays a harrassing game, the kind that gives forwards fits.

Time and again he and Logan Tait, Bill McDonald and Ken Galanchuk would fire-horse the ball over the centre and then be forced to slow down the pattern until their double post men, Inglis and Ken Larsen, lumbered into position with a great grinding of gears.

Neil Failed Rebound Class at WSU

Only when Dirom, the Duncan mountain who walks like a man, was on the floor did the Nationals' offence respond to the talents of their play-making guards.

Dirom's play caught the fancy of William Garner, a tired and retired basketball man himself. With academic elan fitting a teacher, Mons. Garner said: "When Dirom played for Duncan he was 6' 7" of nothing. Then he went to Washington State and wow!"

One thing they didn't teach him at WSU concerns the gathering of rebounds. Repeatedly he would aim, fire and retreat . . . as if, having shot, there was nothing more to do. It's not a weakness that can't be corrected. All he needs to get a move on is Lilja standing behind him with a long hatpin when he lets go.

The Nationals are a good team, probably one of the best ever in this outpost of the Commonwealth. How they will fare against international competition depends on whether their strength can carry their weaknesses.

One thing is certain. In any eating competition their Kenneth Larsen can go with anybody. After the game, Mr. Larsen deposited his famined frame in a local teahouse and said, "I think I'll have a snack before bedtime."

His snack: Two orders of hotcakes, two orders of French toast, eggs and sausages, fruit juice, milk, tea, and a double order of toast.

Weaver Loses Touch So Kroll New Leader

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Ted Kroll pushed into the lead in the second round of the $35,000 Orlando Open Friday with a three-under-par 68.

Kroll's round gave him a 36-hole total of 137 and a one-stroke lead over the first-round pacesetter, Bert Weaver, and two tour regulars—Dow Finsterwald and Rex Baxter Jr.

Weaver, who broke the record for the 6,789-yard Rio Pinar course with an opening round of 65, went two over par for a 73 Friday and a 36-hole total of 138.

Finsterwald matched his opening round of 69. Baxter shot a 65 Friday.

Tied at 139 were Billy Farrell, who had a 72, Paul Bondeson, and big George Bayer, who both had 68s.

The field was cut to 82 players wit hscores of 148 or better. Among the casualties was defendingn champion Gay Brewer Jr.

What Price Ethics, Mr. Grant?

EDMONTON (CP) — Sports editor Hal Pawson of the Edmonton Journal says he's tired of watching coach Bud Grant of Winnipeg Blue Bombers take every advantage to bend Western Football Conference rules in order to win games.

Pawson criticized such previous Winnipeg actions as: wearing spikes instead of cleats on hard frozen fields; drawing the opposition deliberately offside, running a quick-kicker into the line so he'd have to be roughed; and eating up the last minute of a close game by having his team stay in the huddle too long as many times as necessary.

"Frankly, I think [illegible] has been unfair to Bud Grant, in that it keeps changing the rules so he can't cheat on them. It must tend to take away the man's initiative, but he keeps on bending them

Pawson adds, "ethics in sports may not be worth a plugged nickle . . . but they're still worth at least a dime to me."

He asked Edmonton sport fans to join him in sending a dime-a-name telegram to Syd Halter, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, urging him to use his power to discipline anyone who threatens the game's ethics

Signed by 450 fans, the wire was sent to Halter Friday night.

Tom Hits Stride With Buckaroos

(By the Canadian Press)

Tom McCarthy, who has lent spark to many line-ups in eight years as a hockey professional, fits right in with Portland Buckaroos.

He scores often, takes a good check and hands one back, features typical of the Bucks this year in the Western Hockey League.

Friday night McCarthy and Portland used all three abilities in a bone-jarring 8-5 victory over Edmonton Flyers. In seven crucial minutes of the second period McCarthy scored twice, assisted on another goal, and took on some additional duties that earned him a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

Quieter games saw Vancouver Canucks defeat Los Angeles 3-2 to end the Blades' eight-game winning streak, and Seattle Totems beat the visiting Spokane Comets 5-2.

BUCKS STEP UP

Buckaroos used the victory to take a share of first place in the Southern Division with Los Angeles. First place Vancouver stayed four points ahead of Seattle in the Northern race.

McCarthy's rampage at Edmonton apparently was launched by a play that resulted in a possible concussion to teammate Gerry Goyer and a major penalty to Edmonton's Doug Messier.

During his next turn on the ice, McCarthy scored once on goaltender Dennis Riggin unassisted and again 17 seconds later on a pass from Orval Tessier.

He came back in another four minutes to set up Bill Saunders for the clincher. Finally, when Messier and Portland's Mike Donaldson started a scrap, McCarthy strode from the player's box to square things and drew the misconduct from referee Lloyd Gilmour.

10TH STRAIGHT

Other Portland scorers were Goyer, Ken Laufman, Doug Anderson, Arlo Goodwin and Tom McVie. Forbes Kennedy scored twice and Don Chiz, Bo Elik and Ray Kinasewich one apiece for the losers.

It was the 10th-straight defeat for the slumping Flyers.

In Los Angeles the clubs came out of the first period tied 1-1 on goals by Bob McCusker for Canucks and Bob Solinger for Blades. Then Jim Baird and Bob Kabel scored 11 seconds apart for Vancouver and Canucks held on, allowing Los Angeles a single goal by Bruce Carmichael in a third-period rally.

Attendance at Los Angeles was 12,745, a league record.

At Seattle the Totems got the jump on Spokane with first-period goals by Jim Powers, Gordon Sinclair and Don Chiupka. Each club scored one goal in the second and third periods, Max Mekilok and Gordie Stratton for Spokane and Bob Barlow and Bill MacFarland for Seattle.

Kidd, Pound Hit Gold In Seven-Medal Total

Swimmers Lead Canucks With Five Medal Efforts

By JACK SULLIVAN

PERTH, Australia (CP)—Bruce Kidd and Dick Pound won gold medals with record-breaking performances in track and swimming today at the British Empire Games as the Canadian athletes experienced one of their best days in post-war big-time international competition.

Canadians collected seven medals in track, swimming and fencing, but Australia continued to sweep far ahead of the pack, winning four golds for a total of six in two days.

Canada picked up a gold in track and field when Kidd scored a brilliant victory in the six-mile run and Pound added another gold by winning the men's 110-yard freestyle swim. Both broke the Games record.

Canada made its best showing in the swimming with a total of five medals.

The Canadians finished second in the women's 440-yard freestyle and the men's 880 freestyle relays Friday for a pair of silver medals.

Today, Mary Stewart, Vancouver, was awarded a bronze for her third-place finish behind Dawn Fraser of Australia in the women's 110 free style. Aldy Meinhardt, Vancouver, grabbed the bronze in the men's 110-yard butterfly.

Canadians also were awarded a bronze in the men's team foils.

Sprint Finish Made It Look Easy

While Kidd and Pound were the first Canadian gold medalists, there was disappointment that Harry Jerome didn't make it. He broke down in the 100-yard dash and finished last.

A dozen championships were decided today—six in track and field, four in swimming, one in fencing and one in lawn bowling.

Australia won the men's 3,000-metre steeplechase, high high jump and javelin. New Zealand snared the gold medal in the women's shot-put and Kenya took the men's 110 sprint.

Kidd, 19, with a magnificent burst of speed, raced away from the star-studded field—13 finished—over the last two laps to win by 50 yards.

The sociology student at the University of Toronto set a Games record of 28 minutes, 26.6 seconds. He beat out Dave Power, a veteran and the defending champion who held the previous Games mark of 28:47.8. Power came in second and John Merriman of Wales finished third.

Pound scored a major upset by beating Scotland's Bobby McGregor. His winning time of 55.9 equalled the Games record set Friday by McGregor in a preliminary heat.

Two more world records were broken in swimming, making it four for the Games so far.

Miss Fraser smashed her own world standard in winning the women's 110 free-style. She was clocked in 59.6 seconds, lowering her previous mark by 3-10 of a second. Teammate Robyn Thorn was second in 1:03.8 and Miss Stewart, a world record-holder in her own right, finished in 1:04.4.

English Lass Betters World Mark

Anita Lonsborough of England also cracked her world record in the 220-yard women's breaststroke, winning in 2:51.8. She whittled 4-10 of a second off the world mark she had pending after a meet in England last August.

In the men's 110-yard butterfly—on the Games program for the first time — Kevin Berry of Australia added another gold medal. His winning time was 59.6 seconds. Meinhardt was just behind the silver medalist, N. Hayes of Australia. Meinhardt was clocked in 1:02.6, Hayes 1:02.3.

The University of British Columbia eight was beaten by New Zealand in the first round of the rowing trials but will get a second chance in the repechage Monday.

The UBC fours without Cox entered the final Tuesday with an easy win over New Zealand, but the pairs bowed to England and will have to try again in the repechage.

Jerome, 22, co-holder of the world record in the 100, pulled up badly after 80 yards and finished sixth and last in 10 seconds flat.

Serafino Antao of Kenya won the gold medal in 9.5 seconds. Tommy Robinson, the one-man team from the Bahamas, took the second-place silver medal and Gary Holdsworth of Australia the third-place bronze. Robinson and Holdsworth both were clocked in 9.6.

Betty Cuthbert, Australia's golden girl of the 1956 Melbourne Olympics, was eliminated in the semi-finals of the women's 110; along with Yvonne Breeden of North Vancouver who pulled a leg muscle and finished sixth and last.

Canada's fencing chances were hurt during the day when Carl Schwende of Montreal injured his ankle as Canada beat New Zealand 6-2 in the first round of the men's foil team championship. Schwende fenced with his angle taped but obviously was below his best form.

Bill Crothers of Toronto, the North American 500 champion, won his 880 heat in 1:51.4, but was fourth in the semi-final with 1:52.3. Up with the leaders after the first lap, he was boxed in on the back stretch and forced to run out. He could not make up the necessary yardage and was eliminated.

Don Bertoia of Rossland, B.C., Canada's other 880 competitor, was knocked out in his first heat, finishing third in 1:53.3.

HOOP OFFICIAL SAYS:

Nats Should Play In Both Tourneys

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chairman Norm Gloag of the Vancouver Basketball Commission said Friday he thinks the Lethbridge Nationals should represent Canada at both the Pan-American and World Games.

He was commenting after the International Amateur Basketball Federation announced earlier Friday in Munich the world tournament will be staged in Rio de Janerio, May 10-25, immediately following the Panama games at Sao Paulo.

A member of the executive of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, Gloag said: "But, whether we send Lethbridge or two teams will be up to the CBA—but they'll have to make a decision right away."

Meanwhile, coach Bob Hamilton of Lethbridge said the Nationals will go to Manila to take part in an invitational tournament which begins Dec. 1.

The Manila tilt was originally scheduled as the world tournament and slated for December, but was cancelled when the Philippine government refused to issue visas to the Yugoslavians.

Said coach Hamilton: "We've raised the money to go to the World Games and we'll go wherever they are. We're leaving San Francisco Wednesday for the Philippines to get some international experience."

TROUNCE ALL-STARS

Nationals continued their four-game B.C. exhibition tour Friday night by outclassing a Vancouver all-star club 74-36.

Paced by Lance Stephens and Gordon Fester, Nationals embarrassed the Vancouver team as they fashioned a 34-19 lead by half time and steadily added to the margin through the second half.

Hamilton, however, was not impressed by the score.

"We were scrambly all the way through," he said. "We weren't shooting, we weren't passing and we just weren't thinking."

IN TV SQUABBLE

Courtesy Credits May Be Answer

OTTAWA (CP)—Two signed, two to go was the word from the CBC on its proposal to provide courtesy credits to commercial sponsors during CBC telecast of the Dec. 1 Grey Cup football game.

CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet announced Friday night that Imperial Tobacco Company Limited of Canada, which sponsors a quarter in Western Canadian telecasts of the game, has agreed to accept courtesy credits on CBC stations when the publicly-owned corporation carries the game broadcast originating with the CTV television network.

Nabob Foods Limited accepted the arrangement earlier in the week.

Meanwhile, talks continued Friday between CBC officials and representatives of Labatt's Brewery Limited and J. Walter Thompson Advertising agency.

Labatt's and British American Oil Company Limited are the two remaining telecast sponsors. Mr. Ouimet said the courtesy-credits offer still is open to James Lovick and Company, Toronto advertising agency which represents British American Oil.

The courtesy-credit arrangement would technically violate a Board of Broadcast Governors regulation requiring CBC to carry CTV's telecast of the game complete with CTV advertising content.

The CBC has said it intends to broadcast the game without the commercials. BBG Chairman Dr. Andrew Stewart has said the board will not allow its regulation to stand in the way of a satisfactory agreement among CBC, CTV and sponsors who hold the TV rights provided the result is national TV coverage of the game.

Kelso Named Horse of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Kelso, five-year-old gelding from Mrs. Richard C. Dupont Bohemia Stable, has been named Horse of the Year Friday for the third consecutive time by The Morning Telegraph.

Kelso drew 28 of the 32 votes. Mrs. Katherine Price's Carry Back received three and Rex Ellsworth's Prove It one.

Other divisional champions selected by the racing paper: Two-year-old colt, Never Bend; two-year-old filly, Smart Deb; three-year-old colt, Jaipur; three-year-old filly, Cicada.

RUSSIANS BLANK BAUER'S BOYS 6-0

FIFTH VICTORY IN SIX STARTS

Pants May Be Out of Style, But Teamwork Isn't

TORONTO (CP)—The touring Russian national hockey team, comprised of choppy skaters decked out in drab uniforms and outdated hockey pants, are teaching Canadians how to play their own game.

They may lack razzle-dazzle, but they know how to keep two hands on their sticks, play positional hockey and make use of the short pass.

Stressing teamwork rather than individual effort, the Russians have won five of six games on their current nine-game Canadian tour.

Their most recent victims were the Metro-British Columbia Junior All-Stars, trounced 6-0 here Friday night. They play Montreal Junior Canadiens at Montreal Sunday.

The Russians were magnificent but those who have followed them on their tour said it was far from being their best performance."

It was a good enough show, though, to earn the hard-working visitors a standing ovation from 11,725 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League. There was no rush to the exits at the final buzzer. The customers stood and clapped until the Russians left the ice.

The juniors, picked from the University of British Columbia team and the Metropolitan Toronto Junior A League, couldn't score a goal even though they had a third-period penalty shot.

"I knew it would be like this," said Rev. David Bauer of UBC, the juniors' coach.

"I watched them (the Russians) play at Kitchener and Hamilton and I knew what would happen tonight. They're better than I thought they were."

Father Bauer, a Roman Catholic priest who formerly coached Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, Dominion junior champions, will coach Canada's team for the 1964 Olympics. He said he feels a team that plays 30 games together, under international rules, could show well at the Olympics.

GIVES RUSSIANS CREDIT

Wren Blair, personnel director of Boston Bruins of the NHL, gave the Russians full credit.

"Did you see them?" said Blair. "Three strides and pass. I don't think I've ever seen a team control the puck better.

"People used to come and watch the Russians wondering if they could put up a fight against Canadian teams. Now they come to see if the Canadians can pull an upset."

In Friday night's game, the visitors would have piled up a higher score except for the brilliant play of goaltender Ken Broderick of UBC. He stopped two breakaways and made many other saves.

The Russians, wearing dull red uniforms with small numbers and short hockey pants like those worn in Canada 30 years ago, checked tenaciously. They scored two goals a period and kept spoiling the juniors' shots with poke-checks.

Valentin Kozin scored twice and other marksmen were Yevgeny Mayorov, his brother Boris, Vladimir Yursinov and Anatoly Firsov.

But Blair summed it up when he said: "No junior team will ever beat a good senior team and the Russians have an excellent senior team."

Father Bauer, who had only two practices with his team before the game, said the juniors played well but hadn't played together enough.

SUDS DRY OUT QUICKLY IN RECORD HEAT WAVE

PERTH, Australia (CP)—As the temperature soared to 103.7 degrees, the hottest November day in Perth in 49 years, the beer supply ran out during the track and field events at the British Empire Games today.

Tom Browne, field manager at Perry Lakes Stadium, said 2,000 gallons of beer were consumed during the races.

"We ran out twice and had to send emergency orders for more," Browne said.

Some 14,000 fans braved the heat to watch the Games today.

CURLING CUES

By MATT BALDWIN

Three-time Canadian champion

Most of my columns this year will deal with strategy and current curling problems.

But I think a bit of a refresher in the art of delivering a stone is in order, and we'll deal with that today by summarizing the essentials.

If you follow these points closely, you should be able to improve your game a great deal. All are important, but I think, most of all, the follow-through. Every good curler ends up with his arm fully extended toward the skip's broom after he has released the stone.

Let's review them from start to finish:

1. Clean the running surface of the stone carefully. The tiniest particle can affect the course of the stone and undo everything you have put into the business of properly delivering a rock.

2. Take your stance in the hack . . . be comfortable . . . your right arm extended parallel to your right leg which is pointed at the broom . . . the broom extended to the side with the straw just touching the ice . . . your shoulders squared . . . and relaxed.

3. Grip the handle properly . . . sufficient pressure so that you have the stone under control . . . for the in-turn, the handle is in a straight line pointing at the broom . . . for the out-turn, the handle is at 45 degrees to the skip's broom.

4. Your eyes are on the broom . . . concentrate on the weight and broom until you have both firmly fixed in your mind . . . never take your eyes off the broom again until completing your delivery.

5. Move the stone back and forth about an inch to get the feel . . . begin the backswing slowly . . . keep the right arm extended and draw the rock back on a line with the broom.

6. Come back down smoothly from the backswing, keeping the right arm extended. Push off with the right leg from the hack to supply the momentum for your slide.

7. All your weight is on your sliding left foot . . . the right leg is straight behind you acting as a rudder . . . aim the fully-extended right arm at the broom . . . let the stone flow smoothly off your fingers . . . and don't forget that all-important, yet frequently overlooked, follow-through.

Now, you may think that these points are elementary and that everyone follows them faithfully.

Well, they are elementary, but almost no one does all of them. This is one reason why there are lots of average curlers and considerably less really good ones.

Lion Stars Plan Visit To Boost Cup Battle

Willie "The Wisp" Fleming and Norm Fieldgate will be in Victoria next week.

The outstanding B.C. Lions tandem will be guest speakers at the wrapup meeting (for 1962) of the Victoria Touchdown Club.

Club chairman Ian Stewart says that Fleming, one of the finest halfbacks in Canadian football, and Fieldgate, a defensive giant, agreed late Friday to appear and help boost the Little Grey Cup game Nov. 30.

Two other Lions—end Pat Claridge and lineman Greg Findlay—will attend the third annual cup game, which will send Nanaimo Redmen against Winnipeg's West End Rams at Royal Athletic Park.

Claridge will present the Norm Fieldgate Trophy to members of the Glen Lake Trojans, bantam champions of Vancouver Island.

Venue and time of the Touchdown Club luncheon will be announced Tuesday.

DEFENDING men's singles championship won last year, Bob Hunt will be in action when annual Saanich Open badminton tournament gets under way Monday. Women's singles champ, Alison Daysmith, will also be defending title in week-long meet at Cordova Bay Community Hall.

Tough on Ears As Vics Win Fan Challenge

By ROBIN JEFFREY

Noise was the order of the evening Friday as Oak Bay and Victoria High tangled in one of the most ear-splitting high school basketball fiestas that Victoria has seen in many a year.

It all started when Vic High challenged the Oaks to a contest to see which school could muster the most supporters. When the rafters had stopped shaking, the Vics had won the fan contest and two of the night's three hoop games.

The challenge was the feature of the evening and the Vics won out by two-tenths of a spectator as they met the three-to-two handicap they had conceded the Oaks. The final count was 675 for Vic High and 407 for Oak Bay and since the Vic High gym seats only about 650, the fans were packed like sardines.

JUNIOR THRILLER

The Bays looked like they were out to take all the evening's honors as their supporters arrived early and saw their junior boys defeat the Vic High Teepees 21-18 in a thriller. Oak Bay pulled it out after trailing through the early part of the contest and being down 18-17 with little over a minute remaining.

Senior girls took the spotlight next and they provided the best entertainment of the night, Vic High winning 19-17 in the dying seconds. The Vic High club, the Tigers, led most of the way but looked like they might lose out as Oak Bay's Jane Bowering dropped two free throws to tie it up with 56 seconds left. But on the very next play the Tigers' Jeannie Scott stole the ball on a throw-in and rushed in for a lay-up basket to salt away the victory.

TOTEMS BREEZE

Finally came the game that everyone had been waiting for—the clash between Vic High Totems and Oak Bay's senior boys' team. And, like these "big games" often do, it turned out to be the only runaway of the evening. Totems jumped into a 15-7 lead at the quarter, stretched it to 27-12 at the half, and 34-20 at three-quarter time before leaning back to coast in with a 41-30 win. Big gun for the Vics was stubby guard Rick Ogmundson, who piled in 14 points.

While all the racket and confusion was going on at Vic High, saner and quieter minds prevailed at Claremont where the home team snatched an exciting 41-37 decision from St. Louis College.

Barry Maloney of College was high man with 16 points while versatile Russ Hall led Claremont with nine.

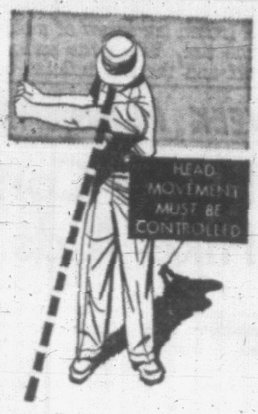
HEAD ROTATION

A B.C. reader writes:

"One pro told me to keep my head still throughout my swing, and another told me I could move it," he says. "Which is correct?"



HEAD MOVEMENT MUST BE CONTROLLED

Head movement must be controlled. The head should not be raised or lowered during the swing. It should be rotated, instead.

It is possible to rotate the head a bit as the rest of the body pivots back to the right in the backswing. As illustrated today, my nose is pointing to a spot behind the ball as I bring the club down in the downswing. This is because my head rotated, or turned a bit to the right in my backswing.

So, allow your head to rotate naturally as you swing. But make sure it doesn't move up or down, forward or backward.

Rioting Students Force Suspension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bloody riot at a Thanksgiving Day championship high school football game led Friday to suspension of future playoffs between inter-city league rivals in the U.S. capital.

At least 40 persons were injured in brawls Thursday among the fans following a 20-7 victory by St. John's, a predominantly white high school, over Eastern High School, whose student body is mostly Negro.

The game was played in the modernistic new District of Columbia Stadium before 50,033 persons, the largest crowd ever to see a sports event in Washington.

More than 200 policemen, including Canine Corps patrols, tried to check the fights which lasted almost an hour after the fans poured from the stadium's multi-level decks when the game was over.

At least three persons were hospitalized. Police said bottles, umbrellas and sticks were used by brawlers. The pushing and fighting spread to the parking lots and broke out at spots five blocks from the stadium.

Police reported about a dozen adults were arrested for disorderly conduct, and a number of teen-agers taken into custody.

The Washington Daily News called the outburst a "civic disgrace." It said whiskey bottles were used in the brawl and the whole thing was an "utter outrage." It added that the "only tangible fruit of the contest in recent years has been training in jungle warfare."

It was the fourth time in the last five years that fights have featured the inter-city football championship game. Officials agreed to suspend indefinitely further football or basketball playoffs.

Deputy police chief George Wallrodt blamed the rioting "on a bunch of frustrated, unruly, irresponsible kids."

Navy, Chiefs Lure Fans But Can't Shatter Tie

Navy and Pontiac Chiefs are proving once again that there's nothing like a tight race to lure fans away from television sets.

Tars and Chiefs couldn't make the battle for first place in the Esquimalt and District Amateur Hockey League any tighter. The result is that fan support at the Sports Centre could hardly be better.

Going into Friday night's doubleheader at the Sports Centre, Navy and Chiefs were deadlocked in first place. Each had won four games and they had battled to a 2-2 tie in their only meeting.

They tangled again Friday and about 1,500 fans came out to watch the fun. The big crowd didn't change a thing. Togetherness still prevailed as the clubs struggled to another 2-2 deadlock to remain jammed side by side in the top berth.

Navy appeared on the way to taking over the lead, grabbing a 2-0 lead on a first-period goal by Claude McKenzie and a power-play tally by Dave Davidson in the second.

With goalie Ron Griffis, performing in great style, Chiefs struck back in the first four minutes of the third session. Keith Lawrence got one goal back on a fine play and Art Green rattled a slap shot into the nets. That made it 2-2 and that's the way it stayed.

SOLDIERS WIN

Army and Victoria College Vikings were more decisive in the opening game. The Soldiers snapped a third-place tie with the students with a 3-2 triumph.

"Mitch" Mitchell got the winner at 17:45 of the final period while Fred Veysey of College was sitting out a penalty.

Women's New Tennis Event Follows Davis Cup Format

LONDON (AP) — An international tennis competition for women, similar in many respects to the Davis Cup for men, will be inaugurated next year, with the first matches at the Queen's Club in London.

The idea is to open up to other countries women's team rivalry which in the past has been confined to Wightman Cup matches between the United States and Britain.

Announcement of the new project was made by J. Eaton Griffiths, Britain's delegate to the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

He said the event, which probably will be called Ladies Cup, will not affect the Wightman Cup, which will continue as usual.

Under the plan, 16 countries will be permitted to send a team of three players. Two singles and one doubles will be played with the winner determined on a best-of-three match basis. The loser is automatically eliminated.

The competition will differ from the Davis Cup in that it will be condensed into a four-day period instead of being strung out over the entire year. Dates of the first tournament at Queen's Club are June 17-20, the week preceding Wimbledon.

Baysel Chief Changes Tune

Acquisition of Bailey Selburn Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. by Pacific Petroleums Ltd.—which seems to be a foregone conclusion—will place the last of the truly vigorous big independent Canadian oil companies under American control.

Perhaps the move is inevitable, dictated by irresistible economic factors.

Carl O. Nickle, an articulate Calgary oil industry spokesman and a Baysel director, argued earlier this week, prior to the formal Pacific offer Friday, that this was so.

The Baysel board, he said, would have to look at the offer from a hard-headed businessman's viewpoint and ignore the sentimental and nationalistic aspects.

This, however, wasn't quite the same position Mr. Nickle took a few months back when Shell Oil was taking steps toward acquiring Canadian oil companies.

At that time he seemed to be all in favor of a last-ditch, knock-down, drag-out battle to preserve Canadian Oil as a wholly-Canadian company.

Circumstances, as they say, alter cases.

Mr. Nickle says that the wedding of Baysel and Pacific will result in the emergence of Pacific as a sort of "super" Canadian independent with no majority stockholder.

But with Phillips Petroleum Company holding 40 per cent of Pacific stock, Western Natural Gas Co. Inc. 6 per cent and Sunray DX Oil Co. 5 per cent, there can be no illusions as to where the control lies.

If the Pacific offer of four Pacific common for each five Baysel A shares is accepted, Pacific will acquire oil reserves of about 35 million barrels and gas reserves of approximately 279 trillion cubic feet.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. is considering a $25,000,000 issue of junior financing in addition to the $145,000,000 bond issue now being negotiated mostly in the U.S.

President James W. Kerr said, that while no terms or conditions on the junior financing had been decided, the funds would be earmarked for reduction of bank loans and for capital construction next year.

Major portion of the bond issue proceeds will be used to purchase the northern Ontario section of the gas line from the federal goverment at a cost of between $105 and $110 million while the balance will be spent for the same purpose as the junior financing funds.

Further looping of the line and additional compressor stations are planned for next spring, Mr. Kerr said.

Start-up of the Bethlehem Copper Corp. Ltd. concentrator at the mine near Ashcroft is to take place at the beginning of next week with an initial operating rate of 3,300 tons daily.

The concentrates will be trucked to North Vancouver and stockpiled until late January when the first shipment is to leave for Japan under a 10-year contract with Sumitomo Metal Mining Co. Ltd. of Tokyo.

Under a revised option agreement, Silver Standard Mines Ltd. is committed to spend $175,000 on exploring a 59-claim silver-lead prospect in the Slocan mining division up to Oct. 15, 1965. The claims were optioned from Oil Participations Inc.

Moneta Porcupine Mines Ltd. and Violamac Mines Ltd. each have a one-third interest in the new agreement.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Home Construction Hike Aids Economy

NEW YORK (AP) — The economic outlook was enhanced during the U.S. Thanksgiving week by reports of improvement in home construction, durable goods orders, personal income and orders for machine tools.

And income tax payers on both personal and corporate levels were cheered by the recommendation by the president's advisory committee on labor-management policy of a $10,000,000,000 tax slash.

The stock market kept rolling ahead at a good clip and the week provided a springboard for the Christmas buying season, which many observers expect to set a record.

The commerce department issued statistics showing that work began on 129,100 privately owned houses and apartment houses and apartment units in October, a gain of four per cent from the same period last year.

Durable goods orders in October reached a new high $16,600,000,000, a three-per-cent gain from September.

A record annual rate of $445,600,000,000 was attained by personal income with a $2,100,000,000 rise last month.

The National Machine Tool Builders Association reported orders for new machine tools—a key economic barometer—jumped to $61,150,000 last month from $50,100,000 from the previous month.

The stock market showed increasing confidence in the economy, pushing its rise through the fourth consecutive week and reaching its highest level in six months.

While there were reports that orders for steel were up, production in the industry dipped last week to 1,782,000 tons.

The Thanksgiving holiday cut into automobile production but estimates were that the fourth-quarter production rate would set a record.

Output this week was estimated at 137,000 cars, down from 162,703 last week.

East Pakistan Project Benefits Canadian Firms

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Canadian firms have won multi-million-dollar contracts from the East Pakistan industrial corporation for work on a $9,000,000 expansion of a newsprint mill at Khulna in East Pakistan, it was announced here Friday.

Representatives of Sandwell and Company, Vancouver-based firm of consulting engineers which does work all over the world, said that firm has won a contract for design and engineering services in connection with the development.

In addition contracts for supply of all equipment for expansion of the mill have been awarded to Canadian General Electric Company and Dominion Engineering Company.

The announcement said the contracts mean that some $6,000,000 will be expended in Canada for equipment and engineering services. Canadian purchases will be financed under a long-term credit granted by the Export Credit and Insurance Corporation of Canada.

Budgetary Deficit $87 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's budgetary deficit for the first seven months of the current fiscal year—to Oct. 31—was $87,000,000, compared with $211,000,000 at the end of October last year, Finance Minister Nowlan reported Friday night.

His monthly statement of government revenues and expenditures said October operations resulted in a $20,000,000 deficit, compared with one of $51,900,000 for October, 1961.

Lower income tax revenues, higher corporation tax yields and a boost in customs import duties were the main feature of October revenues. The biggest cut in expenditures was in subsidies and payments to the provinces.

Revenues in October this year amounted to $512,700,000 and expenditures were $532,700,000. In 1961 revenues were $489,500,000, expenditures of $541,400,000.

In the first seven months of the fiscal year which started last April 1, revenues amounted to $3,357,900,000 and expenditures were $3,444,900,000. In the April-October period of 1961 revenues were $3,224,400,000 and expenditures $3,435,400,000

VICTORIAN PLAYS ACTIVE ROLE AT 75

He Places Other People in Jobs

Engineers and scientists, highly skilled in their various technologies, are always in demand in industry, but the surest route to the top management levels of business is via a good liberal education.

This is the considered view of a Victoria man who pioneered the executive placement field in Canada back in 1936 and has started men with multi-million dollar corporations which they now head.

J. B. Fraser, who came to Victoria a year ago to retire—and then found he had too much energy to quit work when he was only 75 years old—said in an interview that years of dealing with men in upper echelons of business and industry had convinced him that the recruits sought for training for top executive posts were those with the broadest range of interests, well-read and with an intense curiosity about matters outside his regular business interests.

Other qualifications, of course, are also necessary including a primary interest in accomplishment of work, acceptance of authority without resentment, placing achievement before reward, organizational skill, emotional maturity and a constant drive to be doing things.

The growing complexity of business today makes it imperative that the top management levels be staffed with men who can think things through, Mr. Fraser says.

There are labor problems, production problems, competition problems, legislation problems—"You have to watch government like a hawk these days"—which can only be solved by a man who has trained himself to look at the broad picture.

J. B. Fraser himself, although family circumstances forced him to give up any formal education at the age of 14, is a prime example of the liberally-educated man with broad interests.

Leaving school at 14 didn't quench his desire for education which he administered to himself by reading constantly and in a wide and diversified field of subjects.

Prior to starting his own business—J. B. Fraser and Associates—in Toronto in 1936, Mr. Fraser worked for 12 years in the U.S. and then with the Southam Company and Canada Biscuit Company.

He got into executive placement almost by accident through guiding friends into new jobs in various companies purely on a friendly basis.

"Someone said to me then," he recalls, "that this was the kind of thing I should be doing as a business."

Uncertain of the potential of executive placement, he put a small classified ad in a Toronto paper.

The ad read, tersely, "I can help you find a job," and it drew 190 replies.

This reponse convinced him and, at the age of 50, he gave up the security of a top executive post to make a living by finding similar jobs for other people.

He was the first in this field in Canada, he says, although there were then several similar firms in the U.S., and his success was almost immediate and definitely lasting.

There weren't any guidelines for his type of business Mr. Fraser recalls, and so he was forced to originate many of his own techniques for evaluating executive potentials.

Mr. Fraser directed his firm, with offices in Toronto and Montreal, until a year ago when he placed them on a franchise basis and retired to Victoria with his wife.

After six months, he says, "I couldn't stand the idleness."

So he went over to Vancouver, surveyed the potential, and opened up a new office called J. B. Fraser and Associates (Western) Ltd.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Banks, Motors Display Strength

By PETER DUNN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Confidence flowed through Canadian stock markets again this week, boosting prices still further above their Cuba-crisis lows.

The index has gained 50 points in the 24 post-crisis trading days, putting it at the 569 level.

Market technicians who felt the index would stall this week near the 562 point—the mid-August recovery top—were proved wrong, as it pushed through that barrier with ease, gaining more than six points.

Spearheading the industrial rise were the banks, reflecting mounting investor optimism over year-end earnings, which are expected to be substantially higher than last year's.

All the listed chartered banks showed gains ranging from Montreal's fractional rise to Toronto-Dominion's climb of $3.

Motors had an unusually strong week, as the outlook for sales in the 1963 model year grows rosier. Chrysler, Ford of Canada and Goodyear Tire all advanced between $7 and $9, while U.S. Ford and General Motors each gained fractionally.

Steels, which benefit slightly from increasing auto sales, rose modestly on average.

UTILITIES HIGHER

In the utilities, gains outnumbered losses three to one. Power Corporation led the way, rising more than $1.

Base metals were thoroughly mixed on the week, despite encouraging corporate news recently, and strong gains by a few key issues.

Falconbridge jumped $2 and International Nickel advanced $3.

Western oils were fired late in the week by long-awaited confirmation of terms of an offer by Pacific Petroleum to take over Bailey Selburn Oil. Baysel was up $1.50 at $11.37, while Pacific remained unchanged at $13.62.

Total volume at Toronto was 11,080,778 shares compared with 10,576,656 last week. Dollar value was $41,701,199 compared with $30,987,360.

On index at Toronto, industrials gained 6.96 to 568.92, base metals 1.87 to 187.10 and western oils 4.55 to 121.19. Golds slipped .61 to 87.45.

Volumes at Montreal; industrials, 600,843 shares compared with 692,542 last week; mines; 1,712,626 shares compared with 1,263,505.

On index at Montreal, industrials rose 2.6 to 115.4, utilities .5 to 106.7, banks 2.1 to 125.1, composite 2.1 to 114.8 and papers 2.3 to 97.5.

FIRST LADY FEATURED SUNDAY

Pre-Release 8:30 P.M., Channel 8
Also Seen Friday, 10 P.M. Channel 4

Compiled by RON SUDLOW

NBC will present the image of a pretty, chicly-dressed, charming and attractive young woman when the show, "World of Jacqueline Kennedy," is pre-released Sunday evening at 8:30 on Channel 8.

As White House regulations do not permit any TV network to obtain exclusive personal material about any member of the President's family, she could not be interviewed.

To overcome this difficulty, NBC presents comments from close friends and associates of America's First Lady.

The late Eleanor Roosevelt, a woman quite familiar with the house Mrs. Kennedy now lives in, had this to say in an interview specially filmed for the program:

"I think on the whole the people are enjoying having a young woman and young children in the White House. Mrs. Kennedy's youth, her charm and beauty, and her interest in things she has already learned in the artistic field and in learning about new things—I think this makes her a most appealing young woman."

The show will also be seen Friday evening at 10 on Channel 5.

Sporting events on tap this weekend include:

The National Air Races and the National Invitational Pocket Billiards Championships will be seen on Wide World of Sports this afternoon at 5 on Channel 4.

Boston Bruins meet Montreal Canadiens when the game is joined in progress at the Forum with commentators Danny Gallivan and Keith Dancey.

Henry Hank, middleweight, will meet Mauro Mina, light heavyweight, in a 10-rounder from Madison Square Garden.

MEETS PETER AND THE WOLF—Art Carney returns to TV Sunday evening at 6:30 on Channel 4 in a repeat telecast of his 1958 production "Peter and the Wolf." The Bill Baird Puppets are featured.

FIRST LADY ON TV — Still photos and films will take a searching look into the World of Jacqueline Kennedy which is pre-released Sunday on Channel 8 at 8:30 p.m. The show will also be seen Friday night at 10 on Channel 5.

This is Mina's TV debut. The South American champion is ranked in the No. 2 spot in his division and has 15 KOs in 33 fights.

In the first of Sunday's pro football games, the New York Giants meet Washington Redskins in what could be the biggest game of the season. The Redskins need this one if they are to overtake the league-leading Giants. Kick-off is 11 a.m. on Channels 6 and 2.

San Francisco 49ers meet St. Louis Cardinals in St. Louis on Channels 7 and 12 also at 11 a.m.

Cards' running duo of John David Crow and Prentice Gautt will prove hard to contain.

In this week's AFL contest, Houston Oilers host San Diego Chargers on Channel 4 at 12:30. Pop Ivy's Oilers have the highest-rated backfield in the league.

This Sailor Never Sees Any Port

HALIFAX (CP) — Talk about frustration—the chief purser of the Greek liner Olympia has crossed the Atlantic 20 times but has yet to set foot on land in most of the ports at which it calls.

Nicholas Valmas of Athens says he longs to see such cities as Southampton, Glasgow, Liverpool, London and Halifax.

He explains that the ship stays only a few hours in each port and he is kept busy disembarking passengers, arranging passenger visits ashore, changing money and dozens of other tasks.

"My easiest time is when we're days out in the ocean, thousands of miles from anywhere. In port I have to settle for a ship's rail view of many of the cities we visit."

The exception is New York, terminal port for Atlantic crossing. He usually finds time in the daylong stopover to see the sights.

He says he will make a special effort to get ashore at Halifax next time.

"There will probably be snow when we arrive again and I have always wanted to see a Canadian city with snow on the ground."

ASK RITHETS!

You are invited to submit questions on insurance and similar matters for inclusion in this column. The origin of such queries is kept entirely confidential.

Q. One hears the term "A Friendly Fire" in connection with insurance. Would you please define this and, is it covered by my policy?

A. "A Friendly Fire" is one that is lit for a specific purpose, say in a fireplace or stove. It remains as such so long as it stays under control and within the bounds of your intent. Once it leaves these bounds and causes damage then it becomes an "Unfriendly Fire" and is covered by your insurance.

SAINTS, SINNERS:

Adams' Series 'Murdered' By Critics

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Nick Adams and his "Saints and Sinners" television series are going off the air, victims of critical assaults, the Cuba crisis and integration riots in Mississippi.

There are some who say the critics could have performed the task single-handedly.

The series, about a big-town newspaper, has been on the air only eight weeks. Production has been stopped but the remaining 11 episodes will be aired.

During the two months "Sinners" has been running, it has been replaced four times by telecasts of important news events.

"So many things happened that we became the falls guys," said Adams. "Everytime a world crisis came up it happened on Monday when we were on the air. The Cuban thing was a Monday, the Oxford, Mississippi, thing was on a Monday. Tuesday was election day. So on the Monday night before election we were pre-empted, in some areas by political speeches."

The accident or pre-emption worked against the show's chances of building a regular audience, Nick said.

"But I'm not complaining about that," Adams said of the shows that elbowed him off the air. "God knows the Cuban crisis, Oxford and elections were more important than a TV show. And besides that we were up against Danny Thomas and Lucille Ball."

Adams, an aggressive young actor in the Horatio Alger tradition, admits his toughest competition came not so much from current events, Miss Ball or Mr. Thomas. "Sinners" was punished by television critics.

"The critics murdered us," Nick said, suggesting a possible reason why television columnists attacked a show which purported to depict the newspaper profession.

Adams hinted the show might not have presented a realistic enough view of newsmen to satisfy critics.

"For instance, my brother is a doctor and he hates 'Ben Casey' and 'Dr. Kildare'. I know rodeo riders who hate 'Stoney Burke' and 'Wide Country', lawyers who hate 'Perry Mason' and 'The Defenders' and cops who hate '77 Sunset Strip'.

"Newspapermen hated 'Saints and Sinners'. The only thing is newspapermen could tell everybody about it in their columns. And I don't blame them. I'm the same way. I saw a show about actors once and I felt the same way. If I had a column I would have done the same thing."

Adams seemed more analytical than angry about his show's defeat, never once blaming producers, script writers or network officials—like some deposed television stars.

"I'm not worried financially because they have to pay me for the rest of the shows and I've got movies to do," Nick said. "I feel bad about the guys in the crew who will be out of work."

Bob Hope: Thursday

Merman, Darin And Benny Add To Merriment

First Telecast, 8 P.M., Channels 6, 2, Also Shown on Channel 5 at 8:30 P.M.

Jack Benny, Ethel Merman and Bobby Darin will join Bob Hope when he presents his second of six TV specials Thursday evening at 8 on Channels 6 and 2, and also at 8:30 on Channel 5.

RETURNS FOR SECOND SHOW — Bob Hope brings music and merriment Thursday night at 8 on Channels 6 and 2 with a cast headlining Ethel Merman, Jack Benny and Bobby Darin. Feature sketch is "Bird Brain of Alcatraz" with Jack Benny as the bird brain. The show will be seen one-half hour later on Channel 5.

Featured sketch in the hour of music and merriment is the "Bird Brain of Alcatraz." Benny is cast as the "bird brain" with Hope portraying his cell-mate who is slowly being driven around the bend by the sound of hundreds of chirping birds.

The second sketch, "The Unsinkable Ethel," finds Miss Merman as a riverboat gambling queen hoping to take the gullible Mr. Hope for a cruise.

Ethel will do two selections she introduced in Broadway productions and Bobby Darin will team with Hope in a parody of the top ten songs on the global hit parade.

In addition to Hope's usual and timely monologue, maestro Benny performs his famous rendition of "The Bee" on the violin.

Another show highlighting the week's viewing will be a 60-minute NBC production entitled "Shakespeare: Soul of an Age." The film will visualize the bard's life and plays. Scenes will be presented in modern screen form with Sir Michael Redgrave reading the passages.

Wooloomooloo Keeps Prices Within Reason

For $6.45 single, or $10.10 double, you can stop at an air-conditioned motel with swimming pool, television, swank dining room, beauty shop, fully equipped service station, dry cleaning, laundry, lounges, bars, dance floor with nightly music—and a hearty breakfast thrown in.

This motel is in Wooloomooloo on the outskirts of Sydney, Australia.

It is just one among many already built or going up along the highways "Down Under," the American Automobile Association reports.

Australia, which lays claim to being the second most car-minded country in the world (New Zealand also makes the claim), has one automobile for every four of its 10.5 million residents.

To take care of all those motorists, new motels have been springing up during the past few years. There now are 166 of high standard. In smaller New Zealand, the construction is in proportion.

CPA JETLINER SETS TRANS-PACIFIC MARK

VANCOUVER — A new trans-Pacific flight record from Tokyo to Vancouver was established Friday by a Canadian Pacific Airlines super DC-8 jetliner which covered the 4,800-mile distance, non-stop in 7 hours 17 minutes.

The previous record was 7 hours 20 minutes, set just over a month ago by another CPA super DC-8.

During Friday's flight, the super DC-8, with 68 passengers and a crew of 10 aboard, flew at an average speed of 672 miles per hour, boosted by a tailwind that reached 180 miles per hour at one point and averaged 150 miles per hour for most of the flight. The top speed of the aircraft at this point reached 750 miles per hour.

The plane was under the command of Capt. Harry Duda of 12253 Christofferson Road, White Rock. Capt. Duda, a veteran of 20 years flying, reported he kept the big jetliner at an average altitude of 33,000 feet in order to ensure the best wind and weather conditions en route.

HUNTING WEAPON

Boomerang Popular Australian Export

SYDNEY, Australia — Foreign visitors to Australia can't bring home a koala bear, a kangaroo or even a platypus, but thousands of them do return with a genuine boomerang, the famed "Down Under" native weapon.

Today, of course, the boomerang is a toy or exhibition piece—but the aborigines actually used the angled wood as a weapon.

Most Americans still remember a mild boomerang craze in North America several years ago when many prominent and some not-of-prominent persons took up boomerang throwing as a form of exercise. Former vice-president Henry Wallace was considered one of the experts in the field, but hundrds of others got more exercise than they bargained for because they couldn't make the boomerang return.

According to the Australian National Travel Association, the descendants of the original "inventors" are cashing in on the growing word-wide popularity of the boomerang and are busy fashioning them as a profitable sideline. In some cases entire native settlements manufacture boomerangs.

"Manufacturing" is the correct word because the genuine article is still made by hand. As a guide to collectors, tourists and other purchasers, the Department of Native Affairs in Queensland brands the boomerangs made by aborigines to show they are genuine articles.

Boomerang-throwing has never grown to a national craze in Australia, but it has ever been a popular diversion. Tourists visiting the various states can see demonstrations of throwing by expert throwers, like those at La Perouse, in Sydney, at Wynnum, in Brisbane, and at several other places throughout Queensland, and in the Dandenong Ranges close to Melbourne.

Records are not kept of distances boomerangs are thrown, but a skilfull thrower can make one travel over 200 yards. The boomerang is made of hard wood and is always curved at an angle of between 90 degrees and 120 degrees. Between 2 and 3 feet long, it weighs about half a pound. One side is flat, the other convex with a sharp edge.

A second type of boomerang is also made by the aborignines and is called the non-returning boomerang. The aborigines, of course, planned it this way because they intended it as a weapon of war or for hunting wild game. Australia frowns on visitors exporting the weapon-type boomerang for two reason: (1) It could be a lethal weapon if properly thrown, and (2) most persons have enough trouble trying to make the regular model land at their feet.

Contrary to its name, the boomerang does not "boom" through the air but rather gives off a low whistle. The name, originally recorded as "bou-mar-rang" comes from the language of the Turawal tribe which lived near Sydney.

Boomerang became a generally accepted Australian word many year ago and since has become a part of the lexicon of all English-speaking nations. It has become a part of the sports language in the U.S. and a world-wide word in political parlance.

Death Valley Town Not Dead—Seven People Still Live There

RHYOLITE, Nev. — There are those who would say that this is the weirdest town in the U.S.A., and I am not one to argue.

Sutton

It sits baking and crumbling in the Great American Desert, connected to the highway by a smooth paved road that runs up to its street of dreams. No trains rumble in or out of its $130,000 railroad station, and no business is done at the stone remains of its bank. Nor are children heard in the concrete fragments of its fireproof school, and all around in the Bullfrog Hills there is neither a sign of life nor of civilization. And yet Rhyolite is not dead. Seven people still live there.

Five miles west of Beatty, Nevada, and 114 northwest of Las Vegas, Rhyolite is an odd relic of a boom and a bust. The Bullfrog strike, shortly after the century's turn, opened up the great gold boom in the southwest.

Eleven towns began; some of them, Beatty among them, still flourish. Gold was discovered here on Aug. 9, 1904, and this city, destined; it was said, to be the great metropolis of Nevada, was given the name of Rhyolite, a gold-bearing ore.

* * *

Banks, churches, opera houses and a concrete school followed the early days under canvas. Forty-two streets were laid out, equipped with 32 fire hydrants and a separate business district. The hopeful poured in on foot, on mules, in cars and in houses on wheels.

The line of them made, so it was recorded, "a string of dust 100 miles long." H. D. and L. D. Porter drove a wagon train of goods pulled by 18 mules across the desert, built a handsome stone store and opened the doors in April of 1905.

There were three places for a citizen to keep his money—the brick Bullfrog Bank and Trust, the three-storey First National, and the Cook National, four stories high and all Honduras mahogany and Italian marble.

Lillian Russell was playing performances in the Opera House and the Bloomer Girls from Boston came to play on the ball field. Rhyolite had a population of 10,000—some say it was even higher.

No fewer than three railroads came to town, the Tonopah and Tidewater from Ludlow, California; the Goldfield and Bullfrog, a subsidiary of the Southern Pacific; and the Las Vegas and Tonopah, part of a system that later became the Union Pacific. The first train in October 1906 brought an excusion party from Los Angeles, and for the pleasure of the visitors Porter Brothers store set up a display of ores.

The first passenger train arrived on December 14, 1906, and in the first week of operation 100 carloads of freight came to town. Nearby Beatty trans-shipped so much goods it called itself the Chicago of the West. Rhyolite was the metropolis and Las Vegas was still a sand bed in the desert

* * *

Rhyolite lived in glory for four years. And then it became the prospectors' Pompeii. There was gold in the veins, but not enough of it. Perhaps the mines might have made money, if they had been nearer a source of water and transportation had been cheap. What financial hopes there were went up in smoke of the San Francisco fire of 1906.

Money that had been earmarked for mining investments would now be diverted to bebuild the city. By 1910 there were 700 people left in Rhyolite, and by the 1920s there were none.

* * *

Today, the $130,000 railroad station, complete with the bar that used to belong to the 66 Saloon, is now the home of the Rev. H. H. Heisler and his wife who moved here from Georgia.

They let out a few rooms for those who want to spend a night in a deserted depot, sell postcards and trinkets; and Mrs. Heisler, a former school teacher, delivers engaging discourses on the history of Rhyolite. On their own they have rebuilt the cemetery a few miles from town.

Besides the Heislers there is elderly Bessie Moffat, who runs a trim little rock shop and will sell you a chunk of Rhyolite with the gold clearly evident. The W. E. Thompsons inhabit a house made of bottles, a favorite means of construction in the early West, when lumber and mortar were hard to find and empty bottles were in oversupply.

The bottle house was built by Paramount Pictures in 1925, when it was used in a Zane Grey film called "Wanderer of the Wasteland." Rhyolite's oldest resident is an Indian woman, Louise Morrison, who migrated here in 1929.

From November to Easter 1,000 visitors a day will roll through this prospectors' Pompeii, wandering over the crumbling, baked ruins, pouring through the Heislers' small museum, letting out their imaginations on a long leash. Oddly enough, the ores are still rich. And so are the memories.

Tobago Provides Haven of Escape

Approximately 21 miles to the northeast of Trinidad, lies the peaceful isle of Tobago, where Robinson Crusoe is said to have lived, and which is still a haven of escape from the ticker-tapes of New York, Toronto and London.

Nights on Tobago bring the quiet of beach parties under the light-festooned palms. Scarborough, Tobago's chief town, provides the only urban touch, and its atmosphere is as fascinating as the name of its inlet—Man O' War Bay.

Tobago is almost unique among island paradise-resorts. It has first-rate hotels, the world's outstanding undersea gardens, and a determination not to be hurried. Since Princess Margaret spent her honeymoon on Tobago, the island has become a popular glamour spot.

SMART, INEXPENSIVE

Holidays Reasonable On Spanish Riviera

MALAGA, Spain — If your tan is fast fading, and your pocketbook is slightly ailing, why not try a different, yet inexpensive place in the sun this fall or winter?

The Spanish Riviera, known locally as the Costa del Sol, or Sunny Coast, is studded with miles of sandy, sun-drenched beaches, Roman ruins, Moorish castles, whitewashed fishing villages and expanding resorts.

And it's not only as chic and fashionable as its Italian and French counterparts, but it's considerably less expensive. For example, first-class hotel accommodation for two guests, including meals, is available for $8.00 a day.

Malaga, the busy southern port from which succulent oranges, grapes, melons, figs and olives are flown into European markets, is the heart of the Sunny Coast. It has excellent accommodations, from de luxe hotels to a network of villa-type pensions. And its many diversions, including golf, tennis, regattas, horse racing, clay pigeon shooting, theatrical and opera presentations, make it ideal for a leisurely holiday.

SMART SHOPS

Modern buildings, smart shops, and sidewalk cafes surround the ancient centre of the town. The enclosed market, with its Moorish arches and strolling gypsy vendors, fascinates most visitors, and the Renaissance cathedral, with its 42 magnificently carved figures by Pedro de Mena, is one of the country's most imposing sanctuaries.

Perched on a hill overlooking the bay is one of Malaga's chief landmarks, the Gibralfaro Castle. On a clear day you can see the African coast from this 13th-century fortification. Nearby the Spanish government operates a delightful restaurant, the Hosteria de Gibralfare, which features local fish specialties.

The highlight of the season is Malaga's Winter Festival, Jan. 15 to Feb. 15, when various cavalcades, sports events, exhibitions and dances are held daily.

But the Sunny Coast is not confined to Malaga. "Resort row" is expanding. It includes the cliff town of Torremolinos, increasingly popular with the international set. And further south are Calahonda with its beautifully - appointed luxury hotel, The Alhamar, where famous tapestries adorn the writing room walls, and Marbella, where the unique terrace restaurant at the relatively new hotel, La Venta de las Chapas, encircles an 80-foot bullring. During lunch, guests are invited to enter the ring and try their capework with young calves, under the guidance of professional bullfighters.

Whether your destination is Marbella, Malaga, or Torremolinos, your leisurely holiday will certainly be an inexpensive one. Nowhere along the Mediterranean does your dollar provide as much as it does on Spain's Sunny Coast.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Time to Study Drainage Problem

By JACK BEASTALL

One advantage of heavy rains in the fall, such as those we are experiencing this week, is that they show up the well drained and poorly drained parts of the garden.

Especially is this an advantage to those in a newly acquired garden. So often we take over a garden and make plantings in the empty spaces, only to find they were empty because water collected there in winter.

When such an error is discovered in the fall there is time for moving the plants to a more congenial spot before they suffer from wet feet.

Jack

Some gardens are literally flooded with run-off from higher ground and to save the top soil one has to divert water from cultivated sections.

The very thought of ditches around and across the garden is horrifying to some folk, but there are many who have found them the only means of having a garden.

In two gardens recently visited the ditches were of a temporary nature, dug annually in early November and filled in again by May of the following year.

Not only does this system save the top soil, it also makes the centre of the garden into a large raised bed which drains freely in spring and is warm enough to plant or sow several weeks ahead of adjoining land.

Minor Effort

Most of us have one spot in the garden where heavy rain will cause a temporary high tide around a few plants, although it will drain fairly rapidly after the rain ceases.

For this condition a small diversion ditch is often the answer and involves the removal of only an inch or so of soil. The benefits to the plants are often more than one would imagine from the small amount of work involved.

There are many plants we grow successfully here that are hardy to the coldest of our winters, yet are not hardy to a lot of water around their roots. Every year there are losses due to this condition which prevents the roots from obtaining the air they need.

Mentioning plant losses due to conditions other than low temperatures reminds me of a fact I learned the other day regarding Cupressus arizonica, the Arizona Cypress.

A Huff and a Puff

The attractive blue foliage of this tree has endeared it to many home gardeners in the last few years, but it has one fault as far as our local weather is concerned and that is the small root system it develops.

This is an advantage in a small garden, and it is not a serious defect during its youth, but when it grows up it is easily toppled by a high wind.

The pleasure of this tree is something the owners of exposed gardens must forgo, while in other gardens it needs a sheltered position if maturity is to be realized.

The need for early color is felt in many gardens and there is a constant search for plants, other than bulbs and primulas, that will fill this vacancy.

Neglected Subjects

Frequently overlooked for this purpose is the pansy. Where seed was sown in early August, or cuttings taken in late August, the young plants will now be ready for planting in their flowering positions in beds or borders.

The removal of any flowers or flower buds showing now, and those which develop in a mild spell over winter, will give the plants a chance to develop strongly for an outstanding display in early spring.

Another neglected early flowering plant is the doronicum, or Leopardbane. There are several species of this plant in cultivation, some good garden plants and some not so good, and there are good and poor forms of each. Due to gardeners inflicting the invasive poor forms on friends and neighbors the entire genus has been saddled with a bad name.

It is the first daisy type flower to appear in spring, and the large golden blooms to four inches across on 18 to 24-inch stems make an excellent garden display and provide long lasting cut flowers to combine with tulips.

The best flowers are found on small young plants therefore lifting and dividing should be done at least every second year, a bold display being obtained by replanting a number of divisions in a group.

Both pansies and doronicum are obtainable now for setting out, and the time to divide old clumps of doronicum is immediately after flowering (late June to July) or early in September.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Some of the lily bulbs, especially Lilium speciosum, are only now available for planting. Get them into well-drained soil at once. If soil is heavy, surround the bulbs with sand.

The Passion-flower vine (Passiflora caerulea) needs all side growths cut back to two inches from main stems. Otherwise it soon gets out of control.

Look for brightly-berried shrubs which add color to the fall and winter picture—Firethorn (pyracantha), and evergreen cotoneasters.

A bright yellow flower a few inches high in bloom now is Sternbergia lutea. It looks like a crocus, but has the common name of Winter Daffodil. It grows from a bulb planted in August and is perfectly hardy.

If weather permits, complete all major plantings of trees and shrubs especially in the heavier types of soil. Some of the lighter and more gravelly soils can be planted at any time during winter except when frost is in the ground.

HE WALKED AWAY FROM IT

A shattering crash on Johnson Street Bridge early this morning brought police to the scene above. They found Larry A. Smith of HMCS Margaree, driver of the car, had miraculously escaped serious injuries when his vehicle struck the westerly girder of the south side of the bridge. The car rolled over and came to rest on its roof 100 feet from the point of impact.

ARTHUR MAYSE

My boy Ron got his mother a meat grinder for her birthday this year—a plain, old-fashioned chopper with a wooden knob on the handle, yawning mouth and a clamp to grip a counter edge. Win fussed over it. She tried all three cutters, then washed it and re-packaged it with loving care.

In a family, of course, this is the expected reaction to a gift: even when filled with inner dismay, you don't hurt feelings.

Still, the display went somewhat beyond the call of parental duty, and it puzzled me.

I cornered Ron later, grease on his face and his motorcycle reduced to its components on the basement floor.

"Listen," I said, "that was a dandy present, but how did you know she wanted it? Did you ask her?"

"Hold this for me," Ron said. "Don't let it wiggle." Then, busy with a wrench, "I didn't have to ask. She's said she needs a new grinder often enough. Her old one keeps falling apart."

"Yes," I agreed, "but she could have gone out and bought a new one any day."

"You're letting it jiggle," Ron said. "Sure she could. But she wanted a meat grinder for a present, she dropped hints all over the place."

I let something drop, too, with a dismal clang, and was dismissed as a mechanic's helper. But not without this parting shot:

"Trouble with people, they give other people what they think they should want. Like when I asked for a four-by-eight plywood sheet and got a desk lamp, remember?"

I did remember. I think the kid has hit on something there, a point worth discussing.

Maybe he's right; maybe all of us, husbands especially, tend to give what we think the receiving party ought to want.

Up to a point, that's good. Few women are likely to turn up their noses at a gift of nylon sheers or a jug of Chanel No. 5. But there are also meat grinders.

It's early to ask, but what do people want for Christmas? Really want, I mean—something which may be quite distinct from what they get or even ask for?

Nosing around, I've come up with some answers.

One girl, pre-nylon age, very much hopes Santa Claus will bring her some strips of bright-colored cloth and matching thread to sew it with.

One man hankers after an over-sized plastic sheet with grommets in the corners, another for two gallons of latex-base paint.

A small boy I know tells me he'd like a big bag of nails, all sizes from spikes for next year's raft-making to little ones for mending a toy garage.

Here are some others:

A bottle of Irish whiskey. (People, keep giving him Scotch, poor fellow!)

A copper flour-sifter. (Remembered lovingly from her mother's Ontario farm kitchen.)

A set of drills and an eight-pound sledge.

You see? Not precisely standard items, are they?

* * *

My friend Don Ingham tells me that a few years ago, he and his family got thinking along these lines, and took concerted action.

What they really wanted was a boat. Nothing fancy, just a good, solid, flatbottomed skiff to poke around Glen Lake in.

So they restricted the individual gifts to minor tokens, and gave themselves the boat as a family present.

"Packed it right into the living room," Don recalls. "Eleven feet six inches long, and unpainted. It sat there all Christmas Day — our guests had to climb over it."

The Inghams still have their skiff, although not in the living room, and if Don gets around to putting a new bottom in it this winter, they'll be launching it again next spring.

Perhaps some of you have a yearned-for but unorthodox gift of your own which you'd never ask for or expect to get. If so, this space is yours to tell us about it.

Labor Troubles To Cancel Out Herring Season

The Fisheries Association of B.C. said today it appears the entire winter herring season—and the 1963 summer season—will be lost.

The association, in a news release, said it has rejected a further attempt by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) to secure a price higher than the $11.40 a ton offered by the companies for herring for reduction purposes.

The union said the fishermen voted 68 per cent Friday to reject the $11.40-a-ton offer. It said the fishermen then offered to negotiate a compromise price between the company offer and the price of $12.80 a ton proposed by the union. Price last year was $10.40.

Both parties said no further meetings are planned.

The association statement said the loss of the herring harvest will mean not only the loss of the fishermen's earnings but the loss of jobs in reduction plants as well.

ASK The TIMES

Q. What is the number of bingo cards it is possible to have without any two being the same?—E.H.D.

A. Using conventional bingo cards (i.e., cards which have 24 numbers to be rotated and numbers which range from 1 to 99) it is possible to have about 3,600 bingo cards without any two being the same.

Officials at the Kinsmen Bingos estimate there are about 10 bingos each game when the crowd is over 7,000.

Q. How long is a lunar year?—V.V.

A. Twelve lunar civil months, or 354 days.

Canine-Killing Mystery Virus Disappears

A mysterious virus that killed a number of young dogs in Greater Victoria has disappeared as suddenly as it came.

Mrs. F. H. Webb, secretary of the Vancouver Island Dog Fanciers' Association, said she has not heard of any new cases for a couple of weeks.

The outbreak was so severe that the association cancelled its Sanction Show that was to be held today. Mrs. Webb said the show will now likely be held early in 1963.

Older animals were immune to the sickness. But pups infected with the virus always died.

He also was fined $50 for driving while under suspension.

City Casts Wary Eye In Douks' Direction

Gov't Should Block Trek Here—Edgelow

City aldermen today viewed with some trepidation and a lot of uncertainty the possibility of 1,300 trekking Doukhobors coming to Victoria.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of public works, said the provincial government should act to forestall the movement of the homeless Freedomite sect members from where they lie camped in Hope.

Mayor R. B. Wilson was taken by surprise at the suggestion:

"This is the first I've heard about it. That's one we'd have to play by ear."

BUS CARAVAN

Hope village commission chairman Paul Scherle threatened Friday to organize a caravan of buses to land the Doukhobors at the legislative buildings.

He said he would act if the Social Credit government failed to solve the Douk problem immediately.

"This is strictly a provincial responsibility," Ald. Edgelow said.

"The goverment should do something to forestall that (trekking to Victoria). I can see no useful purpose in them coming here," the alderman said.

TOUGH PROBLEM

He admitted the sect presents "a tough problem."

"I hope they think of something else," remarked Ald. Lily Wilson, chairman of city welfare committee.

To the suggestion that a preliminary meeting of aldermen and officials be held to consider the possibility, Mrs. Wilson said:

"I don't think we should go looking for trouble."

NO DISCRIMINATION

But she felt there should be no discrimination in whatever way the problem is handled.

"My only hope would be that they be treated like other people," she said.

Meanwhile, Attorney-General Robert Bonner has promised provincial welfare director Douglas Sadler would go to Hope to study the situation. He was due to meet Scherle and Douk leaders today.

The band of Doukhobors is staying at a Seventh Day Adventist summer camp after evacuating a village campsite when flood threatened.

Hope chairman Scherle said marchers have spent their savings, are cut off welfare payments and are dependent on charity for food and clothing.

NOT QUALIFIED

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Sadler would view conditions at the encampment and report here, but previously the attorney-general said the trekkers were not qualified for welfare as they had burned their homes and quit jobs before setting out.

"It makes welfare stupid in the eyes of the public when such people are paid," Mr. Bonner said.

BLOOD BANK GIVEN 709 PINTS

A total of 709 pints was deposited in the blood bank at Red Cross House after a three-day drive last week.

Red Cross spokesmen said they were "very pleased indeed" with the response.

The donations will enable the Red Cross to cope with the time of year when auto accidents reach their peak due to holiday celebrations.

Another clinic is scheduled for Dec. 11, 12 and 13.

B.C. Industry To End Year With Flourish

Significant increases over last year for most British Columbia industries are shown in a monthly report on business activity released by Trade Minister Robert Bonner.

The report shows that crude oil production to date is running 1,057 per cent over 1961 due to completion of the north-south pipeline.

Copper production for the first half of this year is four times what it was a year ago.

B.C. factory shipments are up eight per cent and the total of scaled lumber to date is up 18 per cent.

Total retail trade at the end of September was up eight per cent over the figure for the same period last year, while gasoline purchases showed an increase of seven per cent.

CHEQUES UP

Total value of cheques cashed is running 34 per cent ahead of 1961.

"The federal government's austerity program seems to have by-passed B.C.," Mr. Bonner said, "and it looks as if we are going to end the year with a flourish."

But coal production, which had been lagging for several months, took a 42 per cent drop in September compared with the same month last year.

Trade officials said the drop was largely due to a rail-car shortage and the loss will be regained before the year's end.

September exports from B.C. ports dropped 14 per cent as the result of reduced wheat shipments to Red China. But exports for the first nine months of 1962 still remained 19 per cent above the correspoding figure for 1961.

Tourist permits are up 25 per cent to the end of September and the value of fisheries production to the end of August was up 16.8 per cent.

'Red Velvet' Bazaar Cakes Dangerous

Overeating a popular "red velvet" cake that uses a large quantity of artificial coloring is hazardous, Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada said.

Consumption of a quantity of red food coloring used generally today is dangerous in either cooked or uncooked form, said CAC chairman Mrs. A. B. Young, and the amount required to color a "red velvet" cake far exceeds the one part in 3,500 considered acceptable by the federal food and drug directorate.

The original recipe, she said, called for cochineal food coloring, a harmless dye made at great expense from insects. It is no longer available, Mrs. Young said.

A number of cakes have been spotted by the association at local charity bazaars and a restaurant had them for sale.

The local branch meets at 2 p.m. Monday in the Public Library music room to discuss the matter.

Eating one or two pieces of the cake would not likely be dangerous, the food and drug directorate reported.

LURE OF $1,000 scholarship and all expenses trip to India and Ceylon, offered by Tea Council of Canada, persuaded Ron Jupp of Milnes Landing to tackle this intricate scale model of famed China tea clipper Cutty Sark. Council's contest has attracted entries from all over Canada. An Esquimale High School student, David Wade, is also working on a similar model. Both boys are building the ships from the hull up, making all fittings including spars and rigging.

CUT DRIVING TIME

Road Route to Link Renfrew, Cowichan

A new access road linking Port Renfrew on the west coast of Vancouver Island and the Cowichan Valley will be opened to the public early next year.

This was announced today by Hillcrest Lumber Company Ltd., Pacific Logging Company Ltd., and B.C. Forest Products Ltd., joint owners of a private logging road from Cowichan Lake via Mesachie Lake and Harris Creek.

They said the road will be opened to the public on a controlled basis; that is, during non-operating hours and when weather conditions permit.

Complete arrangements still remain to be worked out with Local 1-80, IWA, which requested the move.

The agreement between the companies and the union brings to an end several months of negotiations.

The union has been pressing for use of this route because the Bear Creek-Shawnigan Lake road is in bad condition.

The new route will cut traveling time from Port Renfrew to the Cowichan Valley by about half an hour.

SPECIAL BRANCH OF NES FIGHTS EMPLOYER-RESISTANCE

Handicapped Have Talent—Need Place to Use It

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A highly-trained nurse who lost her left leg from polio called at the Victoria office of the National Employment Service recently.

It seemed as if all the knowledge and experience she had acquired over the years was to be wasted because hospitals considered her no longer fit for duty.

"But we are certain there is a place for her in some field of hospital activity and we are working to that end," says George Bevis, director of the National Employment Service here.

Between 15 and 20 handicapped workers seek help from the NES office at 1039 Johnson Street every week and are interviewed by two men who have specialized in such cases.

They are Joseph Sharples, director of the special services branch, and his co-worker, Richard Sutcliffe.

Their main difficulty is breaking down employer-resistance for, as they say, employers may be sympathetic to handicapped workers but they are nervous of hiring them in a highly competitive era.

"This is an unfortunate prejudice," Mr. Bevis said, "for almost invariably a trained handicapped person proves to be a faithful and useful employee."

He mentioned several success stories—a paraplegic who now works for a manufacturing jeweller; a polio victim who proved to be a first-class company secretary; a sailor who lost a leg and now works as teller in a local bank; a diabetic who became a hospital orderly . . . a wheel-chair patient who holds a responsible job in a government office.

Then there was the Victoria boy who exploded a home-made bomb a few years ago and lost his left hand. Now equipped with a jointed steel hook, he has proved himself a capable workshop assistant.

"We are always frank with employers," Mr. Bevis said, "but the names of persons seeking our help are never divulged to anyone else.

"We never press for employment on the basis of sympathy. It is on the basis of ability that placements are made and, on such a foundation, employers are usually willing to make whatever minor adjustments are necessary to accommodate a handicapped worker."

People who have suffered from mental disorders are usually hard to place, but the NES tries to break down employer prejudice.

It works with various local organizations in the guidance, training and placement of handicapped workers, including the Multiple Sclerosis and Cerebral associations, the Canadian Institute for the Blind, Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped and the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

"We have had all kinds of co-operation from these groups," Mr. Bevis said, "but the end problem is always the same—to break down employer prejudice."

LEAVING HERE Dec. 2 to become minister of St. John's Presbyterian Church, East Toronto, is Rev. Bruce Molloy, assistant minister to Rev. Dr. J. L. W. McLean at St. Andrew's, Victoria, for the past two years. A native of New South Wales, Australia, Mr. Molloy was on his way to Scotland when Dr. McLean invited him to stay here.

Provocative Congress Set By Anglicans

"The Church's Mission to the World" has been chosen as the main theme of the Anglican Congress to be held in Toronto in 1963.

The theme is intended to be provocative. The last thing congress planners want is a series of tranquil, academic discussions on subjects that form the basis for sermons year in and year out. About 1,000 delegates will come to Canada from all over the world and it is hoped deliberations will engender critical and realistic concern for the future of Christianity and Anglicanism in particular.

To quote Rt. Rev. Ralph S. Dean, Bishop of the Cariboo, chairman of the congress program committee:

"Just as the world of 1963, as far as can be foreseen, will be very different from that of 1954 when the last Anglican Congress was held in Minneapolis, so the congress next year must be different too."

Under the general theme, congress delegates will consider the church's future on the religious, political and cultural frontiers, the challenges they present and the organization required to meet them.

DEAN ASKS RECOGNITION OF AA WORK

"The problem of the compulsive drinker is one of which most people are aware—but comparatively few people know what can be done, and is being done, to solve it," writes Dean Brian Whitlow in the Christ Church Cathedral leaflet.

"The work of Alcoholics Anonymous deserves the support of every citizen. The men and women working through this organization can reach people who are unable to accept help from any other quarter."

Rev. Emma M. Smiley conducts both services at the Victoria Truth Centre Sunday. In the morning service she speaks on "Absolute and Relative" and in the evening on "Life is Forever."

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

Anglican Clergy Mark Martyrdom

Anglican clergy on Vancouver Island, from Victoria to Port Alice, are visiting one another's parishes this Sunday to talk about the church's mission and to urge observance of the Day of Intercession on St. Andrew's Day next Friday.

This annual observance started as the church's commemoration of the martyrdom of Bishop Patteson of Melanesia by South Sea Islanders in 1871.

It is now customary to arrange for a chain of prayer to be held in Anglican churches, with parishioners following one another at 15-minute intervals.

Under the general exchange of pulpits, Archdeacon R. B. Horsfield from Lake Cowichan will preach in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday morning and evening, while Canon R. E. H. Howel of Christ Church will take his place at Lake Cowichan.

The congregations of Gordon Head and Cordova Bay United Churches will engage in a new form of worship and study Sunday at 9:45 a.m. at Gordon Head and 11:30 a.m. at Cordova Bay.

Theme for Sunday, "God the Creator," will be given by Rev. J. Millard Alexander and discussed by study groups at both churches in the evening. Study of this theme will continue through the week.

Man's need for symbols of faith in a world fleeing its tribal customs forms the text of a sermon by the controversial Universalist minister and poet, Rev. Kenneth L. Patton.

As theme speaker at the 1962 Unitarian conference at Seabeck, Wash., Mr. Patton challenged Unitarians to produce universal symbols for a universal man.

His tape recorded address will be heard and discussed by the Unitarian Fellowship of Victoria Sunday at 8 p.m. in the War Amputations of Canada Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue.

Rev. Bert Daniels, district superintendent of the Church of the Nazarene for the Canadian Pacific, Yukon and Alaska districts, will speak in the First Church of the Nazarene, Quadra Street and Kings Road, Sunday at 11 a.m.

He will be accompanied by Mrs. Daniels, district president for the Missionary Society. They will speak at the Esquimalt Church of the Nazarene, 886 Craigflower Road, at 7:30 p.m.

First United Church will feature special music Sunday in connection with Canadian Music Week. In the morning at 11 o'clock, Alice Waddell will sing "O Saviour of Mankind" and the choir will present the anthem, "In the Morning O Lord."

At the evening service, Rino Elverhoy will sing "Who Is Like Thee?" and Mrs. W. H. Gregory will play the Organ Pastorale.

"In the Shadow of Armageddon" will be the subject of a talk by H. W. Bennett of Windsor, Ont., at a public meeting of Victoria British Israel Association in the Newstead Hall, 734 Fort Street, Tuesday at 7:45 p.m.

An open meeting of Besant Lodge, Theosophical Society, on Sunday, 7:30 p.m., at 732 Cormorant Street, will feature a tape recording, "Reincarnation and Divine Justice," by Eunice and Felix Layton, jointly. Mr. Layton is principal of the Olcott Harijan Free Schools near Adyar, Madras, India.

The Moody science film, "The Stones Cry Out," will be shown in St. John's Anglican parish hall after the Sunday evening service.

SHOPPING GUIDE

New Gift Item for Friends Who Wear Contact Lenses

By PENNY SAVER

On my shopping expedition yesterday I saw an article that reminded me of an accident that happened to my friend Heather.

Heather had just left the optometrist's office, wearing her new contact lenses and was standing on the corner in the 5 o'clock rush hour waiting for a bus. Suddenly a gust of wind came around the corner and out went a lens (I have a hard time believing this, too, but it really happened).

In a panic, as always, Heather flung out her arms and pleaded with the crowd not to take a step. An old man standing near came to the rescue and held the mob at bay while Heather crawled around on hands and knees looking for that precious bit of glass. The lens was found. Heather took another lesson on how to insert contact lenses and they have never been lost since.

That something which started me telling this story is a small gold case designed to hold contact lenses. It is a dainty case decorated with a tiny pair of jeweled spectacles so you won't mistake it for a pill box. Inside is a small mirror and two little clasps lined with a spongy material, so as not to scratch the lenses, and marked L and R.

This seems to me to be the perfect gift for friends who believe that boys never make passes at girls who wear glasses. And compared with the price of the lenses I certainly think they deserve a $3.95 case.

If you have other friends who are always wondering where they put the saccharin, give them a saccharin container for Christmas.

One style is a little pill box designed to look like a lapel watch and costs $2.95. It can be either pinned onto a lapel or worn around the neck on a black velvet ribbon.

Another container is a crystal dish resting on the top of the head of an antique figurine. It comes complete with a pair of dainty tweezers and a gold lid for $5.50.

If you have friends who lose their contact lenses or their saccharin phone Penny at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

He's Just a Fanatic!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother is a health food fanatic, but I never thought my husband would get that way. Lately he won't let me give our children any candy, cookies, soft drinks or anything with sugar in it. He says sugar is pure poison. He won't let me use white flour or regular milk. He buys whole wheat and macaroni products. I used to serve well-balanced meals and we were all healthy. If this keeps up my husband will be just like his nutty brother. Don't tell me to talk to my family doctor. We don't have one. My husband doesn't believe in THEM, either.

GOING MAD

DEAR GOING: Your husband has gone off the deep end on a subject that has some merit. If you are interested in getting the facts, your local health department has scads of literature on nutrition. Too bad you don't have a family physician. I think your husband needs one.

DEAR ABBY: Our son (he is 29) is being married for the second time. For his first marriage our relatives were very generous and gave him and his wife some lovely and costly wedding gifts. They were divorced two years later. He is being married in a church again to a lovely girl who has never been married. We do not want our relatives to go to the expense of buying wedding gifts for our son again. Is it proper to make a note of "No gifts, please" on the wedding invitations?

PARENTS OF THE GROOM

DEAR PARENTS: It is not proper to make a note of "NO gifts" on the wedding invitations. Say nothing, and let your relatives use their own judgment.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "A DON JUAN": Before going to another woman for comfort or solace, remember, no matter how overwhelming your problem is, you will never hurt less by making another human being hurt more.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

BE SMART—

Cut velvets are cropping up in smartest cocktail lounges and dinner spots, setting a new trend in dress-up talk. The reason—velvet is extremely flattering to the complexion. Black velvet flowers complement lustrous white satin in a jaunty little jacket, shown here with a simple white satin dress. And a pink satin dinner dress is exquisitely topped with a matching cut velvet, patterned in a symmetrical floral design.

TODAY'S RECIPE

PRUNE CORN BREAD

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup yellow corn meal, 5 teaspoons double-action baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup sugar, 2 eggs, beaten; ¼ cup melted shortening, 1¾ cups milk or buttermilk, 1½ cups plumped* pitted chopped prunes.

Sift dry ingredients together into a bowl, combine and stir in eggs, shortening and milk or buttermilk all at once. Stir in prunes. Pour into a greased 9-inch-square baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, about 25-30 minutes. Serve hot with butter and jam. Makes 8 large squares.

* To plump prunes just soak overnight in cold water—1 quart of water to 1 pound of prunes.

Gay Sweaters 'Regulars' On Night life!

By Nona Damaske

Sweaters have been going to holiday parties for some time now and staying home of a dressy evening, too.

Damaske

A party at the home of a friend will often call for a simple dress with an embroidered cardigan sweater over the shoulders, or a scoop neck slipover with a matching velvet or taffeta skirt.

Slender slims, a great favorite for at-home wear, team beautifully with a dressy sweater. Aside from being toasty warm and wonderfully comfortable, the new sweaters offer real dazzle.

AVAILABLE HERE

One of our smart specialty shops has a collection of these sweaters which will make your mouth water. They are luscious! Just picture delicate mimosa yellow cashmere overlaid with tiny white caviar beads or turquoise blue lambs' wool with luminous bugle beads en tone.

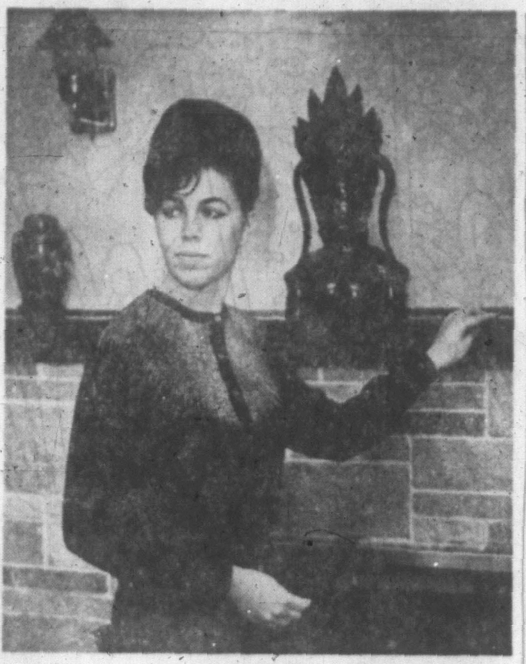
Sage green wool is embroidered with large fern-like sprays of white caviar beads and black cashmere is a striking background for pearl-toned opalescent sequins.

The black and white sweater in our picture is seen reversed with white Oriental symbols on black. Black and white is used again in a white sweater with the trim in a Spanish mood . . . black soutache braid and jet beads.

There are several styles which would be more suitable for daytime wear, including gay flowers or fruit embroidered on solid shades.

Bead and sequin trim is carried through in a selection of gloves and small evening bags for holiday functions. The gloves, in three lengths, come in black or white and have bead trim right to the fingertips. The hand-embroidered bags are found in sparkling white, black and gold.

Stoles and shoulder scarves are a pretty touch of femininity and what could be more delicate than Siamese silk from Bangkok in soft pastel tones? For a festive touch these stoles have metallic embroidery in antique gold and silver.



For holiday festivities at home or informal dates, Lois Robbins wears a black cashmere sweater with golden sunburst of bugle beads. The lavish beading, done entirely by hand, glitters and shimmers with every movement of the shoulders. Miss Robbins leaves Victoria on Sunday for an 18-month visit abroad.

Old Crease Is Problem When Skirts Let Down

"Dear Eunice:

"I am trying to let down the hems in my children's clothes and can't remember what you said about getting the crease marks out. I'm sure that many mothers are faced with this problem at this time of year and would also like to know."

Mrs. R.D.

Dear Mrs. R.D.:

Crease marks in cottons and woolens usually can be eliminated by carefully rubbing the crease with white vinegar or carbonated water before pressing. If the crease has been pressed in very deeply, it will be almost impossible to remove. Often the hemline actually has been worn or faded, and of course this can't be removed.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Food, Exercise, Clean Hair And Skin Are 4 Essentials

There are so many splendid cosmetics on the market and there is so much information about skin and hair care that it is not strange that women sometimes become confused by the whole picture.

Lowman

There is so much to learn about all of these things which is worthwhile learning! However, so we will not lose sight of the fundamentals, let us review them today.

In the first place be sure that you eat a well-balanced diet which includes the four fundamental food groups. Also, count your calorie intake so that you will remain at your ideal weight for your height and build.

As far as skin care is concerned, the important factors are regular daily cleansing (once or twice a day), and lubrication from early middle-age on — even sooner, if you have a dry epidermis. These are the fundamentals. Then there are all sorts of extra benefits such as eyecreams and moisturizing creams and bases and lotions and the wonderful hormone creams. The most important thing is cleanliness and lubrication.

The hair also requires cleanliness and also stimulation. If your hair and scalp are very dry, shampoo your tresses only every 10 or 12 days. If you have an oily scalp, once or twice a week washing is indicated.

The stimulation of circulation in the scalp is essential in either case. Massage your scalp or brush your hair in such a way as to stimulate circulation in the scalp.

By now everyone knows how important exercise is, and how fine nutrition is reflected in the complexion and the hair and in vitality.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

It's Time We Thought Of Honoring Dr. Kelsey

By Elizabeth Forbes

Forbes

Earlier in the week it was reported on this page that a letter had gone forward to Dr. Francis Kelsey from the Local Council of Women. It offered thanks for her work in detecting the tragic results that could occur from thalidomide, and her courage in fighting to stop the sale of the drug.

This column wishes to thank the Local Council of Women for sending that letter to Dr. Kelsey.

Other groups in the city may have done the same sort of thing, but if so they have been keeping it remarkably quiet. It would be no surprise to discover that the council is the first to let this brilliant woman, whom we were quick to call our own, know that we are proud of her and her work.

Granted that the local council represents 34 women's organizations in this city and that it speaks for them. Nevertheless, I am hoping these individual groups, and others too, have written—or will write—the same sort of letter. It bears repeating over and over again.

And Not In Words But Deeds

While I am in the mood, I would also like to bring back to your minds the squabble that took place earlier this month in the House of Commons at Ottawa when representatives of Esquimalt-Saanich and Nanaimo-Cowichan both tried to claim Dr. Kelsey's birthplace for their own ridings.

Argument evolved when Colin Cameron, member of Parliament for Nanaimo-Cowichan, stood up to suggest that the House go on record in congratulating Dr. Kelsey and in expressing its pride in her work. George Chatterton, member of parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich, took exception to Mr. Cameron adding the claim that she was born in his riding. "She belongs to us," was his cry.

The Oldham family home was on the Shawnigan Lake Road out of Cobble Hill, so Mr. Chatterton was right.

However, it would have pleased me more, if the two gentlemen had stood together to remind the House that Dr. Kelsey is a Canadian, born on Vancouver Island in British Columbia, and as such should receive much more acclaim than a vote of commendation.

Praises of the United States government have been heaped on Dr. Kelsey. She has received the highest United States civil honor. Good Housekeeping magazine has given her its award for distinguished public service and the United States Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, with a membership in the tens of thousands, has presented her with a bronze plaque "in recognition of outstanding service."

What has Canada done to honor this outstanding woman? What have the people of British Columbia or the government of the people of this province done?

I have no doubt that every thinking Canadian is proud of Dr. Kelsey, born Frances Oldham up near Cobble Hill, and of her work.

But is this enough? Surely, in this case, pride should reach out further than mere words.

Brief May Have Turned Scales

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—A reported "favorable" attitude of Prime Minister Diefenbaker toward a royal commission on divorce may spur current negotiations between the four political parties aimed at having such a commission established, reliable informants said today.

The suggestion for a commission was made Wednesday in a brief by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

This development came in the midst of behind-the-scenes political talks with the same end in view. The latest move was initiated by Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) with a direct appeal to Mr. Diefenbaker for establishment of a commission.

As a result, there have been these developments:

1. Liberal Leader Pearson is reported to have expressed interest and requested an examination of a constitutional point involving federal powers over maintenance allowances for divorce spouses and custody of children.

2. Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson has said the 30 MPs of his party have established a committee to examine their position with respect to divorce and a royal commission.

3. New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas is said to be favorable to such a commission.

4. Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), a Toronto lawyer who has specialized in civil rights and constitutional questions, has prepared a memorandum on the maintenance allowance and custody questions being circulated to all parties.

5. Mr. Peters, who with Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) has spearheaded a drive in Parliament for changes in divorce procedure, has had draft terms of reference for a royal commission drawn up and circulated.

Considerable attention has been focused on the parliamentary divorce system in recent years by the campaign of Mr. Howard and Mr. Peters in favor of having the Exchequer Court of Canada handle Quebec and Newfoundland divorces.

Both NDP members would be expected to halt their procedural blockade should the negotiations result in reference of the question to a royal commission supported by all four parties.

China Switches Key Ambassadors

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist China announced Friday it has reshuffled ambassadors in its two most sensitive diplomatic posts—Moscow and New Delhi—in a surprise move apparently linked with the border crisis with India and ideological dispute with Russia.

The official New China news agency said China's ambassador to India, Pan Tzu-li, had been "relieved" of his post and reassigned to Moscow.

In Moscow, Pan will replace Liu Hsiao, who left the Soviet capital about a month ago. The report did not say whether Liu had been reassigned.

No replacement was announced for Pan's New Delhi post, which he left about a year ago during a flareup in the border dispute.

Both Pan and Liu have had to bear the brunt of Indian and Russian ire over the two disputes.

TIGHT CURBS

Pan's position in New Delhi has been particularly uncomfortable. He and his staff have been threatened by demonstrating Indians angered over China's border invasion. The Indian government has placed tight restrictions on the operation of the Chinese embassy.

Liu's position in Moscow also has been difficult. His formal removal—Peking had been represented by a charge d'affaires in Moscow in recent weeks—came when the ideological struggle was being openly waged at the Hungarian party congress.

Liberals Hold Seat

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Liberal Earl Windsor retained Labrador North for Premier Smallwood's government in Friday's deferred provincial election in the far-flung constituency. Mr. Windsor ran up a wide margin over his only opponent, Progressive Conservative Arthur Hale.

Charlotte Knows All About Douks

OTTAWA (CP) — Mayor Charlotte Whitton says looking into the problem of British Columbia's Sons of Freedom Doukhobors would be nothing new for her.

"Doukhobors . . . I know all about them," the mayor said today in commenting on a suggestion by Alberta Senator Donald Cameron that she might be the ideal person to investigate the Doukhobor problem.

"If they look back," she said, "They will find that I was sent out there quietly by Prime Minister Bennett in 1932 to look into the probelm.

"The trouble in those days was the parents wouldn't keep their clothes on and the children wouldn't take them off. I'm thoroughly familiar with the problem."

Senator Cameron an independent-Liberal, said Thursday the sect's leadership is matriarchal and therefore it might be better for a woman to find a solution. He suggested Miss Whitton may be more than a match for Big Fannie Storgoff, acknowledged leader of the B.C. trek of Freedomites.

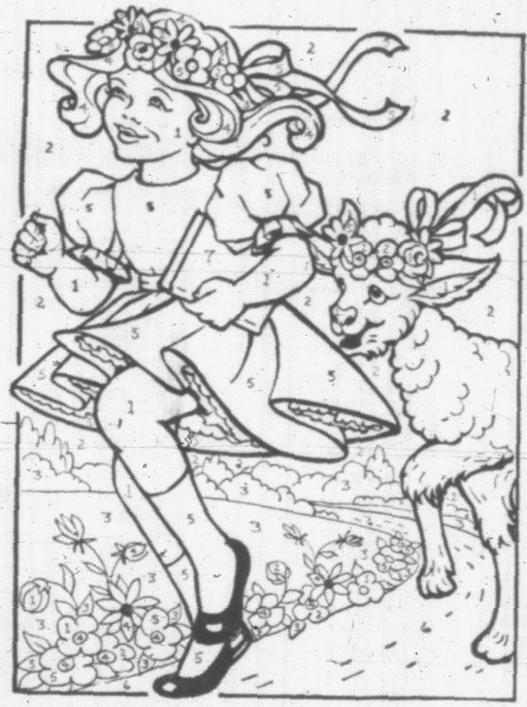
Color Mary and Lamb By Numbers



Mary and her little lamb look extremely happy in the scene above. Perhaps it is because artist Jane Niebrugge has depicted them on their way home from school instead of the other way around.

Use this diagram to test your talents as an artist. Employing colored pencils or crayons, apply hues to the various segments according to these number indicators:

1—Pink
2—Blue
3—Green
4—Yellow
5—Lavender
6—Tan
7—Red

How quickly and neatly can you color the entire scene?

ask henry

Henry invites letters from readers. For the most interesting letter he receives each week, he will award a copy of his best-selling book, "Ask Henry," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

This week's winner is Miss R. Rogo, 198 Hastings Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Dear Henry:

I have a problem. I can't go to sleep at night. Sometimes I get up and say my prayers again. I turn my pillow over so it will be fresh and cool. But still no sleep. Then in the morning I am tired. I am six years old and in grade two. Mummy worries that I won't pass if I am tired at school. Thank you. R.

Dear R.:

Before you go to bed tonight decide what you are going to dream about. If you are a boy, dream that you are the leader of a million soldiers, and live in a fortress; if you are a girl dream that you've got millions of nice dresses and live in a castle of gold with a prince. Now you've got the specifications for a sleeping beauty.

HENRY.

Dear Henry:

I am 13 years old and I hang around with this gang. There are five boys and two girls. We hang around the alley where one of the boys works (he is 14). My mother doesn't think it's right. If he isn't working we walk around from street to street. That's all we do. J. N. N.

Dear Desperate:

You didn't sign desperate but I just figured you were. YOU ARE. Just listen to these tips for happy motoring:

1. Quit hanging around with this gang.
2. Get cracking at play, at home and at school.

HENRY.

Dear Henry:

My son got very good marks at school last year. This year after loking at his first term report card I see it is not as good. Is this an indication of the year? Should I be worried? A LITTLE WORRIED.

Dear A Little Worried:

No need to be worried. A kid spends the first term finding out what the teacher's tests are like and what the teachers are like. You should praise your son saying that it is a good start and that a kid usually gets better as the year goes on.

HENRY.

Dear Henry:

What should I do with my two-year-old daughter who can't stay still for a second and gets into mischief all the time? MRS. M. J. T.

Dear Mrs. M. J. T.:

I don't know what's wrong with you parents. Now you worry what to do with a child that is in mischief and doesn't stay still. So when the poor kid doesn't get into mischief and stays still you think he is sick!

HENRY.

Dear Henry:

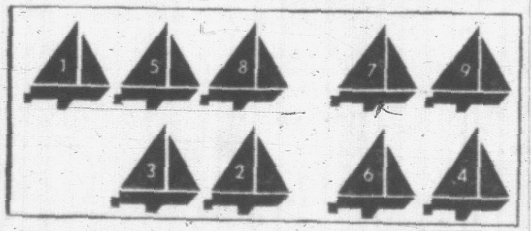
I've got a problem. Whenever I am in a swimming meet I get nervous, even in a baseball game, that is practice. I would like you to tell me what I should do about being nervous. CHRIS.

Dear Chris:

All the big wheels in sport are always nervous before a game. And being nervous helps them keep alert. So if its good for big wheels like them it's good for a little spoke like you.

HENRY

Smooth Sailing In Sea of Numbers



Nine sailboats shown at right bear the digits from one to nine. They are arranged in two groups. If you take the trouble to multiply the numbers displayed, you will find that 158 multiplied by 32 is 5,056, and that 79 multiplied by 64 is the same.

This brings up a question: How is it possible to rearrange the same group of sailboats (in other words, the same nine digits) so that the multiplication of each group will result in both a larger and smaller amount? That is to say, in each computation both groups must achieve the same product.

Answer: A smaller product may be achieved by swapping the figures 32 and 64 to 23 and 46. To effect a larger product multiply 174 by 32 and 96 by 58.

TWO CATCH QUESTIONS

The following queries were inserted in an IQ test given undergraduate engineers, as a determinant of how they might handle seemingly foolish queries from future clients for their services.

1. How long is a piece of string?

2. How far can a dog run into the woods?

There are logical answers. Can you think of any?

Answers: 1. Twice as long as the distance between its centre and either end. 2. A dog can run halfway into the woods. Thereafter, he's running out of the woods.

RIDDLE

What merchant, no matter how honest he may be, must earn his living by "foul" means?

Answer: The poultry dealer.

SEEING THINGS TWO WAYS

Oculist O. P. Tick took up a pointer and asked Mr. Jones to read off six consecutive letters of the alphabet from a chart.

To his surprise, Mr. Jones stared in an opposite direction and read out the letters exactly as they appeared. For Mr. Jones was looking in a mirror in which the chart and pointer were reflected and it so happened that the six consecutive letters looked exactly in the mirror as they did on the chart. Mr. Jones, therefore, read them without difficulty. What six different letters were they?

Answer: The letters T, U, V, W, X, Y, which read the same in reverse. A, H, I, M and O likewise read the same in reverse but they are not consecutive.

MARK OF MYSTERY

Visitors to a boat yard during a fitting out time may notice a small daub of paint on a propeller. Why?

Answer: Because of a superstition which holds that this daub of paint on a new propeller and hull brings good luck to the ship.

WHAT TWO NUMBERS?

Two numbers are in the ratio of 3 to 4. If seven is subtracted from each of them, the remainders are in the ratio of 2 to 3. The numbers are under 50. What are they?

Answer: Twenty-one and twenty-eight.

BRAIN TEASER

Old Man Oldham wants to give $3 to each of his grandchildren. He finds that he lacks $8 of having enough money to do so. If he gives them $2 apiece he will have $3 left.

How many grandchildren has Oldham, and how much money?

See if you can solve this without using pencil and paper.

No fair peeking below.

Answer: He has 11 grandchildren and 25 dollars.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

Today's hand is an example of the Jacoby Transfer at its best.

North has a sound opening no-trump and South holds 11 points and two five-card suits. South starts proceedings by responding two diamonds and when North bids two hearts as required South continues with three diamonds. This shows a diamond suit and is a game force as well.

Opening lead—♣J

With four diamonds and two hearts North prefers diamonds and he also sees that there's a chance for a slam. Hence, North goes to four diamonds.

At this point South might bid four no-trump. But in the JTB if responder follows a transfer bid with four no-trump he is asking for aces, but South is more interested in kings. At the same time, South wants to invite a slam and he does so by bidding four spades.

North is able to read this as a slam try. South can't have three five-card suits and North is interested with his king and one heart and four diamonds to the king-jack. For all North knows there may be seven. All South's bids have been forces and he has never limited his hand.

So North goes to five clubs to show the ace of that suit and now it is up to South to set the contract. He bids six diamonds.

There is no trouble making this. The only loser is the ace of trumps.

He said the final decision should be made this weekend.

NANAIMO — Trucks, loaders and bulldozers shipped earlier this week for the construction of a parking lot at the Departure Bay ferry terminal, are all back in Vancouver today.

They returned after three Nanaimo trucking and construction firms protested to Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi the employment of a Vancouver firm in the construction of a parking lot.

Mr. Gaglardi said it was all a mistake.

In a statement, he said a department official new to the job had been responsible for awarding work to the Vancouver firm.

He said it was the policy of his department to employ local labor and contracting firms when possible.

Mill Fatality Termed Accidental

Verdict of accidental death was brought in by a coroner's jury Friday investigating the mill accident which took the life of Robert Wallace Kennedy, 850 Dominion, Tuesday morning.

Dr. E. L. McNiven, called to the scene of the fatal accident at McCarter's shingle mill, Rock Bay, testified death had been caused by a nearly 12-foot piece of two-by-four which had been propelled four inches into the chest cavity of the 55-year-old millwright.

Death probably resulted from internal bleeding, the doctor said.

Mr. Kennedy was discovered lying on his back in the pit of the mill with the board protruding from his chest and lying between his knees.

Robert Douglas, sawyer on machine No. 7, said Mr. Kennedy had gone down to replace an three-inch belt which had slipped off its pulley.

The main drive shaft was still running.

The deceased had replaced the belt once but it had come off again as soon as the tightener was dropped, Mr. Douglas testified.

It is believed Mr. Kennedy might have been holding the belt, thought loosened during the wind and rain-storm over the weekend, onto the pulley with the piece of lumber when the accident occured.

Alfred Holloway, inspector for the Workmen's Compensation Board, said he also thought Mr. Kennedy might have been prying the belt back onto the pulley with the board when it caught in the spokes of the wheel.

Members of the jury asked him whether this was usual or safe practice.

"If I saw a man doing something like that I would definately say 'no'," he replied.

Amalgamation!

Argument Goes Back A Long Way

By JOHN MIKA

If there's one word that can galvanize Greater Victorians into unending campaigns, panels, debates and chain letters to the editor it's "amalgamation."

The word has been the battle cry of this area for decades and yet another skirmish will be fought at the Saanich polls Dec. 6 when the referendum is decided.

The verbal war has passed through hot and cold phases, with the most recent "hot" period beginning in Jan., 1955.

In the seven years since then, a total of more than 560 references to the subject have accumulated in the Times' library files—and that's only a partial record of the running battle.

Skipping the personalities and the arguments, here's a brief rundown on what has happened in that period as gleaned from the newspaper clippings of council meetings, debates, announcements and campaigns on the question:

In January of 1955, the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, tired of frequently-expressed and contradictory personal opinions about Greater Victoria's government, decided to put up $5,000 for an independent study.

By September of that year, after many discussions, the four Greater Victoria municipal councils agreed to co-operate by allowing their financial records to be examined.

Note that it was the last time the four councils were to agree to a study.

Hired Research Institute

The chambers hired the Citizens Research Institute of Canada—a specialized Toronto organization—to make the study. Two experts came out to carry it out.

At the same time, Premier W. A. C. Bennett set a pattern which his government and Victoria MLAs were to follow in the subsequent years—encouraging amalgamation from the sidelines without becoming embroiled in the conflict directly.

"We will do anything we can to help bring it about but we will not dictate it," the premier said on Sept. 20, 1955.

The then Saanich reeve Arthur Ash—a leading figure in favor of amalgamation—urged a civic study of metropolitan government here and construction of a joint municipal hall in his 1956 inaugural address. Victoria appeared interested. Esquimalt and Oak Bay aloof.

June 15, 1956, was a major milestone as the 75-page report of the Citizens Research Institute of Canada was unveiled.

It urged direct amalgamation of Victoria, urban Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and View Royal rather than a metro government.

The following month, then mayor Percy Scurrah and the three reeves agreed to set up an intermunicipal committee to study this report, but within a few weeks Oak Bay and Esquimalt had walked out and refused to participate in a joint study.

They have never changed their minds since, through all the debates and subsequent investigations, and all efforts at a four-way study have failed.

On March 6, 1957, however, they were given a severe jolt by introduction of a new Municipal Act in the legislature.

One of its provisions was that two-thirds approval by

Times Plans Forum

In the accompanying article Mr. Mika has traced the history of the amalgamation controversy over the last decade without going into the arguments for and against.

As a public service the Times next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will carry a public forum on these arguments. Protagonists and antagonists are invited to submit their views summing up the points.

Articles should not be more than 500 words in length and should be addressed to the managing editor.

Armed Youths Flee After Crime Spree

GOLDEN (CP)—Two armed youths who have boasted they will kill anyone trying to stop them were being hunted today by police in British Columbia and Alberta.

The pair fled this Rocky Mountain border village early Friday in a stolen car after escaping from the trap of a garage owner whose premises had been looted three times in the last month.

Police have blamed at least 12 breakins here on the pair and a third youth arrested late Fri-

They said the pair being sought are armed with at least three rifles, a .32-calibre pistol and a large quantity of ammunition, all stolen property.

They are driving a 1958 model car stolen in Ontario.

B.E. GAMES

KIDD, POUND WIN

PERTH, Australia — Toronto's Bruce Kidd and Dick Pound of Montreal made it a big day for Canada at the British Empire Games today as they gave the Dominion its first gold medals with record-breaking efforts.

Swimmers, who had collected two silver medals in relay events Friday, picked up two bronze medallions today for third-place finishes.

Canada was also awarded a bronze medal in fencing to make it seven medals in the first two days of the games.

Kidd, 19, raced away from the field with a brilliant burst of speed to win the six-mile event in 28 minutes, 26.6 seconds, hitting the tape 50 yards in front of former record-holder Dave Power of Australia.

Montreal's Pound scored a major upset in the swimming events when he beat Bobby McGregor of Scotland in the 110-yard freestyle. Pound's time of 59:55.9 seconds topped the old record.

Mary Stewart, Vancouver, won a bronze medal in the women's 110-yard freestyle and Aldy Meinhardt, Vancouver, was third in the men's 110-yard butterfly swim.

In fencing, the Montreal pair of Carl Schwende and Ben Simo and Toronto's John Andru were third in team foils.

See story on page 10 for details of today's events at the Empire Games.

'Aiming Only for First' Jerome Says After Losing

(Times News Service)

PERTH—"When I saw him ahead my whole edge went off and I sort of collapsed."

That was Harry Jerome's explanation today for his disappointing showing in the 100-yard dash final at the British Empire Games.

The event was won by Seraphino Antao of Kenya. Jerome finished last after pulling up about two-thirds of the way down the track.

Jerome was a downhearted man as he left the track.

Antao was first out of the blocks and led at the halfway mark of the 100 with Jerome second. After 80 yards, the Canadian faltered and the stylish Kenyan went on to win by about two feet over Tommy Robinson of the Bahamas.

Jerome's disappointing performance was almost identical to his failure in the 1960 Olympics when he dropped out before the finish of the 100.

Talking to reporters, Jerome recounted what has been his sad story in other big events.

"I was trying to beat Antao," he said. "When I saw him ahead my whole edge went off and I sort of collapsed.

"There was no real pain. I just tried too hard. I don't think I pulled a muscle. He (Antao) got off the blocks real fine. There was just him and me. I tried to catch him but just could not make it."

Jerome said he thought he could have taken a silver medal if he had hung on but "my whole heart went out. I was aiming only for the gold."

Jerome said he would try again—"really hard" in the 220-yard dash.

FRIENDSHIP DOLLARS FOR INDIA

Small Donation Can Save Child

Every day in Victoria a man quietly smokes a packet of cigarettes while someone dies he could easily save.

Yet few of the smokers realize what is happening because the person whose life they could save is in India.

And they find it hard to believe that the small sum needed to buy cigarettes in Canada is the difference between life and death for some Indian.

But according to Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee, such is actually the case. The price of a large pack of cigarettes is enough to feed an Indian child with powdered milk every day for six months.

That is why even a small sum donated to the Times appeal for "Friendship Dollars for India" makes such a big impact on someone's life.

Dr. Hitschmanova thinks that most persons, hearing about the effect of a donation, would readily give something. But many of them never get around to actually doing it, she says.

Yet all they need to do is to send a cheque to "Friendship Dollars for India," c/o The Times, 2631 Douglas, or drop in their donation personally.

All contributions will be acknowledged with a receipt from the Times and in the news columns of the paper. Later, the USC will send a formal receipt.

All donations are deductible for income tax purposes.

The Times appeal has passed the $1,500 figure. The next list of acknowledgments of donations will be published Monday.

Storm Winds Rake Entire B.C. Coast

Gusts Hit 80 mph Up-Island

Screaming winds driving heavy rains surged over Vancouver Island today in a storm roaring in from the Gulf of Alaska and Queen Charlottes area.

Renewed rain and winds up to 70 miles an hour are expected Sunday.

In addition to battering the island, the storm roared far inland.

At points as far apart as Courtenay and Prince George in the central interior, there were reports of damage, but no injuries.

The wind gusted to 80 miles an hour on the central east coast of the island.

On the west coast, Tofino airport recorded the heaviest rainfall in the province, a whopping 4.79 inches in 30 hours.

Port Hardy, on the north coast, was doused with 2.41 inches in 24 hours, most of it early this morning. Nanaimo showed 1.35 inches and Comox 1.81.

POWER LINES DOWN

In the hardest hit Courtenay-Comox area, power and phone lines were downed. Fallen trees blocked several roads, and a large paper scow was knocked from its morings in Campbell River harbor.

RCAF Station Comox reported electrical trouble due to the storm, and at one period cut in its emergency power unit.

In Greater Victoria, more than one-third inch of rain fell between 8:15 and 11:15 a.m.

But several hours of pouring rain only overflowed a few ditches and clogged some drains in the Greater Victoria area.

Officials said there was no serious damage caused by the

U.S. GIVES CONTRACT FOR HOT, NEW FIGHTER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. defence department today selected General Dynamics Corp. to develop a revolutionary, new supersonic double duty fighter plane for use by both the navy on carriers and by the air force from land bases.

The multi-purpose jet warplane will be capable of reaching speeds two-and-a-half-times the speed of sound. It is the largest single military fighter program since the Second World War.

The development contract alone calls for building 22 test models, and will probably run close to $750,000,000. Eventually, perhaps 1,500 planes will be built at a cost of $4 to $5 billion.

ASKS 'CLARIFICATION'

India Hints Ready to Talk

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India gave its first diplomatic recognition to Red China's self-imposed cease-fire today by asking for "clarification" of several points in the Peking proposal to end the fighting and start negotiating a peace in the undeclared border war.

A spokesman said Foreign Minister M. J. Desai summoned the Chinese charge d' affaires Friday and raised "several points which required clarification."

The Chinese charge d'affaires is obtaining clarification from Peking," the spokesman added.

But he declined to say what points needed clarifying.

The move was the first formal achnowledgement by India of the three-day-old cease-fire, which thus far has been "under consideration" here and only tacitly observed by the Indian army.

But tacit or not, the cease-fire has brought an effective end to the fighting—at least until Dec. 1, when the Chinese said they planned to withdraw back to the north but warned the Indians not to move into the territory abandoned under threat of renewed attack.

The spokesman said patrolling was going on in both the North East Frontier Agency and in the Ladakh region of the 2,500-mile Himalayan front. But there were no shooting incidents anywhere along the line today.

China Asks Bertie's Aid

PEKING (Reuters) — The news here today was dominated by Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's letter to British philosopher-pacifist Bertrand Russell asking his help to persuade India to accept border negotiations based on Peking's cease fire proposals.

The official New China news agency reported Chou sent Russell a letter Friday expressing "great pleasure at his statement welcoming and supporting" China's cease-fire and withdrawal proposals.

Chou said he hoped Russell would continue his "distin- [illegible] Indian government to respond positively to the Chinese government cease-fire statement of Nov. 21, and adopt corresponding measures.

Victorian Achieved Fame In Education, Arts, CBC

Ira Dilworth, 68, who died suddenly in Vancouver Friday, had a distinguished career in education, the arts and broadcasting, and was a former principal of Victoria High School.

IRA DILWORTH
. . . youngest principal

He lived here from 1909 to 1934.

Until recently he was director of program evaluation for the CBC's national radio and television service and was consultant to the CBC on long-term policy matters.

Funeral services will be held in Ryerson United Church, Vancouver, Monday at 3 p.m.

Mr. Dilworth taught at Victoria High School from 1915 to 1926 when he became principal—one of the youngest B.C teachers to receive such an appointment.

HEADED FEDERATION

He was twice elected president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation and won the Ferguson memorial award for "outstanding" contributions to education."

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Thomas Southern, 577 Michigan, Victoria; two nieces whom he legally adopted, Mrs. John E. A. Parnell of Vancouver and Mrs. William Inglis of West Vancouver and the latter's son, John Ira Dilworth Inglis.

Born in High Bluff, Man., Mr. Dilworth moved to Kelowna as a youth when his father became a cattle rancher there. He was educated at Benvoulin country school near Kelowna, Victoria High School, McGill (BA) and Harvard (MA).

In 1934 he joined the staff of the University of British Columbia as an associate professor of English and the same year became director of the Bach Choir, a post he held until 1940.

He was appointed professor of English at UBC in 1938 and later joined the CBC as regional director for B.C.

Mr. Dilworth was instrumental in gaining recognition for Victoria artist Emily Carr. He assisted her in the publication of several books, writing introductions for "Klee Wyck" in 1941 and "Growing Pains" in 1946.

ESTATE EXECUTOR

He was literary executor for her estate and, with Lawren Harris, one of the Group of Seven painters, was a trustee of her paintings.

He opened the Emily Carr exhibition at the Toronto Art Gallery in October, 1945, and edited her unpublished works after her death. They were published in 1953 under the title The Heart of the Peacock.

In 1946 he became first president of Vancouver Community Arts Council.

Mr. Dilworth held an honorary degree of doctor of law from UBC. He edited "Twentieth Century Verse," an anthology published in 1945, and texts on Shakespeare and 19th century poetry for high schools.

'Bully' Fined $50 On Assault Charge

Driver of a car who repeatedly cut off another vehicle and then punched its driver was fined $50 in city police court Friday.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of assault.

Court was told Raymond Williams, 3895 Hobbs, followed another car up Yates Street, from Douglas to the east of Cook, cutting him off four times.

After the cars came into collision with one another near the Medical Arts Building, Williams punched the driver of the other vehicle.

Cause for the assault was that the accused believed he had been cut off by the other car at Yates and Douglas, it was alleged.

Magistrate William Ostler asked if there was not another charge in respect to the accused's driving.

"You are a physical bully as well as a driving bully," he told the 210-pound Williams.

"If I could suspend your licence I would," he added.

bad weather. There were few requests for help from municipal authorities.

One official said he does not expect any "real trouble" as a result of the rain.

COLLEGE HIT

But higher education showed signs of foundering in a greasy morass of Gordon Head mud as, for the second time in a week, heavy rains inundated the chewed-up grounds of just-finished Clearihue classroom block at Victoria College.

The week after it opened its basement was flood by a burst pipe.

The rains are forced by wind through the seams of large glass walls of stair wells on the ends of the building—particularly the south end—and water sluices onto slippery terazzo floors.

Some water-softened plaster has fallen off a wall at the north end of the building, and around the main entrance, a subsided concrete apron catches large pools of water.

MORE SUNDAY

Partial clearing was expected late this afternoon, but a second disturbance is forecast for Sunday, bringing a return of lashing winds and driving rain. Temperatures will remain mild.

On the mainland, the wind drove over the Vancouver area at 55 miles an hour, lifting parts of roofs and breaking windows. Some power supplies were cut.

At Powell River a tree blocked a highway for a time and many telephone circuits were cut.

Ot Prince George, 400 miles northeast of here there were power failures and blocked roads. The main wind storm hit at 3 a.m. and lasted for three hours, blowing there at times to 65 miles an hour.

Temperatures across the province were mild.

New Tender Call For Airport Job

CAMPBELL RIVER — The village will call tenders again for work at the Campbell River Municipal Airport.

Decision was made by council at a special meeting because the price spread in original tenders was thought to be too great and possibly in error.

What puzzled council was the big difference between the low bid of L & H Logging, for $15,775, and the other two tenders of $23,250 and $24,500.

Council took the advice of their solicitor and will re-advertise the work which involves clearing, stumping and grubbing at the airport site. Tenders will be opened Dec. 11.

. . . AMALGAMATION

a group of municipalities studying metro government could force establishment of the system in any area of the province.

Fred Norris, Oak Bay reeve at the time, expressed shock, pointing out that a favorable vote in Victoria and Saanich might be used to force Oak Bay into a metro government. This has continued to be one of the background fears in both Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Victoria Favored Commission

Dec. 12, 1957, was another important milestone.

In Victoria, voters approved three-to-one a referendum for a royal commission investigation of amalgamation.

Election voting in Saanich also heartened and strengthened pro-amalgamationists as Mr. Ash and a slate he headed swept the polls while the voters turned out anti-amalgamation councillors Eugene Diespecker and Leslie Passmore.

As a result, events picked up in tempo—relatively speaking—and by April of 1958 a joint Victoria-Saanich civic committee had appointed city manager C. C. Wyatt and Saanich comptroller John Tribe to an investigating committee.

A few weeks later, with the promise of provincial financial help for the study, the committee was rounded out with Dr. J. J. Deutsch—a top governmental finance expert and university professor (who now heads an eastern university)—as chairman.

The three-man committee presented its report, after an exhaustive study of all available data supplied by both municipalities, Oct. 21, 1958.

That report recommended amalgamation of Victoria and all of Saanich.

Both municipalities scheduled referendums on the question for the December elections and a truly hectic round of panel debates and speeches by both sides followed.

Victoria voters approved their referendum, but Saanich voters said no.

This shattered amalgamationists but—as always—only temporarily.

Occasional references were made to it by pro and anti-amalgamationists over the next two years and then it gradually crept to the forefront of community discussions.

In January of 1961, departing Capital Region Planning Board director Brahm Weisman said there should be a gradual amalgamation of the whole area and, significantly, Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black agreed in a personal comment.

A month later, Waldo Skillings, making his maiden speech in the legislature as a Victoria MLA, urged a formal study of amalgamation. A few months later, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said amalgamation was bound to come eventually.

Bitter Reeveship Campaign

Sporadic comments continued that year and then in Saanich came a sometimes bitter reeveship campaign. Stanley Murphy won out over Leslie Passmore and John Tisdalle.

On Dec. 8, having won a thumping victory, Reeve-elect Murphy started the pot boiling again as he announced that he would open the question of a metro study with Victoria's new mayor.

Mayor-elect R. B. Wilson followed this up on his election night, Dec. 15, with a statement that he would invite all three reeves to a meeting to discuss a merger study under the Municipal Act.

This was held, but Jan. 24, this year, the Esquimalt and Oak Bay delegates said their municipalities would never agree to a formal study.

In a series of statements, Mayor Wilson appealed to the residents of Oak Bay and Esquimalt to seek a study so all the facts could be learned, but the two councils countered by using their taxpayers' money for half-page advertisements arguing against any formal study.

In April, city council reversed its stand against at least an informal consideration of amalgamation by the politicos, but it was too late. By then a split vote in Saanich council had cut the ground out from under Reeve Murphy.

The reeve gave up hopes of a study June 21 when Councillors Joseph Casey, Gregory Cook, Harold Todd and Robert Ostler refused to permit Saanich participation in a study.

Subsequently the Chamber of Commerce began efforts to sponsor another independent study to up-date the various reports and the Saanich "old guard" suddenly reversed its field.

Proclaiming themselves sick of "seeing amalgamation rear its ugly head again and again," Councillors Casey, Cook, Todd and Ostler voted for a referendum—barely two months after they refused a study.

HYPEROPIA

Hyperopia, or far-sightedness, is present in more than six out of ten people

Often in this condition both distant and close objects are seen clearly. The reason for this is that the focusing mechanism in the eye can overcome the defects of far-sightedness and produce clear vision. This means that the focusing mechanism must be constantly at work if clear vision is to be obtained and thus a mechanism that is primarily intended for close work produces fatigue, eyestrain, headaches, and frequently tends to make the eyes turn toward each other. When far-sightedness is corrected by glasses the focusing mechanism is allowed to relax and assume its normal role, and comfortable, efficient vision is again obtained. It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least every two years.

SAANICH CANDIDATES AGREE

Is Amalgamation Right? Talks on Terms Needed

Saanich will never know whether amalgamation is a good or bad thing until terms are discussed with Victoria, candidate Robert Mathison told a lively election meeting at the CCF Richmond Hall Friday.

This summed up the views of two other candidates: Coun. Robert Chard and Lionel Speller.

In support of Mr. Mathison's views, Coun. Chard explained a "yes" vote would permit the council to see if a satisfactory amalgamation agreement can be drawn up between Victoria and Saanich.

"It is also essential that council gets a strong yes or no vote," he added. "We don't want a wishy-washy vote. Council wants direction on this question of amalgamation."

The meeting was the first of a series of seven to be held within the next 10 days.

The others will be held at St. George's Hall, Tuesday, Nov. 27; Lake Hill Women's Institute, Quadra Street, Wednesday, Nov. 28; St. Luke's Hall, Friday, Nov. 30; Lansdowne Junior High School, Monday, Dec. 3; and Royal Oak High School, Tuesday, Dec. 4.

With the exception of the meeting at St. George's Hall, which begins at 8:15, all others start at 8 p.m.

Friday's meeting saw a lot of good-natured heckling, cheering and jeering by an audience of about 75.

Amalgamtion foe Leslie Passmore, a veteran councillor seeking election after being defeated last year in a bid for the reeveship, warned that merger with Victoria would mean "higher taxes."

"And you won't get anything in return," he said.

He noted that Saanich had no direct debt.

"We have followed the policy of 'pay as you go'—a policy which the city has abandoned," he said. "By setting aside money each year we paid for a new fire-police hall and a new health centre."

Coun. Joseph Casey, seeking re-election and a member of the anti-amalgamation faction, supported Mr. Passmore's view.

"Beware of the pie in the sky," he said.

Reeve Stanley Murphy, in supporting amalgamation, said it had been suggested that "Victoria is out to take us."

"I categorically deny this," he said. "We have no intentions of giving away Saanich."

Earlier, Coun. Harold Todd charged that a small group is trying to force Saanich into amalgamation.

He added there is no guarantee that Victoria would live up to the terms of an agreement.

"Councils change over the years," he said, "and the terms can gradually be disregarded."

Others who spoke were Couns. Hugh Curtis and Gregory Cook.

The meeting was chaired by 86-year-old Albert Horner, an early day councillor.

Katanga Boycott Plan Abandoned

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant was reported Friday to have dropped the idea of a boycott on Katanga copper and cobalt in his campaign to force the secessionist province back into The Congo.

Diplomatic sources said he was relying instead on the Union Miniere, the big company that mines these metals, to start paying taxes to Premier Cyrille Adoula's central government.

Union Miniere, controlled mainly by Belgian and British interests, up to now has paid all its royalties and export duties to provincial President Moise Tshombe's regime in Katanga, and this has weakened the central treasury

Prairie Man Held

OXBOW, Sask. (CP) — The RCMP said Friday Alex Bernard Palmer, 29-year-old Oxbow resident sought by police on warrants charging kidnapping and attempted murder, has been arrested in Port Arthur.

Quebec Borrows $60 Million On Canadian Mart

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government has borrowed $60,000,000 on the Canadian market, bringing to $170,000,000 the total amount it has borrowed during the current fiscal year, Premier Lesage has announced.

The money is part of a record $225,000,000 borrowing forecast in the budget speech last April.

Mr. Lesage—also Quebec's finance minister—said long-term bonds of 25 years were floated at 5¼ per cent and short-terms of six years at 5 per cent.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Banks, Motors Display Strength

By PETER DUNN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Confidence flowed through Canadian stock markets again this week, boosting prices still further above their Cuba-crisis lows.

The index has gained 50 points in the 24 post-crisis trading days, putting it at the 569 level.

Market technicians who felt the index would stall this week near the 562 point—the mid-August recovery top—were proved wrong, as it pushed through that barrier with ease, gaining more than six points.

Spearheading the industrial rise were the banks, reflecting mounting investor optimism over year-end earnings, which are expected to be substantially higher than last year's.

All the listed chartered banks showed gains ranging from Montreal's fractional rise to Toronto-Dominion's climb of $3.

Motors had an unusually strong week, as the outlook for sales in the 1963 model year grows rosier. Chrysler, Ford of Canada and Goodyear Tire all advanced between $7 and $9, while U.S. Ford and General Motors each gained fractionally.

Steels, which benefit slightly from increasing auto sales, rose modestly on average.

UTILITIES HIGHER

In the utilities, gains outnumbered losses three to one, Power Corporation led the way, rising more than $1.

Base metals were thoroughly mixed on the week, despite encouraging corporate news recently, and strong gains by a few key issues.

Falconbridge jumped $2 and International Nickel advanced $3.

City Casts Wary Eye In Douks' Direction

Gov't Should Block Trek Here—Edgelow

City aldermen today viewed with some trepidation and a lot of uncertainty the possibility of 1,300 trekking Doukhobors coming to Victoria.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of public works, said the provincial government should act to forestall the movement of the homeless Freedomite sect members from where they lie camped in Hope.

Mayor R. B. Wilson was taken by surprise at the suggestion:

"This is the first I've heard about it. That's one we'd have to play by ear."

BUS CARAVAN

Hope village commission chairman Paul Scherk threatened Friday to organize a caravan of buses to land the Doukhobors at the legislative buildings.

He said he would act if the Social Credit government failed to solve the Douk problem immediately.

"This is strictly a provincial responsibility," Ald. Edgelow said.

"The goverment should do something to forestall that (trekking to Victoria). I can see no useful purpose in them coming here," the alderman said.

TOUGH PROBLEM

He admitted the sect presents "a tough problem."

"I hope they think of something else," remarked Ald. Lily Wilson, chairman of city welfare committee.

To the suggestion that a preliminary meeting of aldermen and officials be held to consider the possibility, Mrs. Wilson said:

"I don't think we should go looking for trouble."

NO DISCRIMINATION

But she felt there should be no discrimination in whatever way the problem is handled.

"My only hope would be that they be treated like other people," she said.

Meanwhile, Attorney-General Robert Bonner has promised provincial welfare director Douglas Sadler would go to Hope to study the situation. He was due to meet Scherle and Douk leaders today.

The band of Doukhobors is staying at a Seventh Day Adventist summer camp after evacuating a village campsite when flood threatened.

Hope chairman Scherle said marchers have spent their savings, are cut off welfare payments and are dependent on charity for food and clothing.

NOT QUALIFIED

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Sadler would view conditions at the encampment and report here, but previously the attorney-general said the trekkers were not qualified for welfare as they had burned their homes and quit jobs before setting out.

"It makes welfare stupid in the eyes of the public when such people are paid," Mr. Bonner said.

B.C. Industry To End Year With Flourish

Significant increases over last year for most British Columbia industries are shown in a monthly report on business activity released by Trade Minister Robert Bonner.

The report shows that crude oil production to date is running 1,057 per cent over 1961 due to completion of the north-south pipeline.

Copper production for the first half of this year is four times what it was a year ago.

B.C. factory shipments are up eight per cent and the total of scaled lumber to date is up 18 per cent.

Total retail trade at the end of September was up eight per cent over the figure for the same period last year; while gasoline purchases showed an increase of seven per cent.

CHEQUES UP

Total value of cheques cashed is running 34 per cent ahead of 1961.

"The federal government's austerity program seems to have by-passed B.C.," Mr. Bonner said, "and it looks as if we are going to end the year with a flourish."

But coal production, which had been lagging for several months, took a 42 per cent drop in September compared with the same month last year.

Trade officials said the drop was largely due to a rail-car shortage and the loss will be regained before the year's end.

September exports from B.C. ports dropped 14 per cent as the result of reduced wheat shipments to Red China. But exports for the first nine months of 1962 still remained 19 per cent above the correspoding figure for 1961.

Tourist permits are up 25 per cent to the end of September and the value of fisheries production to the end of August was up 16.8 per cent.

'Red Velvet' Bazaar Cakes Dangerous

Overeating a popular "red velvet" cake that uses a large quantity of artificial coloring is hazardous, Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada said.

Consumption of a quantity of red food coloring used generally today is dangerous in either cooked or uncooked form, said CAC chairman Mrs. A. B. Young, and the amount required to color a "red velvet" cake far exceeds the one part in 3,500 considered acceptable by the federal food and drug directorate.

The original recipe, she said, called for cochineal food coloring; a harmless dye made at great expense from insects. It is no longer available, Mrs. Young said.

A number of cakes have been spotted by the association at local charity bazaars and a restaurant had them for sale.

The local branch meets at 2 p.m. Monday in the Public Library music room to discuss the matter.

Eating one or two pieces of the cake would not likely be dangerous, the food and drug directorate reported.

BLOOD BANK GIVEN 709 PINTS

A todtal of 709 pints was deposited in the blood bank at Red Cross House after a three-day drive last week.

Red Cross spokesmen said they were "very pleased indeed" with the response.

The donations will enable the Red Cross to cope with the time of year when auto accidents reach their peak due to holiday celebrations.

Another clinic is scheduled for Dec. 11, 12 and 13.

LURE OF $1,000 scholarship and all expenses trip to India and Ceylon, offered by Tea Council of Canada, persuaded Ron Jupp of Milnes Landing to tackle this intricate scale model of famed China tea clipper Cutty Sark. Council's contest has attracted entries from all over Canada. An Esquimalt High School student, David Wade, is also working on a similar model. Both boys are building the ships from the hull up, making all fittings including spars and rigging.

CUT DRIVING TIME

Road Route to Link Renfrew, Cowichan

A new access road linking Port Renfrew on the west coast of Vancouver Island and the Cowichan Valley will be opened to the public early next year.

This was announced today by Hillcrest Lumber Company Ltd., Pacific Logging Company Ltd., and B.C. Forest Products Ltd., joint owners of a private logging road from Cowichan Lake via Mesachie Lake and Harris Creek.

They said the road will be opened to the public on a controlled basis; that is, during non-operating hours and when weather conditions permit.

Complete arrangements still remain to be worked out with Local 1-80, IWA, which requested the move.

The agreement between the companies and the union brings to an end several months of negotiations.

The union has been pressing for use of this route because the Bear Creek-Shawnigan Lake road is in bad condition.

The new route will cut travelling time from Port Renfrew to the Cowichan Valley by about half an hour.

MONDAY MEETINGS

The Victoria Natural History Society is sponsoring the film.

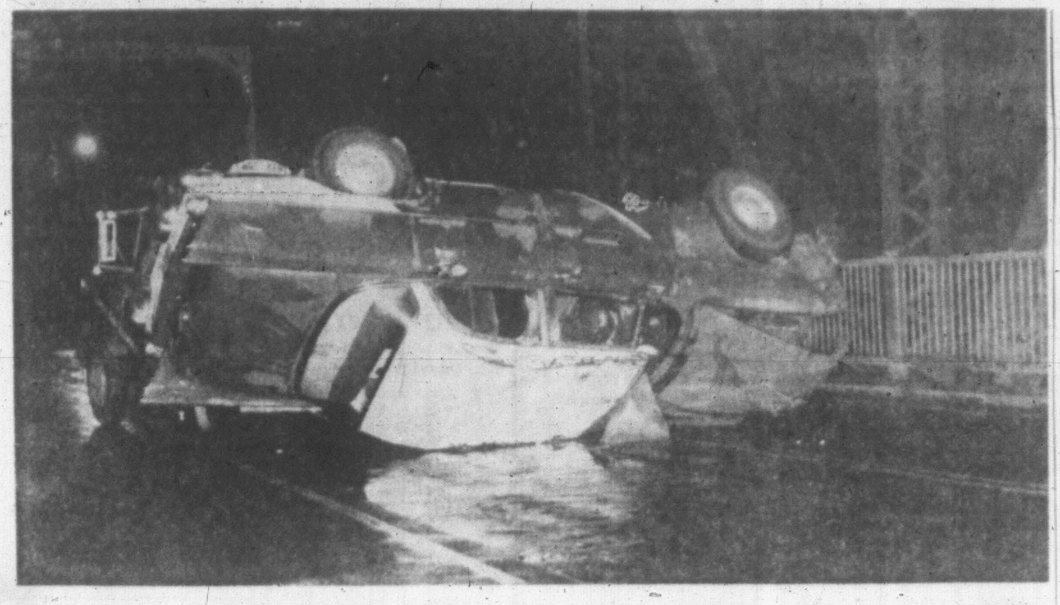
RCN NAMES NEW SKIPPER FOR GRILSE

Lt.-Cmdr. George McMorris will assume command of the Esquimalt-based submarine HMCS Grilse Dec. 3, succeeding Lt.-Cmdr. Edmund Gigg.

Lt.-Cmdr. McMorris is well known here. He was executive officer of HMCS Fraser when she commissioned here in 1957, and held that position until posted to headquarters at Ottawa.

He received his submarine training and experience with the Royal Navy, and became commanding officer of an RN sub.

Lt.-Cmdr. Gigg will join the staff of the naval director of ship requirements at Ottawa Dec. 17, with the rank of commander.



HE WALKED AWAY FROM IT

A shattering crash on Johnson Street Bridge early this morning brought police to the scene above. They found Larry A. Smith of HMCS Margaree, driver of the car, had miraculously escaped serious injuries when his vehicle struck the westerly girder of the south side of the bridge. The car rolled over and came to rest on its roof 100 feet from the point of impact.

ARTHUR MAYSE

My boy Ron got his mother a meat grinder for her birthday this year—a plain, old-fashioned chopper with a wooden knob on the handle, yawning mouth and a clamp to grip a counter edge. Win fussed over it. She tried all three cutters, then washed it and re-packaged it with loving care.

In a family, of course, this is the expected reaction to a gift: even when filled with inner dismay, you don't hurt feelings.

Still, the display went somewhat beyond the call of parental duty, and it puzzled me.

I cornered Ron later, grease on his face and his motorcycle reduced to its components on the basement floor.

"Listen," I said, "that was a dandy present, but how did you know she wanted it? Did you ask her?"

"Hold this for me," Ron said. "Don't let it wiggle." Then, busy with a wrench, "I didn't have to ask. She's said she needs a new grinder often enough. Her old one keeps falling apart."

"Yes," I agreed, "but she could have gone out and bought a new one any day."

"You're letting it jiggle," Ron said. "Sure she could. But she wanted a meat grinder for a present, she dropped hints all over the place."

I let something drop, too, with a dismal clang, and was dismissed as a mechanic's helper. But not without this parting shot:

"Trouble with people, they give other people what they think they should want. Like when I asked for a four-by-eight plywood sheet and got a desk lamp, remember?"

I did remember. I think the kid has hit on something there, a point worth discussing.

Maybe he's right; maybe all of us, husbands especially, tend to give what we think the receiving party ought to want.

Up to a point, that's good. Few women are likely to turn up their noses at a gift of nylon sheers or a jug of Chanel No. 5. But there are also meat grinders.

It's early to ask, but what do people want for Christmas? Really want, I mean—something which may be quite distinct from what they get or even ask for?

Nosing around, I've come up with some answers.

One girl, pre-nylon age, very much hopes Santa Claus will bring her some strips of bright-colored cloth and matching thread to sew it with.

One man hankers after an over-sized plastic sheet with grommets in the corners, another for two gallons of latex-base paint.

A small boy I know tells me he'd like a big bag of nails, all sizes from spikes for next year's raft-making to little ones for mending a toy garage.

Here are some others:

A bottle of Irish whiskey. (People keep giving him Scotch, poor fellow!)

A copper flour-sifter. (Remembered lovingly from her mother's Ontario farm kitchen.)

A set of drills and an eight-pound sledge.

You see? Not precisely standard items, are they?

* * *

My friend Don Ingham tells me that a few years ago, he and his family got thinking along these lines, and took concerted action.

What they really wanted was a boat. Nothing fancy, just a good, solid, flatbottomed skiff to poke around Glen Lake in.

So they restricted the individual gifts to minor tokens, and gave themselves the boat as a family present.

"Packed it right into the living room," Don recalls. "Eleven feet six inches long, and unpainted. It sat there all Christmas Day — our guests had to climb over it."

The Inghams still have their skiff, although not in the living room, and if Don gets around to putting a new bottom in it this winter, they'll be launching it again next spring.

Perhaps some of you have a yearned-for but unorthodox gift of your own which you'd never ask for or expect to get. If so, this space is yours to tell us about it.

Labor Troubles To Cancel Out Herring Season

The Fisheries Association of B.C. said today it appears the entire winter herring season—and the 1963 summer season—will be lost.

The association, in a news release, said it has rejected a further attempt by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) to secure a price higher than the $11.40 a ton offered by the companies for herring for reduction purposes.

The union said the fishermen voted 68 per cent Friday to reject the $11.40-a-ton offer. It said the fishermen then offered to negotiate a compromise price between the company offer and the price of $12.80 a ton proposed by the union. Price last year was $10.40.

Both parties said no further meetings are planned.

The association statement said the loss of the herring harvest will mean not only the loss of the fishermen's earnings but the loss of jobs in reduction plants as well.

Canine-Killing Mystery Virus Disappears

A mysterious virus that killed a number of young dogs in Greater Victoria has disappeared as suddenly as it came.

Mrs. F. H. Webb, secretary of the Vancouver Island Dog Fanciers' Association, said she has not heard of any new cases for a couple of weeks.

The outbreak was so severe that the association cancelled its Sanction Show that was to be held today. Mrs. Webb said the show will now likely be held early in 1963.

Older animals were immune to the sickness. But pups infected with the virus always died.

SPECIAL BRANCH OF NES FIGHTS EMPLOYER-RESISTANCE

Handicapped Have Talent—Need Place to Use It

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A highly-trained nurse who lost her left leg from polio called at the Victoria office of the National Employment Service recently.

It seemed as if all the knowledge and experience she had acquired over the years was to be wasted because hospitals considered her no longer fit for duty.

"But we are certain there is a place for her in some field of hospital activity and we are working to that end," says George Bevis, director of the National Employment Service here.

Between 15 and 20 handicapped workers seek help from the NES office at 1039 Johnson Street every week and are interviewed by two men who have specialized in such cases.

They are Joseph Sharples, director of the special services branch, and his co-worker, Richard Sutcliffe.

Their main difficulty is breaking down employer-resistance for, as they say, employers may be sympathetic to handicapped workers but they are nervous of hiring them in a highly competitive era.

"This is an unfortunate prejudice," Mr. Bevis said, "for almost invariably a trained handicapped person proves to be a faithful and useful employee."

He mentioned several success stories—a paraplegic who now works for a manufacturing jeweller; a polio victim who proved to be a first-class company secretary; a sailor who lost a leg and now works as teller in a local bank; a diabetic who became a hospital orderly . . . a wheel-chair patient who holds a responsible job in a government office.

Then there was the Victoria boy who exploded a home-made bomb a few years ago and lost his left hand. Now equipped with a jointed steel hook, he has proved himself a capable workshop assistant.

"We are always frank with employers," Mr. Bevis said, "but the names of persons seeking our help are never divulged to anyone else.

"We never press for employment on the basis of sympathy. It is on the basis of ability that placements are made and, on such a foundation, employers are usually willing to make whatever minor adjusfments are necessary to accommodate a handicapped worker."

People who have suffered from mental disorders are usually hard to place, but the NES tries to break down employer prejudice.

It works with various local organizations in the guidance, training and placement of handicapped workers, including the Multiple Sclerosis and Cerebral associations, the Canadian Institute for the Blind, Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped and the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

"We have had all kinds of co-operation from these groups," Mr. Bevis said, "but the end problem is always the same—to break down employer prejudice."

U.S. GIVES CONTRACT FOR HOT NEW FIGHTER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. defence department today selected General Dynamics Corp. to develop a revolutionary, new supersonic double duty fighter plane for use by both the navy on carriers and by the air force from land bases.

The multi-purpose jet warplane will be capable of reaching speeds two-and-a-half-times the speed of sound. It is the largest single military fighter program since the Second World War.

The development contract alone calls for building 22 test models, and will probably run close to $750,000,000. Eventually, perhaps 1,500 planes will be built at a cost of $4 to $5 billion.

Amalgamation!

Argument Goes Back A Long Way

By JOHN MIKA

If there's one word that can galvanize Greater Victorians into unending campaigns, panels, debates and chain letters to the editor it's "amalgamation."

The word has been the battle cry of this area for decades and yet another skirmish will be fought at the Saanich polls Dec. 6 when the referendum is decided.

The verbal war has passed through hot and cold phases, with the most recent "hot" period beginning in Jan., 1955.

In the seven years since then, a total of more than 560 references to the subject have accumulated in the Times' library files—and that's only a partial record of the running battle.

Skipping the personalities and the arguments, here's a brief rundown on what has happened in that period as gleaned from the newspaper clippings of council meetings, debates, announcements and campaigns on the question:

In January of 1955, the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, tired of frequently expressed and contradictory personal opinions about Greater Victoria's government, decided to put up $5,000 for an independent study.

By September of that year, after many discussions, the four Greater Victoria municipal councils agreed to co-operate by allowing their financial records to be examined.

Note that it was the last time the four councils were to agree to a study.

Hired Research Institute

The chambers hired the Citizens Research Institute of Canada—a specialized Toronto organization—to make the study. Two experts came out to carry it out.

At the same time, Premier W. A. C. Bennett set a pattern which his government and Victoria MLAs were to follow in the subsequent years—encouraging amalgamation from the sidelines without becoming embroiled in the conflict directly.

"We will do anything we can to help bring it about but we will not dictate it," the premier said on Sept. 20, 1955.

The then Saanich reeve Arthur Ash—a leading figure in favor of amalgamation—urged a civic study of metropolitan government here and construction of a joint municipal hall in his 1956 inaugural address. Victoria appeared [illegible] and Oak Bay aloof.

June 15, 1956, was a major milestone as the 75-page report of the Citizens Research Institute of Canada was unveiled.

It urged direct amalgamation of Victoria, urban Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and View Royal rather than a metro government.

The following month, then mayor Percy Scurrah and the three reeves agreed to set up an intermunicipal committee to study this report, but within a few weeks Oak Bay and Esquimalt had walked out and refused to participate in a joint study.

They have never changed their minds since, through all the debates and subsequent investigations, and all efforts at a four-way study have failed.

On March 6, 1957, however, they were given a severe jolt by introduction of a new Municipal Act in the legislature.

One of its provisions was that two-thirds approval by

Times Plans Forum

In the accompanying article Mr. Mika has traced the history of the amalgamation controversy over the last decade without going into the arguments for and against.

As a public service the Times next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will carry a public forum on these arguments. Protagonists and antagonists are invited to submit their views summing up the points.

Articles should not be more than 500 words in length and should be addressed to the managing editor.

ARMED YOUTHS FLEE AFTER CRIME SPREE

GOLDEN (CP)—Two armed youths who have boasted they will kill anyone trying to stop them were being hunted today by police in British Columbia and Alberta.

The pair fled this Rocky Mountain border village early Friday in a stolen car after escaping from the trap of a garage owner whose premises had been looted three times in the last month.

Police have blamed at least 12 breakins here on the pair and a third youth arrested late Friday.

They said the pair being sought are armed with at least three rifles, a .32-calibre pistol and a large quantity of ammunition, all stolen property.

They are driving a 1958 model car stolen in Ontario.

Winds Rake Coast

Screaming winds driving heavy rains surged over Vancouver Island today in a storm roaring in from the Gulf of Alaska and Queen Charlottes area.

Renewed rain and winds up to 70 miles an hour are expected Sunday.

In addition to battering the island, the storm roared far inland.

At points as far apart as Courtenay and Prince George in the central interior, there were reports of damage, but no injuries.

The wind gusted to 80 miles an hour on the central east coast of the island.

On the west coast, Tofino airport recorded the heaviest rainfall in the province, a whopping 4.79 inches in 30 hours.

Port Hardy, on the north coast, was doused with 2.41 inches in 24 hours, most of it early this morning. Nanaimo showed 1.35 inches and Comox 1.81.

POWER LINES DOWN

In the hardest hit Courtenay-Comox area, power and phone lines were downed. Fallen trees blocked several roads, and a large paper scow was knocked from its morings in Campbell River harbor.

RCAF Station Comox reported electrical trouble due to the storm, and at one period cut in its emergency power unit.

In Greater Victoria, more than one-third inch of rain fell between 8:15 and 11:15 a.m.

But several hours of pouring rain only overflowed a few ditches and clogged some drains in the Greater Victoria area.

Officials said there was no serious damage caused by the

B.E. GAMES

KIDD, POUND WIN

PERTH, Australia—Toronto's Bruce Kidd and Dick Pound of Montreal made it a big day for Canada at the British Empire Games today as they gave the Dominion its first gold medals with record-breaking efforts.

Swimmers, who had collected two silver medals in relay events Friday, picked up two bronze medallions today for third-place finishes.

Canada was also awarded a bronze medal in fencing to make it seven medals in the first two days of the games.

Kidd, 19, raced away from the field with a brilliant burst of speed to win the six-mile event in 28 minutes, 26.6 seconds, hitting the tape 50 yards in front of former record-holder Dave Power of Australia.

Montreal's Pound scored a major upset in the swimming events when he beat Bobby McGregor of Scotland in the 110-yard freestyle. Pound's time of 59:55.9 seconds topped the old record.

Mary Stewart, Vancouver, won a bronze medal in the women's 110-yard freestyle and Aldy Meinhardt, Vancouver, was third in the men's 110-yard butterfly swim.

In fencing, the Montreal pair of Carl Schwende and Ben Simo and Toronto's John Andru were third in team foils.

See story on page 10 for details of today's events at the Empire Games.

'Aiming Only for First' Jerome Says After Losing

PERTH—"When I saw him ahead my whole edge went off and I sort of collapsed."

That was the explanation by Vancouver's Harry Jerome today for his disappointing showing in the 100-yard dash final at the British Empire Games.

The event was won by Seraphino Antao of Kenya. Jerome finished last after pulling up about two-thirds of the way down the track.

Jerome was a downhearted man as he left the track.

Antao was first out of the blocks and led at the halfway mark of the 100 with Jerome second. After 80 yards, the Canadian faltered and the stylish Kenyan went on to win by about two feet over Tommy Robinson of the Bahamas.

Jerome's disappointing performance was almost identical to his failure in the 1960 Olympics when he dropped out before the finish of the 100.

Talking to reporters, Jerome recounted what has been his sad story in other big events.

"I was trying to beat Antao," he said. "When I saw him ahead my whole edge went off and I sort of collapsed.

"There was no real pain. I just tried too hard. I don't think I pulled a muscle. He (Antao) got off the blocks real fine. There was just him and me. I tried to catch him but just could not make it."

Jerome said he thought he could have taken a silver medal if he had hung on but "my whole heart went out. I was aiming only for the gold."

Jerome said he would try again—"really hard" in the 220-yard dash.

FRIENDSHIP DOLLARS FOR INDIA

Small Donation Can Save Child

Every day in Victoria a man quietly smokes a packet of cigarettes while someone dies he could easily save.

Yet few of the smokers realize what is happening because the person whose life they could save is in India.

And they find it hard to believe that the small sum needed to buy cigarettes in Canada is the difference between life and death for some Indian.

But according to Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee, such is actually the case. The price of a large pack of cigarettes is enough to feed an Indian child with powdered milk every day for six months.

That is why even a small sum donated to the Times appeal for "Friendship Dollars for India" makes such a big impact on someone's life.

Dr. Hitschmanova thinks that most persons, hearing about the effect of a donation, would readily give something. But many of them never get around to actually doing it, she says.

Yet all they need to do is to send a cheque to "Friendship Dollars for India," c/o The Times, 2631 Douglas, or

Meet Ti-Cats For Grey Cup

BULLETIN

WINNIPEG—Rallying for the winning touchdown on the final play of the game Winnipeg Blue Bombers defeated Calgary Stampeders 12-7 here today in the deciding game for the championship of the Western Football Conference.

Bombers, defending champions, will now meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Eastern titleholders, for the Grey Cup.

Ernie Pitts was the Winnipeg hero as he scored the winning touchdown. Winnipeg led 5-0 at half time and by the same score at the end of the third quarter. Stampeders rallied in the fourth quarter to move ahead 7-5 on Coleman's touchdown. Winnipeg picked up another single before the spine-tingling finish.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Kicking accounted for all the points in the first half today as Winnipeg Blue Bombers grabbed a 5-0 lead in the deciding game of the Western Football Conference best-of-three final against Calgary Stampeders.

Fullback Charlie Shepard hammered out a pair of singles, one on a 77-yard effort when the Calgary deep backs lost his punt in the sun. The other score was a nine-yard field goal by fullback Gerry James in the second quarter.

Winnipeg held a 1-0 lead after the opening quarter and pushed over four points in the second.

Calgary won the series opener last Saturday in Calgary 20-14—Winnipeg took the second Wednesday night here 19-11.

Two interceptions featured the opening half. Gar Warren picked off a pass by Calgary quarterback Eagle Day and Harvey Wylie grabbed the only pass of the quarter by Hal Ledyard, in for one play to replace Winnipeg quarterback Ken Ploen.

PLAY HELD UP

Day held up play for about two minutes on Calgary's first offensive series, bringing an appeal from Winnipeg president Karl Wintemute for the fans to allow the Calgary quarterback to call his offensive signals.

It worked until the second quarter when Day and Nick Miller tangled on the sidelines, again bringing down the derision of the fans on Day.

In the quarter, Winnipeg picked up 81 yards rushing and 77 yards in the air while Calgary went for 68 yards on the ground and none in the air.

Today's game was played in ideal football weather with the temperature hovering around 40 degrees as the teams took the field. There was nine-mile-an-hour wind. Wednesday night the temperature was 21 and 28-mile-an-hour wind whistled in from the north-west.

Hamilton Ends Hopes of Als

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats advanced into the Grey Cup final for the fifth time in six years by defeating Montreal Alouettes 30-21 in the second game of the Eastern Football Conference final today. The Tiger-Cats, who won the first game 28-17, took the two-game, total points series by a round score of 58-38.

The Ticats will meet the western champions in their cup final at Toronto on Dec. 1.

The injury-riddle Alouettes put up a strong battle today in an attempt to overcome the 11-point margin that the Tiger Cats carried into the game from their victory in the opener of the series.

They fell behind a further 14 points when Hamilton scored two quick touchdowns in the first quarter. They bounced back with two converted touchdowns of their own in the second quarter to tie the score 14-14 but still leave them trailing by 11 points on the round going into the second half.

An estimated crowd of 21,000 saw the Tiger-Cats wrap up the game in the third quarter, when they scored two touchdowns, a convert and a single to go ahead 28-14, and by 56-31 on the round.

The Ticats added two more singles in the first five minutes of the fourth quarter to increase their game margin to 30-14, and the round lead to 58-31. The Alouettes came up with a touchdown at the 6:45 mark of the fourth quarter to finish off the scoring.

ASKS 'CLARIFICATION'

India Hints Ready to Talk

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India gave its first diplomatic recognition to Red China's self-imposed cease-fire today by asking for "clarification" of several points in the Peking proposal to end the fighting and start negotiating a peace in the undeclared border war.

A spokesman said Foreign Minister M. J. Desai summoned the Chinese charge d'affaires Friday and raised "several points which required clarification."

"The Chinese charge d'affaires is obtaining clarification from Peking," the spokesman added.

But he declined to say what points needed clarifying.

The move was the first formal acknowledgement by India of the three-day-old cease-fire, which thus far has been "under consideration" here and only tacitly observed by the Indian army.

But tacit or not, the cease-fire has brought an effective end to the fighting at least until Dec. 1, when the Chinese said they planned to withdraw back to the north but warned the Indians not to move into the territory abandoned under threat of renewed attack.

The spokesman said patrolling was going on in both the North East Frontier Agency and in the Ladakh region of the 2,500-mile Himalayan front. But there were no shooting incidents anywhere along the line today.

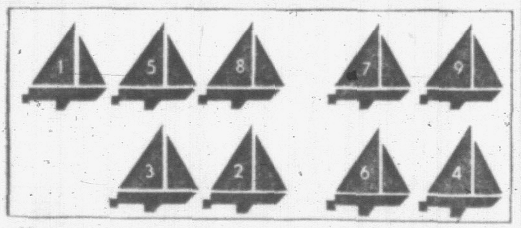
E. Germans Escape

BERLIN (Reuters) — Three young East Germans swam the near-frozen waters of a border river and escaped to West Berlin last night, police here reported today.

Smooth Sailing In Sea of Numbers



Nine sailboats shown at right bear the digits from one to nine. They are arranged in two groups. If you take the trouble to multiply the numbers displayed, you will find that 158 multiplied by 32 is 5,056, and that 79 multiplied by 64 is the same.

This brings up a question: How is it possible to rearrange the same group of sailboats (in other words, the same nine digits) so that the multiplication of each group will result in both a larger and smaller amount? That is to say, in each computation both groups must achieve the same product.

Answer: A smaller product may be achieved by switching the figures 32 and 64 to 23 and 46. To effect a larger product multiply 174 by 32 and 96 by 58.

TWO CATCH QUESTIONS

The following [illegible] inserted in an IQ test given undergraduate engineers, as a determinant of how they might handle seemingly foolish queries from future clients for their services.

1. How long is a piece of string?
2. How far can a dog run into the woods?

There are logical answers. Can you think of any?

Answers: 1. Twice as long as the distance between its centre and either end. 2. A dog can run halfway into the woods. Thereafter, he's running out of the woods.

RIDDLE

What merchant, no matter how honest he may be, must earn his living by "foul" means?

Answer: The poultry dealer.

SEEING THINGS TWO WAYS

Oculist O. P. Tick took up a pointer and asked Mr. Jones to read off six consecutive letters of the alphabet from a chart.

To his surprise, Mr. Jones stared in an opposite direction and read out the letters exactly as they appeared. For Mr. Jones was looking in a mirror in which the chart and pointer were reflected and it so happened that the six consecutive letters looked exactly in the mirror as they did on the chart. Mr. Jones, therefore, read them without difficulty. What six different letters were they?

Answer: The letters T, U, V, W, X, Y, which read the same in reverse. A, H, I, M and O likewise read the same in reverse but they are not consecutive.
